VOL. 30 No. 11 | Five Sections | Lancaster Farming, Saturday, January 19, 1985 | $7.50 per Year

'Casey' goes to bat for Lancaster Co.

Manheim steer is grand champ after winning light heavyweight division

BY JACK HUBLEY

HARRISBURG — A 1265-pound Angus-Chianina steer named Casey proved to be "black magic" for a Lancaster County exhibitor, winning the light heavyweight division, then going on to be named grand champion in Thursday's Junior Steer Show.

"I thought he was a nice steer, but I didn't realize how good he really was," said 17-year-old Kelly Rohrer after show judge Dr. Dan Eversole pronounced her entry top beef.

The daughter of Yvonne Rohrer of Manheim, Kelly had campaigned her steer to the reserve champion spot in November's County Roundup, and credits her Uncle Abe Flory with guiding her through the months of pre-show care and conditioning

Flory, who showed Ayrshires some years ago, was prompted to get back into "show business" five years ago when his niece took an interest in the county's Red Rose Beef Club. Miss Rohrer, who now owns four head of purebred Angus cattle, houses her animals in her uncle's barn.

She purchased her steer from Wayne Miller of Frankfurt, Indiana. Next year's Steer Show prospect, already "in training" on the Flory farm, is also an Angus-Chi crossbred purchased from Miller

Long-time dairy exhibitors return to Farm Show

HARRISBURG — For some, the Farm Show dairy competition on Tuesday might have appeared as a three ring circus "

Non-farm visitors filtering in and out of the Large Arena grandstands could watch three show rings at once, glancing from one parade of multi-colored dairy cows to another. And even the ringmaster" was at hand — the judge who eyed each animal carefully, examining her from all angles before pulling some winners into the spotlight

But for the attending pure-bred enthusiasts and breed show competitors, the dairy shows were no circus They scrutinized the entries as carefully as did the judge, and each exhibitor taxed his or her showmanship skills, trying to show off the entry's finest type characteristics.

When the judges' decisions were finally made in each of the six breed shows, a lot of familiar faces - both human and bovine — were found in the winners' circles

In the largest breed show of the day, the Chester County Maplebound Holsteins returned to capture the grand championship, and the premier breeder and premier exhibitor awards, of the open black and white competition.

The Aryshire winners were dominated by the Rader family of Connoquenessing, and the Sycamore Meade Farm, Millersburg. Brown Swiss breeders to return were Kitty Kopistecki, of Royersford and the Kennedy family of Butler. Two of last year's Swiss champs "Dainty" and "Darling" easily returned to the the top placings.

In the Guernsey competition, Rutter Brothers returned their Rutter Brothers Fayvors Buffy for a traditional win, and the Snider family, New Enterprise, expanded their winnings to include both premier awards.

Jersey competition was dominated by two long-time Jersey breeders, the Lester Martin family of Chambersburg, and Mildred Seeds, Downingtown. And the Milking Shorthorn show just wouldn't have been the same without the Yoders' Pinesedge Farm copping most of the champion honors.

Farm Show spectators welcomed back the poultry exhibits this year, after a year's absence in 1984 due to the avian flu epidemic. Above, Pa. Poultry Queen Jacki King presents Governor Thornburgh with a basket of eggs while Mrs. Thornburgh strikes up a conversation with the fluffy representative of the state's renewed poultry industry.

Secretary of Agriculture Penrose Hallowell with Daniel and Amy Brubaker, of Lancaster County, whose family was named 1985 Farm Family of the Year.

Farm Family of Year

HARRISBURG — A Lancaster County farm family with three generations of participation in the Farm Show were named Farm Family of the Year during special ceremonies at the Farm Show this week

The prestigious award went to Daniel and Amy Brubaker, of Sunnyside Fruit Farm, R1 Ephrata, who have been exhibiting at the Farm Show since the 1930s.

In presenting the award, state Secretary of Agriculture Penrose Hallowell stated, "The Brubakers are a shining example of the Pennsylvania farmer and the tradition that is Pennsylvania agriculture."

The award is presented annually to the family that best exemplifies the Farm Show spirit and is based on experience and success in

Farm Show '85 — a tribute to Pa. farmers

Well, Farm Show is over for another year, and even the weather stayed true to tradition. We always thought it was just a folksy cliche---it it's Farm Show Week, it must be snowing. But the 1985 Farm Show was held a week later than usual . .and the previous week was unseasonably mild for the most part...and this week it snowed. So maybe there's more than just folksy humor going on here?

Whatever the case with the weather, the 1985 show saw a tremendous upsurge in crowds and enthusiasm over last year's Show Opening day used to be a "quiet" day at Farm Show primarly for exhibitors and people who hate crowds, but this year's opening day drew bigger crowds than ever And the people and enthusiasm continued all week, proof of the interest and dedication Pennsylvanians feel for their state's agriculture industry, and for the tradition behind Farm Show.

So now all the grand champions have been selected, and the ribbons given out. The luncheons and banquets have been held and recognition paid to the 1985 Farm Family of the Year, the Master Farmers, the Keystone degree winners, the agribusinesses who have played such an important part in the farm picture, and many, many others who earned special honors Weary exhibitors will be back home by now, settling their animals and getting themselves back into the routine of everyday life But the glow of having done a good job will last for awhile and even while they're shaking off the dust from this year's Show, a lot of exhibitors will probably be thinking ahead to the next one

One of the things Farm Show always make us doubly conscious of is the hard work and dedication of the young exhibitors. When we watch these young people care for and show their animals and think about all the hard work and effort they put into their FFA and 4-H activities, we feel reassured that so many young Pennsylvanians are involved in activities that teach responsibility and values These future leaders in agriculture will be some of our finest citizens

We also feel proud and grateful to the family farmers. Farmers feed us, it's as simple as that. It takes unique abilities and endurance to run a farm successfully, and our Pennsylvania farmers have certainly proven over and over that they have these talents The Farm Show was just further testimony to this. The Show only lasts a week, but our appreciation and respect for farmers and agriculture last all year long.

To Attend Winter Meetings

This is the time of year that a lot of educational meetings are held. And, they're held during this season of the year for a good reason – you have more time to attend meetings. During the spring, the summer and into the fall, there's just too much field work that must be done. Take the time to become acquainted with the meetings of interest to you and your operation. Some meetings are designed to reach certain production groups such as Dairy Days, Livestock Day, Crops and Soils Day and Poultry Day; but, others are programmed to reach all agri-business people like the Financial Management, Estate Planning, and Farm Transfer arrangement meetings.

Also, many agri-business and lending institutions conduct meetings to keep you abreast of the changes in their organizations. We urge you to mark your calendar as these meetings are announced and attend as many as possible.

To Recognize Fertilizer Values

Since the cost of commercial fertilizers continues high, we should take a look at other sources of plant food; I am referring to farm manures and legume sods in the crop rotation.

The 1985-86 Agronomy Guide gives a very good comparison of these fertilizer values on page fifteen.

With the amount of manure that is being applied to some of our livestock and poultry farms, it is quite possible that very little commercial fertilizer will be needed.

Alfalfa sod can add as much as 75 pounds of nitrogen per acre. This is one advantage to having legumes in the crop rotation.

A complete soil test will reveal the needs of each field Then the need can be met by using farm manures, legume sods, or commercial fertilizer Careful handling and storage of manure will preserve many of these valuable fertilizer elements

To Use Farmers Tax Guide

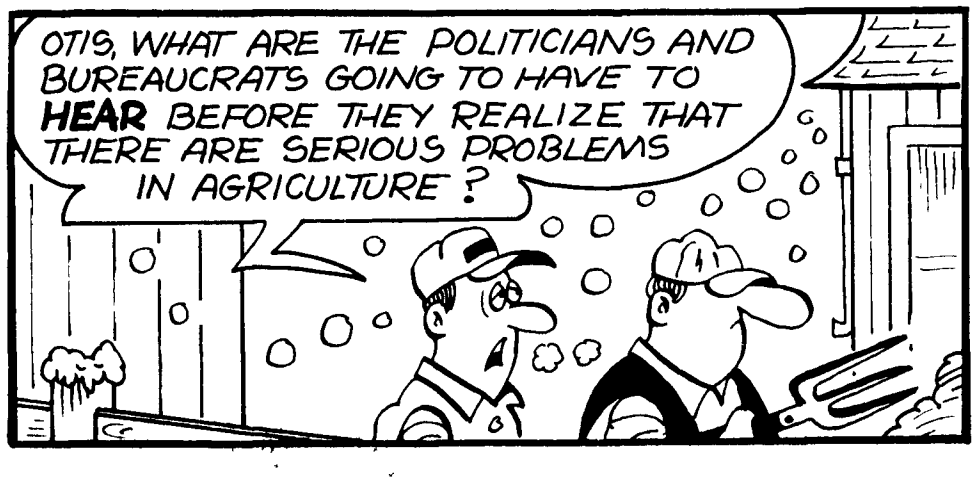
I hate to mention it, but it is Income Tax reporting time again For farmers this becomes quite complicated and usually there are many changes from one year to the next.

The Farmer's Tax Guide is published by the Internal Revenue Service and is a real help to farmers and others who file for agricultural concerns. We have a supply in our office, as do other Extension Offices. They are also available from the Internal Revenue Service. I would highly recommend using the Tax Guide when filing your return. The filing date of March 1 for farmers rolls around rather rapidly.

To Preserve The Top Soil

The spring of the year is an excellent time to develop some soil conservation practices on the land Contour strips, terraces and diversion ditches can all be established before the 1985 crops are planted These various methods of controlling water will not only prevent soil losses but will help hold more water on the higher slopes and fields Good topsoil is a precious natural resource, and every land owner should make an effort to keep it from eroding Farmers that are growing continuous corn should be very careful to keep their soil from washing away. In these cases terraces can be established to help slow down the loss of both water and soil. Addition of extra organic matter in the form of crop residues, green cover crops and livestock manure will help keep the soil loose with a higher water holding capacity

The Extension Service is an affirmative action equal opportunity educational institution



OTIS, WHAT ARE THE POLITICIANS AND BUREAUCRATS GOING TO HAVE TO HEAR BEFORE THEY REALIZE THAT THERE ARE SERIOUS PROBLEMS IN AGRICULTURE?

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
BY LAWRENCE W ALTHOUSE

ASKING THE WRONG QUESTIONS
January 20, 1985

Background Scripture:
John 4:7-15; 7
Devotional Reading:
John 7·1-13.

Many people have an obsolute knack for asking the wrong questions and at the wrong time. Appearing in Jerusalem for the Feast of Tabernacles, Jesus is attacked by those who question the authority by which he practices his ministry. Having witnessed his mighty works and heard his profound teaching, they begin to quarrel over whether he is a prophet, the Christ or an imposter. "Who is the man?" they want to know.

Jesus, however, tries to redirect their attention from who he is to what he is. "If anyone thirst, let him come to me and drink. He who believes in me, as the scripture has said, 'Out of his heart shall flow rivers of living water' " (7:37). Jesus refused to be drawn into the controversy over what title he should be given and instead attempted to concentrate upon what he could do for those who accepted him in faith.

FROM GALILEE?

As I read the gospel accounts, I never find Jesus all that concerned about the Titles people give him. They may call him "Lord," "Master," "Rabbi," "the Christ," but he seems content to refer to himself at the "son of Man." Much more than finding the right name to give him, he seems to want people to discover the Spirit of God within him. Christians may get very uptight about using the right title, but Jesus did not. A title was unimportant; what people could experience of God in Jesus was not.

One [illegible] find the people missing the forest for the tr[illegible] Some of them respond to [illegible] saying "This is really the prophet," while others said, "This is the Christ." And then comes the statement and question which take the real booby prize. "Is the Christ to come from Galilee? Has not the scripture said that the Christ is descended from David, and comes from Bethlehem.. ?" (7:41). After long centuries of waiting for God's promise to be fulfilled, at least there appears a man to fulfill that promise and, instead of greeting him with open hearts, they haggle over his place of birth!

LED ASTRAY ALSO?

When the officers return empty-handed to the religious officials, they are questioned, "Why did you not bring him?" And the officers answered candidly, "No man (7:46). Jesus performs wonderful works like a messenger from God and speaks like a prophet, but the authorities do not care for the evidence, they have already made up their minds; "...you will see, that no prophet is to rise from Galilee" (7:52).

It would be well if we could say that today we no longer quibble over such matters and continue to ask the wrong questions. Yet, all too often we do. And we will always miss the true meaning of Jesus Christ so long as we quibble over him instead of following him.

OUR READERS WRITE

To The Editor:

The message of the Grace Commission's report comes through loud and clear:

We are responsible for the deficit and we are the only ones who can fix it.

The causes of the deficit are many and pervasive. Almost every federal program studied is beset with fraud, overpayments and inefficiency.

In many instances individual Congressmen will not act because local interests in their districts will be affected.

The light at the end of the tunnel is that Candidate Reagan, and not Candidate Mondale was correct No tax increase is necessary or desirable; we can make do with the taxes we now have if we use the money wisely. Best of all, the Grace Commission believes we can balance the budget without penalizing the truly needy.

Accordingly, I believe that we must instruct the Congress to set aside their parochial and partisan interests and vote for most of the recommendations of the Grace Commission, or suffer defeat in the next election.

Pa. agriculture featured on big screen

HARRISBURG – From the aisle, the exhibit looked much like any other canopied display... but step inside, and your senses were bombarded by the sights and sounds of the upbeat state of Pennsylvania's agriculture.

The exhibit marked the debut of a five-minute audio-visual production prepared by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture for the 69th annual Farm Show.

The fast-moving slide presentation featured the Department's two logos -- "Pennsylvania Agriculture – We're Growing Better" and "Keystone Pride." The two logos have been adopted by 220 Pennsylvania firms and more than 2,000 farmers markets, roadside outlets and retailers. The logos identify quality Pennsylvania grown and processed foods.

Photos of Pennsylvania's varied bounty of ag commodities flashed across the screen to modern, fast-paced music. The 20 by 10 feet screen set the scene for all phases of the state's number one industry, valued at $35 billion.

Leading the ag sector, the state's 15,500 dairy farms produce milk valued at $1.3 billion, and the exhibit featured all aspects of the industry... from cows grazing to milking parlors as well as fresh dairy products like cheese and butter.

Do you know how a mushroom grower operates? The exhibit followed cultivation, from the recesses of dark mushroom house to selection and packaging. Pennsylvania's fresh mushroom industry ranks number one in the country, valued at $103 million. And processing mushrooms add another $69 million to the state's economy.

Apple, peach and cherry blossoms danced across the screen as you got an inside look at the state's fruit production and processing. The juices, sauces, cider and canned fruits, combine with fresh fruit, add another $70 million to the state's ag economy.

The state's 36 potato chip plants produce snacks valued at $220 million, and the slide presentation gave you a different look at an industry many of us take for granted.

The presentation did not forget the poultry industry – from chickens, turkeys and ducks to table eggs. In fact, table eggs rank third in the nation and are valued at $23.1 million.

Leslie Bowen, Pa. Dairy Goat Youth Representative, presents Governor and Mrs. Thornburgh with a sampling of products made from goat's milk and a miniature wood-carved replica of a goat. The presentation took place at Farm Show opening ceremonies.

Broiler industry critical to Delaware's economy, study shows

NEWARK, Del. — In terms of the multiplier effect of dollars spent, Delaware's poultry processing industry contributes more to state economic growth than any other industry, according to a recent University of Delaware study.

"Most people know farming is important to the state's economy, but they may be surprised to learn just how important it is," says Sharon M. Brucker, a research associate at the university's Agricultural Experiment Station. "Our study shows that poultry processing has the highest multiplier effect of any industry in the state."

Furthermore, the study shows that when the poultry industry grows, a large number of inputs from other Delaware industries are required–which means potential growth for them, too.

Seventy-six percent of all poultry processing inputs are bought instate, Brucker says. And 75 percent of all poultry production purchases are made in Delaware. No other industry except paper products buys more than 50 percent of its inputs (goods and services) inside the state. For example, the chemical industry buys only 46 percent of its inputs locally.

Using secondary data from various government sources, Brucker and resource economist Dr. Steven E. Hastings have developed an input-output table showing all the transactions undertaken by various industries in the state. The table covers 55 different types of industries, ranging from poultry and crop production to banking, chemicals, business service, amusement, auto repair and educational services. Data in the model can be used to estimate how much of each input is required to produce one dollar of output.

Although Delaware's chemical industry is the most important in terms of size, the model shows that an increase of $100,000 in sales in chemicals stimulates less additional instate population than the same sales increase in the poultry production, poultry processing, or paper sectors.

According to Hastings and Brucker, an increase in poultry processing of that magnitude could be expected to increase total statewide production by $373,000.

"It is important to note that different industries would be appropriate growth targets depending on the development goals of the state," Brucker says. For example, if generating more income were the goal, a $100,000 change in output in medical or federal government services could be expected to increase income in the state by $107,000 or $109,000, respectively. If new jobs were the goal, an increase in the apparel or health facility sectors (such as hospitals and nusring homes) would be most beneficial.

"Business people, government officials and others who make economic development decisions in Delaware need this kind of information," Brucker says. "They need to know how encouraging the growth of certain industries, such as banking, is likely to affect other sectors of the economy. They also need to know how existing industries use local resources, what markets are underused, how new markets can be encouraged, and how tax or zoning changes can affect the economy."

The results of Brucker's and Hastings' study are available in Agricultural Experiment Station Bulletin 452, "An Interindustry Analysis of Delaware's Economy." Copies of the bulletin are available by writing: Dr. Steven E. Hastings, Department of Agricultural and Food Economics, Townsend Hall, University of Delaware, Newark, DE 19717-1303.

CAMP HILL — Pa. dairymen heard a not-so-bright forecast for the upcoming year from agricultural economist Dr. Robert E. Jacobsen. But Jacobsen, who addressed the Pa. Dairymen's Association at the annual meeting and banquet held on Tuesday at the Penn Harris, reminded the dairymen that some rays of hope exist — if they take responsibility for shaping the 1985 dairy legislation.

Jacobsen, an Ohio State University professor, began by reviewing last year from a "good news, bad news" perspective. While the good news stemmed from last year's encouraging statistics — the record-breaking blend prices in the fall, the highest ever Minnesota-Wisconsin of $12.72, CCC puchases down 50 percent, and production down and consumption up — the bad news may emerge in the 1985 trends.

"We've already passed the peak," said Jacobsen about the dairy price situation. "We're seeing now the highest price you'll see in 1985 and see in 1986." Evidence of this downward slide was the 20 cent drop in the Minnesota-Wisconsin price for December.

Other gloomy factors to consider are the 50 cent reduction in the support price on April 1 and the prospect of too much milk flooding the market again. Jacobsen reminded the dairymen that the spring flush means nearly 20 percent more milk being produced in May and June than in October and November.

But Jacobsen's remarks weren't merely all gloom and doom. By reviewing the year behind and the year ahead, Jacobsen was trying to impress upon the dairymen the seriousness of their participation in writing the 1985 farm legislation.

"1985 is a crucial year," he declared, "not only for this year and the next four years, but the 1985 Farm Bill will say a heck of a lot about dairying through this century."

While Jacobsen referred the farmers to the January 10 editorial of Hoard's Dairymen — which advised farmers to attend dairy policy meetings to make their thoughts known, he mainly encouraged them to get thinking and consider alternatives for the dairy economy. To do this, he posed four questions.

-Should we even have dairy price support programs? While it's politically and economically unreasonable to do away with a price support program, said Jacobsen, the dairymen better be prepared to say why they need it.

-What should be the purpose or objective of a dairy price support program? Right now, described Jacobsen, the farmers are split into the "market-oriented camp" and the "price enhancement camp." We can't have both, he said, and there has to be some give and take.

-What kind of systematic mechanism will adjust the support price program? Some of the options Jacobsen listed included dairy parity, cost of production mover, market standard, and secretarial discretion. Whatever the feasibility of these options, he noted, knowing what you want is prerequisite, and any system must have flexibility. Lack of flexibility is responsible for the current economic shambles, he added.

-What is the best way to implement the dairy price support system? What are the alternatives to the CCC, asked Jacobsen. Would target price deficiency payments, whereby the government quit buying butter, cheese, and powder be workable? He proposed the industry is handcuffed by high purchase prices, unable to build a commercial market for butter, cheese, and powder as a result.

Leaving the dairymen with these questions, Jacobsen again reminded them of the importance of the 1985 Farm Bill to the long-term future of the dairy industry. "While market conditions will probably be more influential," added Jacobsen about the future dairy program, "it really depends on what you want and express."

David Roth (right), Pa. Dairymen's Assoc. president, proudly presented the Charles E. Cowan Memorial Award to Joseph Hartle for his leadership in the dairy industry. Sharing in the honors is Joseph's wife, Gladys.

Jacob E. Guffey (center), Bradford County Extension Director, received the 1984 Pa. Dairymen's Assoc. Cooperative Extension Service Award for his contributions to the state's dairy industry.

The Pa. Dairymen's Assoc. presented this sparkling silver pitcher to Pa. Dairy Princess Lynette Loper in recognition of her work to promote the dairy industry.

Dairy Awards

In addition to Dr. Jacobsen's remarks, the annual meeting included the presentation of several awards. Lawrence Specht, Penn State Extension dairy specialist, awarded the 1984 Pa. Dairymen's Assoc. Cooperative Extension Service Award, the 1984 Charles E. Cowan Memorial Award, and also announced the 1985 yearbook dedication.

Jacob E. Guffey, Bradford County Extension Director, was named recipient of the Extension Service Award "for valuable and noteworthy contributions to the state's dairy industry." The award consisted of a plaque and $100.

Specht pointed out that Guffey had conducted outstanding adult and 4-H dairy programs during his 26 years of service. He developed and maintained Extension programs in the areas of udder health, somatic cell testing, dairy nutrition, stray voltage, DHI, and 4-H dairy club work. He is also one of the team instructors in the Northern Tier region for proper milking management.

Guffey also coordinates the Ag Action Forum, noted Specht, which has provided leadership opportunities for numerous young adults.

The Bradford County CED has received the National Association of County Agricultural Agents Dow Study Tour Award, the Eastern Milk Producers' 4-H Dairy Program Award, and the New Holland Career Guidance Award.

Specht also presented Joseph R Hartle Jr with the 1984 Charles E Cowan Memorial Award. Hartle, a Bellefonte dairymen, was recognized for "leadership contributing to the improvement and promotion of the dairy industry."

Hartle's 70-cow registered Holstein herd last year averaged 19,594 pounds of milk, 727 pounds of butterfat and 641 pounds of protein.

Named a Master Farmer in 1980 for his farming practices and leadership activities, Hartle began in 1956 with a bare farm with few usable buildings. The operation was built through the years into one of the best dairy units in the area with fine facilities and an outstanding cropping program.

"Joe and his wife Gladys have hosted hundreds of people from Pennsylvania, other states and a number of foreign countries who are interested in observing modern farming practices," said Specht.

The Centre County dairyman served as a 4-H dairy club leader for almost 30 years. He has also been dairy and beef cattle superintendent at the Centre County Grange Fair for more than 30 years.

Hartle's other agricultural activities include the Centre County DHIA, local and state Holstein associations, Centre County Ag Forum, Pa. Grassland Council, and Centre County Crop Improvement Assoc.

The Charles E. Cowan Award, established ten years ago in memory of a long-time leader in Pa. Dairymen's Assoc. activities, recognizes dairy farmers who have made outstanding contributions to the state's largest agricultural industry.

Specht also made the 1985 Yearbook Dedication. Honored this year was David J. Yoder, former general manager of Atlantic Breeders Cooperative.

Yoder, who just retired at the end of the year from over 40 years of employment with Atlantic, was cited for his outstanding service to the dairy industry.

In addition to the awards presented by Specht, toastmaster Doug Hershey announced the top state herds in each breed for 1984. Conducting the evening's business meeting was president David Roth. Also addressing the group was Agriculture Deputy Secretary Chester Heim and Penn State's Dean of the College of Agriculture, Samuel H. Smith.

Honors abound for Hostetters' Maplebound Holsteins

BY WENDY WEHR

HARRISBURG — Maplebound scored again. Last year the Donald Hostetter family's Maplebound Holsteins earned the grand championship plaque and the premier breeder award. This year they overcame the stiff competition again, exhibiting the grand champion and capturing both the premier breeder and exhibitor awards.

Returning to the show ring this year were two of last year's top Maplebound entries. Winning the 1985 senior and grand championships was Maplebound Ultimate Dove, who also placed first in her aged cow class last year.

Classified VG-88, Dove is a member of the Reserve All-Pennsylvania Best Three Females. Her top production record stands at 21,887 lbs. milk and 816 lbs. fat. Out of Maplebound S Susie, the homebred 6-year-old Dove is by Quality Ultimate.

When asked whether he thought Dove was a winner, Donald Hostetter said that, although he's shown long enough to get an idea where she would place, you can never tell whether she'll measure up in the ring. "But a few of the breeders here last night had her picked out to be the grand champion," admitted Hostetter.

Also returning to this year's competition was the 1984 grand champion, Maplebound Rex Ivory. Scored Excellent-91, Ivory came away first in her aged dry cow class.

The Hostetters, of Parkesburg, exhibited winners throughout the show, eventually overtaking their competitors and garnering the premier breeder and premier exhibitor awards. Among their top individual and group class placings were: first 3- and 4-year-old dry cow; first and second aged dry cow; second best udder; and second exhibitor's herd.

Members of the Hostetter family who pitched in during the Holstein show included Donald's wife Dorcas, and their children Jay, Sue, and Kim.

In the reserve grand champion spotlight of the Holstein show was Globe-Run Handsome Ada, exhibited by John and Annabell Foster, Petersburg. Ada placed second behind Maplebound Ultimate Dove in the aged cow class.

Both the youth division grand champion titles were bestowed on Tom McCauley, Elizabethtown. Queen Star Sexy, the top youth division 3-year-old, was named grand champion, while McCauley's Metcafs Valiant Beauty earned the reserve grand championship. Two-year-old Beauty also received the best udder award of the Holstein shows.

The junior champions in the open division were two home-bred entries shown by Robert Gitt, Littlestown. Penn-Gate Jetstar Clara was named junior champion from the senior yearlings, and Penn-Gate Sky Star Dawn, the top senior calf, moved into the reserve champion spot.

Youth division junior champions were shown by Jenelle Boyer, York, and Steve Anderson, Boiling Springs. Boyer took the junior champion rosette showing Philka Milestone Matt Fifi. Anderson's Manor-Grove Falcon Naomi was the reserve junior champion.

Judging the Holstein show was Donald V. Seipt, Easton. Seipt is a full-time dairyman who manages 90 registered Holsteins.

Following are the top three placings in each class of the Holstein open and youth divisions.

Sycamore Meade sisters named Ayrshire champions

HARRISBURG — It was "one of the strongest and highest quality Ayrshire shows in recent years," said Kennard Henley II, father of one of the Ayrshire exhibitors. And true enough, the Ayrshire show during the Farm Show dairy competition on Tuesday was the second largest breed show of the day.

The Ayrshire breeders paraded close to one hundred head under the watchful eye of Mary Shank Creek, of Factoryville. Creek originally hails from Palmyra Ayrshire Farm in Maryland.

Reigning over all the Ayrshires was a pair of paternal sisters sired by Sycamore Meade Greta's Billy Sycamore Meade Billy's Sharon, first placed aged cow, captured the winning grand championship title, while Sycamore Meade Billy's Renee followed in as the reserve grand champion

The grand champion, exhibited by owner Harold Rader, Connoquenessing, was purchased last September at the Keystone Elite Sale held during the All-American Dairy Shows. On the day after the sale, she took top honors in her 4-year-old class and in the best udder competition.

Her former owners, Earl Keefer and Donald Shetterly, the partners in Sycamore Meade Farm, bred both Sharon and their reserve champion Renee. Renee was first in her 3 and 4-year-old dry class.

Harold Rader Jr., 12-year-old son of the elder Rader, followed in his dad's footsteps by leading his 3-year-old, Lucky Ayr Carrie, to the grand championship of the youth division.

And not to be left out of her family's winnings was Lona Rader, who showed her junior calf, Long-View Barry Windie, to the reserve junior championship of the youth division.

Kennedys earn Brown Swiss premier honors

BY WENDY WEHR

HARRISBURG — While James Kennedy stayed home to tend the family farm this week, his wife, Rita, and children tended their Brown Swiss show string at Farm Show. Before the dairy show on Tuesday, Rita said, she was "a little anxious" about supervising the final preparations and having the entries looking their best at show time.

But Rita Kennedy had little to worry about. At the conclusion of the Brown Swiss competition, the Kennedy family walked away with both the premier breeder and premier exhibitor awards and a reserve grand championship in the youth division.

The Kennedys, of Four Seasons Farm, Butler, have long exhibited at Farm Show, but this is their first premier breeder award, earned by placing in the top three in virtually every class of the show. In 1981 they earned the premier exhibitor honors.

The Kennedy children — Jeff, Janelle, John, Jason, and Jill — are the fourth generation of Kennedys to exhibit in the Brown Swiss competitions. Nineteen-year-old son Jeff showed Lake Lane Fancy C to the reserve senior and reserve grand championships of the youth division on Tuesday.

A Top Acres Stret Clev daughter, the 6-year-old Fancy C was a reserve All-American last year and also milks well, making over 22,000 lbs. milk in her last lactation.

Some repeat performances marked the other Swiss grand championships. Last year's grand champion and best udder in the open division, DN Delegate Dainty, impressed the judge again this year.

Judge Mary Shank Creek, Factoryville, selected Dainty for best udder and grand champion honors again, but this year a new owner led her into the ring. Rob and Sharon Nolan, Parkesburg, showed the White C D Delegate daughter to the grand championship.

And none other than Dainty's daughter took the reserve grand open championship and the grand youth division championship. Titan Daintys Darling, showed by Kathleen "Kitty" Kopistecki — who was at Dainty's halter last year, placed first in her 2-year-old class and then went on for the open and youth division championships. Kopistecki, from Royersford, Montgomery County, had also shown Darling to a reserve championship last year.

For the Swiss junior championships in both the open and youth divisions, Mike Welsh of East Berlin, showed one of his Welsh Ponderosa heifers to the winner's circle. Michael Kunkle, Jonestown, took his junior calf, Shady Creek Melody Melanie, to the reserve junior championships.

Following are the top three placings in the open and youth divisions of the Farm Show Brown Swiss competition.

Yoders' Pinesedge Farm dominates Milking Shorthorn Show

BY BARBARA RADER
Staff Correspondent

HARRISBURG — Pinesedge Farm, owned by the Samuel Yoder family, pulled virtually all the Milking Shorthorn championships this week at Farm Show, and they captured the premier exhibitor and premier breeder awards as well.

Six Yoder family members make up the winning Farm Show unit. The "veteran," Sam Yoder is a long-time Farm Show exhibitor, missing only two shows since his first January show in 1948.

Senior and grand champion of the show, as well as winner of the best udder award, was Pinesedge Alfair Carleen, aged cow owned by Phyllis Yoder. The Yoders are known for their high quality Shorthorns, and this champion from their show string was no exception.

As a 3-year-old this Pinesedge Rhythm daughter was named champion of the national Milking Shorthorn contest in Madison, Wisc., in 1981.

Frederick Yoder stood next in line with his 4-year-old Pinesedge M Cheri Tart, the reserve senior and reserve grand champion. Tart is also a previous winner, taking the reserve championships at the Eastern States Exposition and the Maryland State Fair.

Showing the junior champion of the open show was Wendy Yoder. Her junior calf, Pinesedge K P Snowwhite, edged out James Young's junior yearling. Three Springs B.R. Lil stood in the reserve junior champion position.

The Yoders manage 170 head on their farm outside of Shoemakersville, Berks County. Samuel Yoder is also secretary-treasurer of the Pa. Milking Shorthorn Society and a director of the national breed organization as well.

The Three Springs Farm show string, owned by James Young, Newville, also picked up some additional championships. Daughter Christine Young secured the youth division junior and reserve junior spots.

Dari Fayvor daughters do well in Guernsey contest

BY WENDY WEHR

HARRISBURG — A Rutter Brothers aged cow and a Lebanon Valley 2-year-old stepped up for the championship titles in open Guernsey shows this week at Farm Show, while members of the Snider family earned the youth division honors and the premier breeder and exhibitor awards.

The best udder, senior and grand championship awards went to Rutter Brothers Fayvors Buffy, a Rutter Brother's C Beth daughter by Housleys Dari Fayvor. Competing in the aged cow class this year, Buffy is not new to the Farm Show winners' circle. She was named champion in 1983 and reserve champion in 1984.

At the halter of Buffy this year was Cindy Rutter, who, according to her father Leo, enjoys the show competition even though she's not actually an employee of the Rutter Brothers Guernsey operation in York. The dam of Buffy was one of Cindy's 4-H cows.

Also involved in the Rutter enterprise is Chad Rutter, who showed Rutter Brother Emorys Bea, a senior calf, to the reserve junior championship of the youth division.

In the reserve grand champion spot of the open competition was Lebanon Valley Star Veri, a homebred 2-year-old shown by Robert Smith, Annville. By Maurana Wis Telestar, Veri is out of Lebanon Valley Hornet Vibree.

Smith also earned the reserve junior open championship with Lebanon Valley Star Elsie, the first place senior yearling.

The Sniders of New Enterprise, claimed the youth division grand championships and the premier breeder and exhibitor awards. Julie Snider's 4-year-old entry, Sniders Fayvors Irate, placed first in her class and then went on to receive the judge's nod for the senior and grand championships. Meanwhile Billy Snider showed Sniders Fayvors Beloved to the reserve champion positions.

Julie Snider also showed the junior champion in both the youth and open divisions. Sniders Fayvors Flora, a senior calf, stood out from the other entries to earn the junior championships.

All three of the Snider champions, like the Rutter Brothers grand winner, were sired by Dari Fayvor. The two senior champs are also good producers. Craig Claar, who helps the Snider family with the fitting and care of their Guernseys, reported that Irate and Beloved both are producing around 88 lbs. milk.

Also part of the Snider showing team were Brandon, Brent, Bernard O. Snider and Berneta Snider Gable. Together the Snider

Martin family, Mildred Seeds divide Jersey ribbons

BY WENDY WEHR

HARRISBURG — The Lester Martin family of Chambersburg, and Mildred Seeds, Downingtown, split the Jersey honors this year at Farm Show. In a close placing, the Martins' Merry Moan Alisa edged out Seeds' Top O Hill M Tempty for the grand championship in the open division.

The two also shared the premier honors, with Seeds winning the premier breeder award and the Martins being named the premier exhibitors.

The Martin family includes parents Lester and Ruth and children Tina, Denise, and Doug. It was 13-year-old Denise who showed Alisa, a 4-H club project, to the grand championships of the open and youth shows. Denise is a veteran exhibitor, participating in all the local, regional, and state 4-H shows, and also going to Louisville this year with the Pa. Jersey Cattle Club

Winning the best udder award as well, the 4-year-old Alsia was sired by B Sleeper Valiant, who, added Lester Martin, has a lot of winning daughters across the country. Even so, the Martins said they "didn't expect her to do quite that well" in the Farm Show competition.

Mildred Seeds probably didn't expect Alsia to do so well either. Seeds' Top O Hill M Tempty fell behind Alsia in the reserve grand spot, despite a a fistful of grand championships from this year's show season. Classified Excellent as a 2-year-old, Tempty is a 6-year-old sired by Advancer S Milestone.

Seeds also picked up the premier breeder award in the Jersey competition. But the premier award is nothing new for Seeds, who says she has shown at Farm Show for nearly 25 years

For the Martin family, this was

"I'M SHALLOW INCORPORATING PROWL® FOR UP TO $6 PER ACRE LESS THAN LASSO OR DUAL."

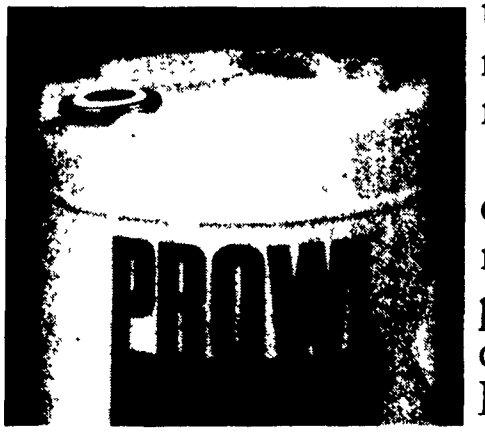
Conservation tillage saves my topsoil. And fewer tillage passes save time, fuel, equipment costs and soil moisture. PROWL® herbicide incorporated in one pass saves me at least one more trip over my fields. And PROWL saves me money on chemical costs, too. I'm using PROWL for up to $6 less per acre than the cost of Lasso[1] or Dual[2].

Get Problem Weeds In Soybeans

PROWL gives me long-lasting control of 21 grasses and broadleaf weeds. And since it controls through both the root and shoot, PROWL gets weeds growing in the crop residue that other herbicides can miss without increasing the rate.

No Worry About Carryover

PROWL protects my beans all season and then, unlike some other herbicides, I never have to worry about carryover into my following crop.



Long-lasting protection with no carryover, with just one shallow-incorporation pass. All for up to $6 per acre less than the cost of Lasso or Dual. That's why I'm using PROWL.

Ayrshire

The Rader family exhibits under the farm name of Homestead Acres. Harold Rader Sr. is currently president of the Pa. Ayrshire Breeders.

Also following the lead of her father, Donald Shetterly, was Debra Shetterly. She took the reserve grand championship of the youth show with Sycamore Meade Champs Luvie. The 4-year-old Luvie is sired by Sycamore Meade Hi Champ, which was the first Ayrshire bull to come through the Pa. Ayrshire Breeders' young sire program and is currently at stud with Atlantic.

Sycamore Meade Farm also was awarded the premier breeder award for the fourth consecutive year. The family partnership exhibiting at Farm Show for the last eight years has a number of premier exhibitor awards and championships to their name as well.

Palace Ayrshires, owned by Kennard E. Henley III, Cochranville, won the premier exhibitor award and also showed the cow with the best udder of the show, 4-year-old Glen Malcolm Pats Star.

The junior champion, MR R Gladtime, a junior yearling, was exhibited by Ardrossan Farm, owned by Mrs. Edgar Scott, Villanova. Heather Hernley, Lebanon, won the reserve junior championship in the open competition and junior championship in the youth division. Green Brae Jamie was the double winner.

Hernley has established her own Ayrshire herd, known by the prefix Heather-Brooke. She is currently a state FFA officer.

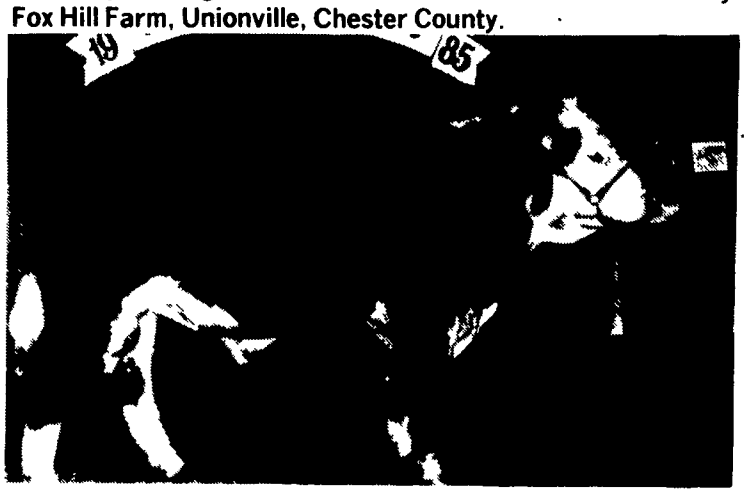
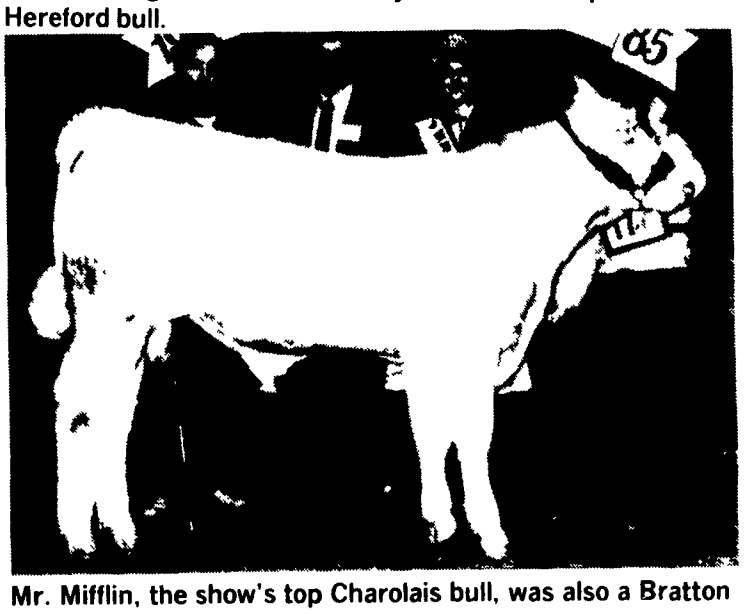
Seven breeds compete in Open Beef Show

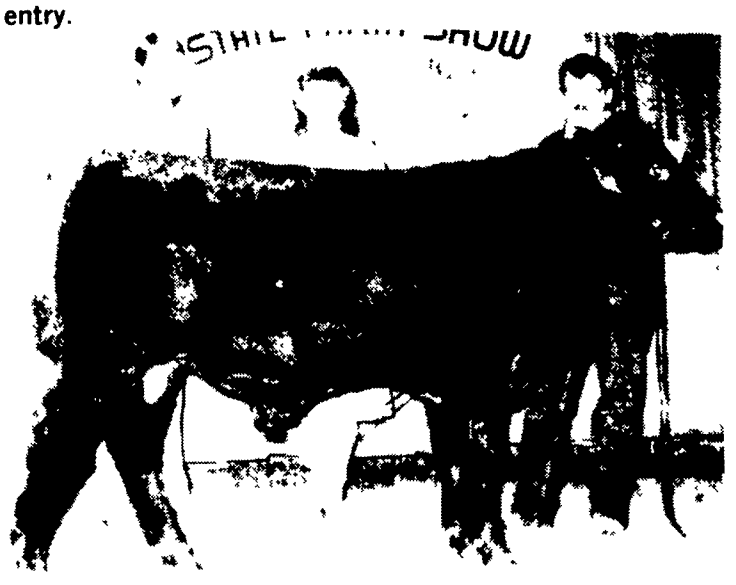
Champion Angus heifer was Sir William's Elba owned by Fox Hill Farm, Unionville, Chester County.



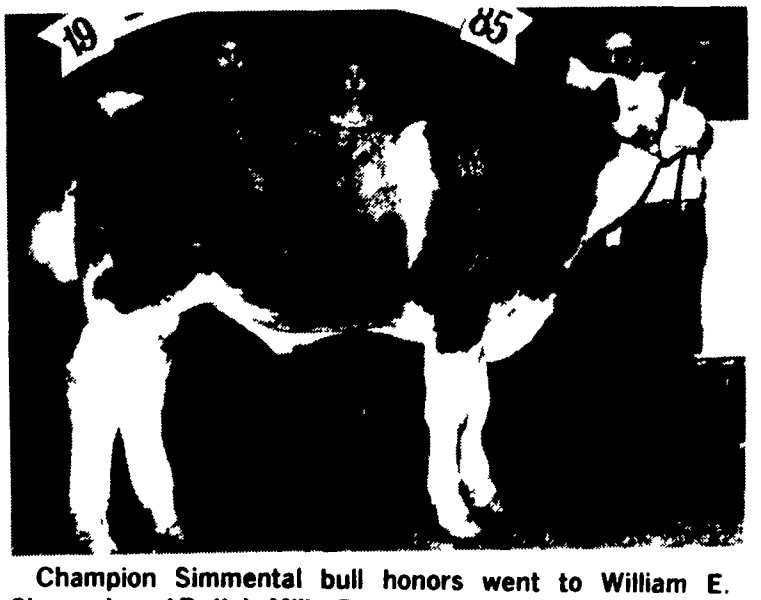
Bob Livingston of York County had the champion Polled Hereford bull.



Mr. Mifflin, the show's top Charolais bull, was also a Bratton entry.



Champion Shorthorn bull was also exhibited by Woodside.



Champion Simmental bull honors went to William E. Shoemaker of Buffalo Mills, Bedford County.

BY JACK HUBLEY

HARRISBURG — Beef show competition heated up early on Wednesday morning with more than 70 exhibitors representing 18 counties vying for top honors in the Angus show Judging the show was Jim Gillooly of Washington, Ind.

Angus

Topping a strong field of heifers was Sir William's Elba, owned by Frank and Susan Walton and Brian and Judy Jordan of Fox Hill Farm, Unionville, Chester County

"Back in the straw (beef barn) everyone liked her and thought she might be the one to beat," noted Frank Walton, "but I don't like to count on anything. The Farm Show has a real powerful group of Angus, and I'm real pleased," he smiled.

A Pine Drive Big Sky daughter, Elba was purchased from Sir William Farm in New York.

At reserve was CLK Ida 284, a March heifer owned by Debra Krause of Krause Farm in Slatington, Lehigh County. Though Miss Krause has been showing for five years, this was the first show for her heifer, Ida, another Pine Drive daughter

Power Drive of GU & K lived up to his name by driving the whole way to the grand champion bull position. Owned jointly by Greg Krueger and Family, Genetics Unlimited and Berrypatch, all of Chester County, the top bull is a Power Play son and a maternal brother to Krueger's Foolish Pride and Scaara

The show s reserve champion bull was CDH Pure Pride 043, a Pride son owned by Chester Hughes of Lancaster, and Country Lane Farm.

Polled Hereford

In Polled Hereford competition, judged by Jerry Ballard, it was JDH Polled Herefords of Dover, York County, that took both grand and reserve honors in the heifer show. Grand champion was EPH Miss Grand, co-owned by JDH and Michael Egleston of Elkland Sired by Wildcat Sundance, the heifer was out of a Vindicator daughter.

JDH's winning reserve entry was SCH Classy Lass, a Vindicator daughter.

Champion honors in the bull show went to TL Kona, a homebred bull owned by Timothy Livingston, also of Dover "He's home-raised and I'm very proud of that," said Livingston, adding that his first championship win at Farm Show, 'feels real good."

The reserve title went to Salunga Acres of Mount Joy, Lancaster County, owned by Geroge Metzler Named FLF Hotline 3033, the bull was bred by Falkland Farms, sired by PRL930K Hotline and out of an Enforcer daughter

Charolais

Ray Bratton's home-raised heifer, BCF Miss Elsa, was named grand champion Charolais heifer by judge Dan Eversole of Blacksburg, Va. Elsa was sired by Mr. Expectation, a bull owned by the Bratton Family of McVeytown, Mifflin County.

Bratton, whose entire show string of six Charolais was bred at home, also exhibited the grand and reserve champion Charolais bulls. The show's top bull was Mr. Mifflin, an RCC Royal Constructor son, and the reserve champion was BCF Builder, out of the same sire.

'We've been working at it a long time," said Bratton, noting that his Charolais herd dates to 1964. Bratton Charolais Farm currently owns 120 purebred cows, along with a commercial herd of about an equal number of crossbred cows.

The only championship title escaping the Brattons was the reserve heifer spot, won by Paul D. Miller of Spring Grove, York County. RCC Royal Showtime 4C09 was sired by Spains Show Me

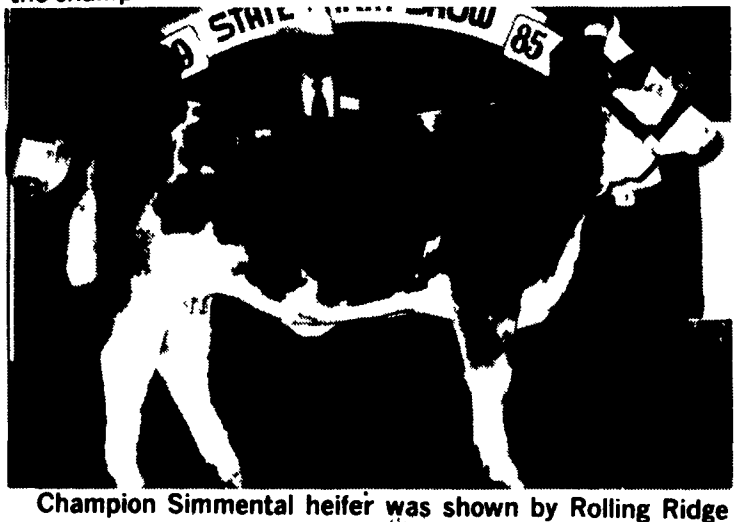
Woodside Farm of Waynesburg, Greene County, showed the champion Shorthorn heifer.



Champion Simmental heifer was shown by Rolling Ridge Farm, of Butler County.

"It's a good combination," commented Flory on the steer's Angus-Chianina breeding. "You get the right amount of muscle and good frame size."

A senior at Manheim Central High School, Miss Rohrer noted that frequent one-mile walks were an important part of conditioning her steer for competition. And another important ingredient in her winning formula, according to Miss Rohrer, was the pre-show fitting done by Jan Waltz, last year's grand champion steer exhibitor.

A homebred steer owned by Sally Messick of Messick Farms, Middletown, Dauphin County, took reserve champion honors.

Also of Angus-Chianina breeding, Messick's steer was sired by MF Ideal a Chianina bull owned by her sister, Patty.

"That makes it even more exciting," said Miss Messick's father, Mylin Messick, who noted that the steer was out of one of the farm's Angus cows.

This was the second time in the Steer Show's winners circle for the Hershey High School junior, who also had the reserve champion steer in 1983.

"I'll miss him," the eight-year 4-H veteran said, thinking of Friday's steer sale that would put an end to the daily exercise and fitting practice that she had shared with "Chester" in months past. "But you know from the start that some day you'll be selling them. And some days I would have gladly given him away," she laughed.

In addition to Kelly Rohrer's light heavyweight division win, three other weight division winners were chosen.

Lightweight Division. Champion in this class was an Angus-Chi crossbred steer owned by Paige Templeton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Barry Templeton, Ebensburg, Cambria County.

Middleweight Division: Champion exhibited by Cathy White of Nottingham, Chester County.

Heavyweight Division. Champion exhibited by Joseph Druck of York.

Following the naming of the champion, Lancaster County exhibitors continued to make their mark in the Steer Show, placing first and second in the lightweight trio competition, and first and third in the heavyweight trio division. Champion trio honors went to the Lancaster County team of Kelly Rohrer, Stacey Linton and Jodi Weaver.

In the Beef Showmanship competition, first place in the 11-and-under division went to Stacy Suffel of Cumberland County. Fred Weaver, Lancaster County, placed first in the 12-14 division, and Lancaster Countian Fritz Frey took top honors in the 15-and-over division.

Dr. Dan Eversole, associate professor at VPI, Blacksburg, Virginia, had high praise for both the exhibitors and their animals.

"This is really the cream of the crop," he noted following the show. "In a show of this size you can expect to see a lot of overfat or underfinished cattle, but many of these cattle were what I would consider ideal in their handling characteristics. The quality was extremely strong in all weight divisions," he concluded.

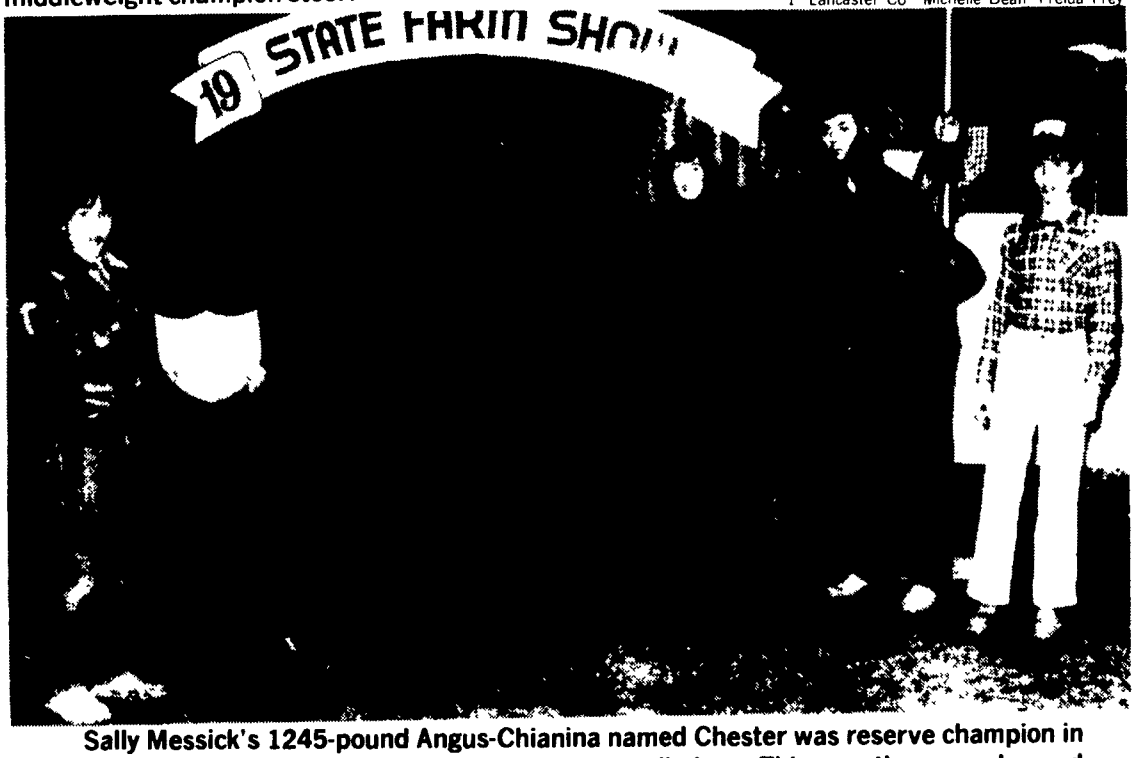
Champion of the lightweight division was this Angus-Chianina cross owned by Paige Templeton, Cambria County.

Cathy White of Nottingham, Chester Co., showed the middleweight champion steer.



Sally Messick's 1245-pound Angus-Chianina named Chester was reserve champion in both the light heavyweight division and the overall show. This was the second grand champion win for the 17-year -old Dauphin County 4-H'er. Pictured are Dwayne Coble (with plaque), Sally, Dwayne and Mike Messick.

Honorary Master Farmer award goes to retiring editor

BY GLENN KNIGHT
Special Correspondent

CAMP HILL – Bob Williams, retiring editor of Pennsylvania Farmer, was named an Honorary Master Farmer Tuesday during the Master Farmer Awards luncheon at the Penn Harris Motor Inn, here. Only three honorary titles have ever been given, the others to President Dwight D Eisenhower and Dr. Norman F Reber.

Governor Dick Thornburgh made the surprise award to Williams before a crowd gathered to pay tribute to the seven Master Farmers announced earlier this month.

The seven 1985 Master Farmers recognized were: Kenneth R. Benner, Millerstown; Lewis W. Berkley, Berlin; Boyd Altmann Mertz, Northumberland; Herbert Karl Schick, Kutztown; Walter B Wurster Jr., Otisville; and a father and son team, Mark M and Paul Kieffer, Dornsife.

In presenting the honorary award to Williams, Governor Thornburgh said that "using a pen and a typewriter rather than a tractor and plow, Bob Williams has demonstrated has effectiveness and loyalty to Pennsylvania agriculture for the past 35 years."

The Master Farmer program was begun in 1927 by Pennsylvania Farmer and since 1974 it has been co-sponsored by the Cooperative Extension Services of Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland and West Virginia.

Denise Martin also picked up the top award in the Jersey youth show. Beside her is Jerome Hardy with his reserve champion. Lynette Loper and Carol Dreisbach were on hand to congratulate the winners.

the third consecutive year that they've won the premier exhibitor award. This year, the Martins placed high in nearly every class, but Denise's entries, in particular, caught the judge's eye.

In addition to the grand champion, Denise showed the junior champion and reserve junior champion in the open show. Junior champion was Tabbys Tinkerbell of SDF, first place senior yearling and the reserve winner was Belles Morning Glory, the top junior yearling of the show.

Other Jersey champions were shown by the Hardy family of Petersburg, and Elizabeth Jenkins, Toughkenamon. GK Accents Sunshine, a 4-year-old shown by Jerome Hardy, earned the reserve senior and grand championships in the youth division.

Junior champion of the youth division was James Hardy's junior yearling entry, Tee Pee Justin Bella. Elizabeth Jenkins earned the reserve junior youth championship with CLV Gemini Sweet Shamrock, a senior yearling heifer.

Judge of the Jersey competition was George Barless of Janesville, Wisconsin.

The top three placings in each class of the open and youth competition follow.

York Co. tops Junior Breeding Beef Show

BY JACK HUBLEY

HARRISBURG — York County exhibitors set the pace in Thursday's Junior Breeding Beef Show, taking champion awards in three of the six breeds represented.

Champion honors in the Chianina, Hereford and Simmental breeds went to York County, with Chester, Washington and Berks Counties accounting for the top spots in the Angus, Charolais and Shorthorn Shows, respectively.

In the opening Angus Show, judge Dan Eversole from VPI, Blacksburg, Virginia, chose Queen Victoria 3 of WV as his champion heifer. "Queenie" was the 4-H project of 10-year-old Erica McClelland, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Brian Jordan of Kennett Square, Chester County.

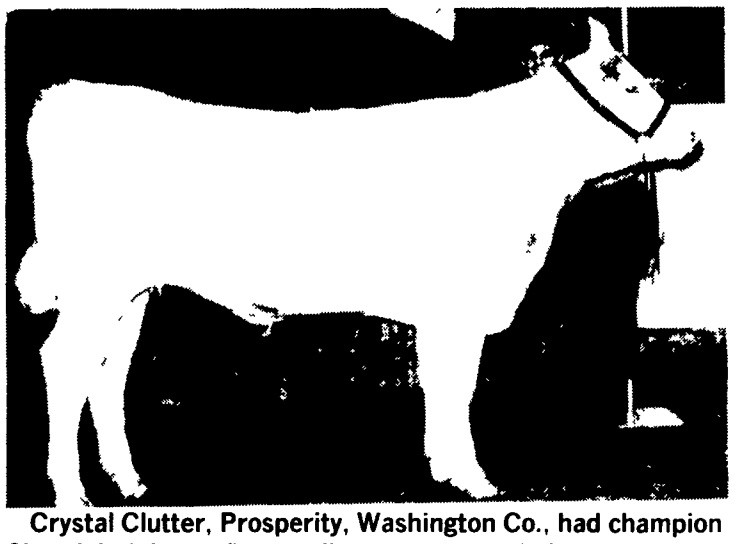
Though Miss McClelland was elated with the outcome of her first Farm Show, she noted that raising a prize-winning heifer requires plenty of work throughout the year. During the summer she was in the barn by 6:30 a.m. every morning to wash, blow-dry and walk Queenie 'And some times we would fit her so we'd have more practice."

"But that was better than getting up early for school," she admitted.

A Mr. Angus daughter, Queen Victoria was purchased from the E&W herd in Ohio.

Reserve champion Angus heifer was TOF Friskys Pride owned by Fritz Frey of Quarryville, Lancaster County. A Foolish Pride son, the steer was out of the heifer that was Farm Show's champion in 1983. Frey's entry was also named champion in the bred-and-owned division.

The champion Angus heifer in the Junior Beef Show was owned by Erica McClelland, Kennett Square, Chester Co.



Crystal Clutter, Prosperity, Washington Co., had champion Charolais (pictured) as well as reserve and champion bred-and-owned.

The champion, reserve champion, and champion bred-and-owned Charolais heifers were owned by Crystal Clutter of Prosperity, Washington County.

Miss Clutter's champion, Derby's Coco, was a Legacy daughter that had placed first in her class in Wednesday's Open Show. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Clutter, Crystal purchased her champion from Derby's Farm in Kentucky.

Champion laurels in the Chianina show went to the Open Show's reserve champion, Lauxmont's Lacy J, owned by Jamie Kohr of York.

The reserve champion Chianina heifer was Miss Black Legs owned by Dwayne Messick, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Messick of Elizabethtown, Lancaster County.

After taking grand and reserve championships in Wednesday's Open Polled Hereford Show, the Hausner family of York County went on to take top honors in the Junior Hereford Show.

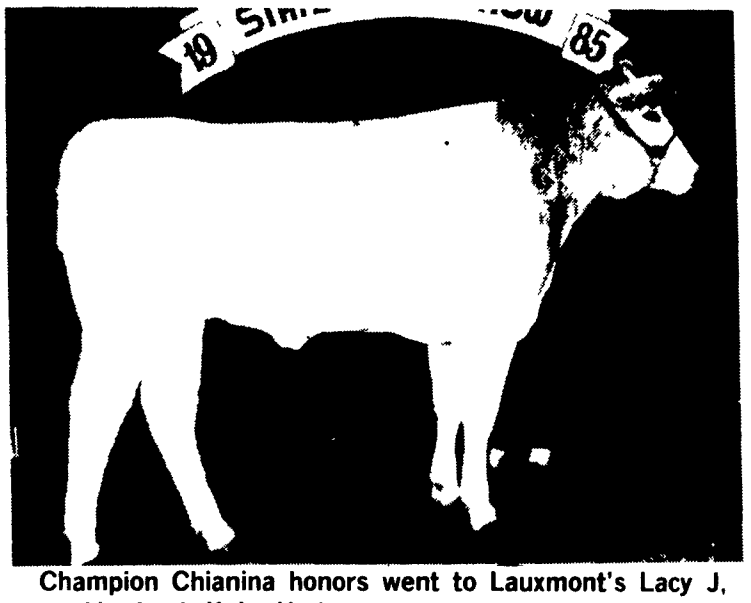
Champion heifer was Miss Kona, shown by John Hausner, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Hausner of Dover, York County. Sired by Beartooth Kona, the top heifer was purchased from Sam Hunter of Smithsburg, Virginia.

The reserve Hereford heifer was shown by John A. Kirschner Jr., of Monongahela, Washington County.

With only one exhibitor in the Shorthorn Show, Kenianne Rarick of Reading, Berks County, found herself fielding the champion and reserve heifers with no challengers. The judge placed her heifer, Rolyn A Inez, in the top spot, and named Len Ru Melody to the reserve position.

Prime Time Annette, owned by Joseph Druck of York, was named the Simmental Show's top heifer. Sired by Silverstone Prime Time, the heifer had been named reserve champion in Open competition, and had registered a grand champion win in the Keystone's junior show

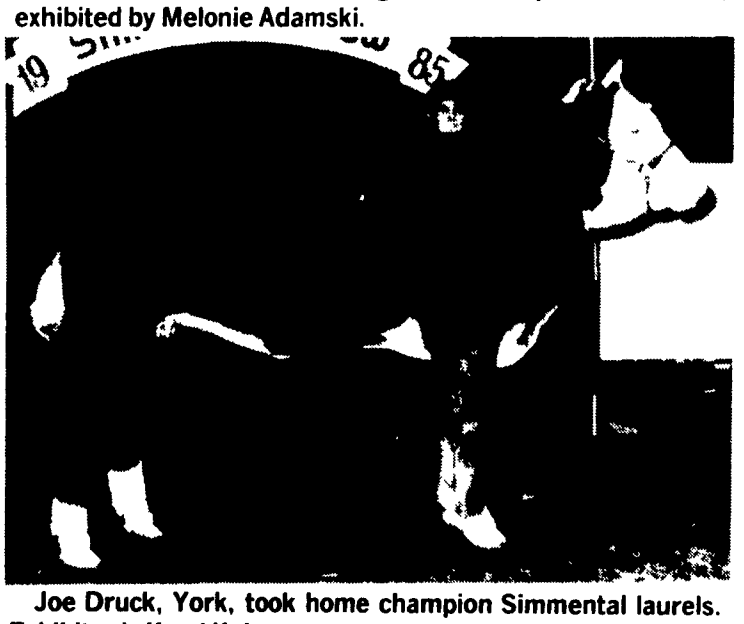
At the reserve spot was Windcrest Miss Josie, owned by Lori Cash, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Erskine Cash of Centre Hall.



Champion Chianina honors went to Lauxmont's Lacy J, owned by Jamie Kohr, York.

John Hausner of Dover, York Co., had champion Hereford heifer.

Kenianne Rarick of Reading, had champion Shorthorn, exhibited by Melonie Adamski.



Joe Druck, York, took home champion Simmental laurels. Exhibitor is Kerri Kohr.

Adams County fruit wins at Farm Show

GETTYSBURG – The Adams County Fruitgrowers Association and Mt. View Fruit Farms of Quaker Valley took top honors at the state Farm Show in Harrisburg. Five other individual orchard operations also took honors.

Winning the county exhibit competition for the 3rd consecutive year, the County Exhibit was praised by Judge Jerry Frecon, Extension pomologist from New Jersey, for uniformity in size, color and quality of fruit plus the educational value of the exhibit. The exhibit was organized and developed by a committee of some 30 growers headed by James Bucher of Bendersville, who is also president of the fruitgrowers association.

Apples for the county exhibit were provided by Garrsetson Orchards, Bendersville; Hollabaugh Bros. Fruit Farms, Biglerville; Paul Lerew Orchards, York Springs; Pleasant Valley Fruit farms, R1 Biglerville; Mt. View Fruit Farms, R1 Biglerville.

Mt. View Fruit Farms, owned and operated by the Donald Trostle family, won most of the awards presented to individual orchards at this year's show. Working under the direction of Michael and Laura Trostle, the orchards took some 53 apple and peare exhibits to the show.

Showing a superior quality of Stayman, Mt. View Fruit Farms won the Best-of-Class award in the bushel, half-bushel, peck and overwrap tray competition. The peck exhibit or Consumer Package in the 8 to 12 pound class was also given the Best of Show Award, a gold rosette ribbon for the outstanding exhibit of apples among the Best of Class Award Winners.

Mt. View Fruit Farms went on to win Best of Class Awards for Best Overwrap Tray with Rome Beauty; Best Plate of 5 apples with Golden Deli ious; and Best Plate of 5 Pears ith Bosc. In total they won 35 .st places, 10 second place, 8 third, 2 fourth place and 2 fifth place awards. They also showed the first place Gift Package.

Undaunted by the fact that he had a poor apple crop in 1984, Billy Brent of R2 Fairfield entered exhibits in this year's Farm Show and won 33 awards.

David E. Pitzer, R1 Biglerville, won first place in the half-bushel and peck classes with Delicious. Other individual exhibitors and award winners included James Bucher, Bendersville; Hollabaugh Bros. Fruit Farms of R1 Biglerville, and James Lerew of R1, Gardners.

For showing the best bushels of apples in the Farm Show, Mt. View Fruit Farms will receive the State Horticultural Association Award to be presented on Tuesday, Jan. 29 during the association's annual meeting in Hershey.

The Adams County Fruitgrowers Association was named winner of the Gabriel Heister Award for having the largest number of members exhibiting fruit at the Farm Show with the greatest total score on winnings. There were 461 fruit exhibits in the 1985 Farm Show, an increase of 60 over 1984.

Milking Shorthorn

Being brought up with a show string, Christine had no trouble leading her senior yearling, Three Springs Angie D, and her junior yearling, Three Springs Stardust, like a pro.

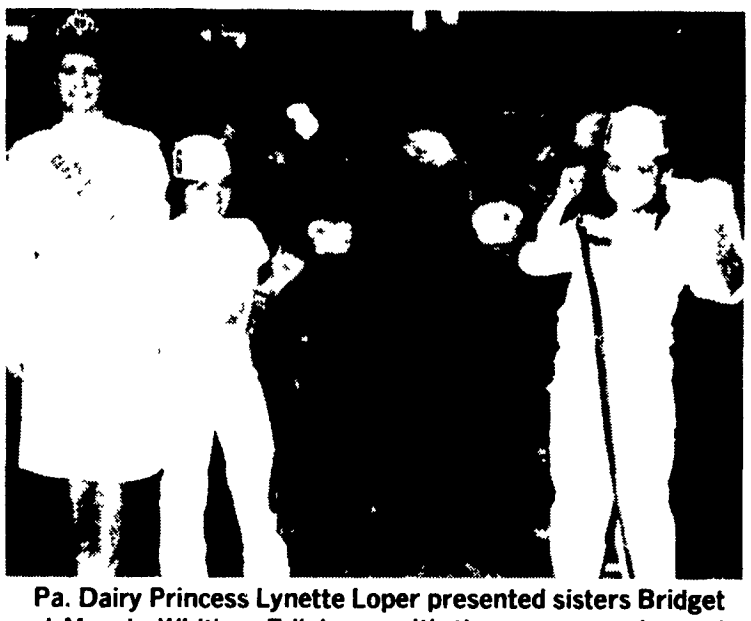
James Young began his show days in 1958 as a 4-H member at the Farm Show, and now he is starting to retrace his childhood steps through the activities of his own children.

Two sisters from Lawrence County shared the limelight when they led their entries to the youth division grand and reserve grand championships.

Maggie Whiting, now in her third year of 4-H led Lady Julia K, while Bridget Whiting, a year younger pulled in Sandy River Elaine. This is the first year for the Whiting sisters to show at the Farm Show.

In other placings, Don Keiter, a recent new buyer into the Milking Shorthorn breed, showed the first place senior calf.

Following are the top three placings in the open and youth division classes of the Milking Shorthorn show.



Pa. Dairy Princess Lynette Loper presented sisters Bridget and Maggie Whiting, Edinburg, with the reserve and grand championship awards for the youth division of the Milking Shorthorn show.

Pa. Brown Swiss Assoc. honors production winners

HARRISBURG — High production awards were presented to Pa. Brown Swiss breeders at the Farm Show Complex this week. Six dairy families were honored during the meeting of the Pa. State Brown Swiss Breeders Assoc., Tuesday Jan. 15.

Among the herds over 25 animals, Donald B. Trimble earned the first place milk production award. His herd of 40 cows produced 15,059 lbs. milk and 634 lbs. fat.

Earning first place for butterfat was William R. Daubert. His 97 cow herd produced 645 lbs. fat and 14,885 lbs. milk. Second place for both milk and fat in the large herd category were Dean and Brenda Daubert, with a herd average on 37 cows of 14,959 lbs. milk and 642 lbs. fat.

For herds under 25 animals, Delaware Valley College placed first in milk and butterfat with 16,394 lbs. milk and 731 lbs. fat on 10 cows.

Second place for milk went to Kerry and Deborah Boyd, with 15,309 lbs. of milk and 592 lbs. fat from 14 cows. The second place fat award went to Richard L. Heilinger. His herd of 21 animals produced 14,940 lbs. milk and 630 lbs. fat.

William Daubert also was honored for two outstanding individual cows. Wind Mill Tansy placed first in the state for butterfat and second for milk with a year's average of 25,522 lbs. milk, 4.0 percent test, with 1028 lbs fat.

Another Daubert cow, Wind Mill Alaric Regina, earned first place in the milk category with 25,811 lbs. milk, 3.8 percent test, and 979 lbs. fat.

The second place individual cow for butterfat production was Hi Lawn Natalie Nan, owned by Dean and Brenda Daubert. Nan produced 22,731 lbs. milk and 1026 lbs. fat at 4.5 percent test.

All of the winners received high production award plaques from the Pa. Brown Swiss Assoc. for their 1984 records.

Pa. Brown Swiss Assoc. seeks '85 memberships

MIFFLINTOWN — Membership applications are now being accepted by the Pa. Brown Swiss Breeders' Association. Numerous benefits are gained with membership in the Association, says Audrey L. Queitzsch, secretary-treasurer of the state association.

"Swiss membership brings recognition to youth and adult through their programs, and state and national members can register animals at reduced rates," says Queitzsch. "Best of all, there is the fellowship."

Annual membership fees for 1985 range from $1 to $15. Junior members can join for only $1, and other fees vary according the number of Brown Swiss cattle owned: For breeders with 10 or fewer Swiss - $10; 11 to 20 Swiss - $12.50; and for 21 or more - $15. Associate members can join the Association for $5.

For more information or to become a member of the Pa Brown Swiss Breeders' Assoc. contact. Audrey L. Queitzsch, R.D. 2, Box 312, Mifflintown, PA 17059.

Shorthorn

With only one other exhibitor to challenge them, Woodside Farm of Waynesburg, Greene County, romped through the Shorthorn show, garnering grand and reserve champion titles in both the bull and heifer shows, as well as being named premier exhibitor and breeder.

Judge Jim Gillooly picked Woodside VCS Cinty 2nd as his champion female and Woodside Red Warrior as his champion bull. Both winners were sired by Woodside Clyde, a previous Farm Show champion.

Owned by Bradley Eisminger, Woodside has been in the Shorthorn business since 1893, making it the third oldest continuously operating Shorthorn Farm in the nation.

Hereford

This division belonged to Earl and William Renner of Wanyesburg, Greene County, the sole Hereford exhibitors.

Judge Jerey Ballard named RF269 Domino his champion heifer. A homebred heifer, she was sired by CH1 Domino 269, a Montana bull that the Renners campaigned successfully to the grand champion spot in last year's Farm Show.

The champion bull was CH1 Domino 3002, a bull that has been winning his class, "about everywhere we've shown him," said Renner.

Chianina

Messick Farms of Middletown, Dauphin County, took home both champion heifer and bull honors in this division.

Michael Messick's bull named Stan was chosen top bull by judge Dan Eversole. Sired by Pure Black, the winner is an AI calf out of one of Messick's cows.

MF Miss Dynamite R38, owned by Patricia Messick, was the show's top female. Sired by Messick's own Dynamo Jet Set, the heifer was calf champion at last year's Farm Shw.

For the first time in her show career, Lauxmont Lacy J., owned by Jamie Kohr of York, was dethroned. The Ino daugher was relegated to the reserve heifer champion spot.

Another Ino-sired Chianina, Lauxmont's Legend, took reserve honors in the bull show. He is owned by Lauxmont Farms of Wrightsville, York County.

Simmental

Judge Jerry Ballard named Shoemaker's Master Charger his grand champion Simmental bull.

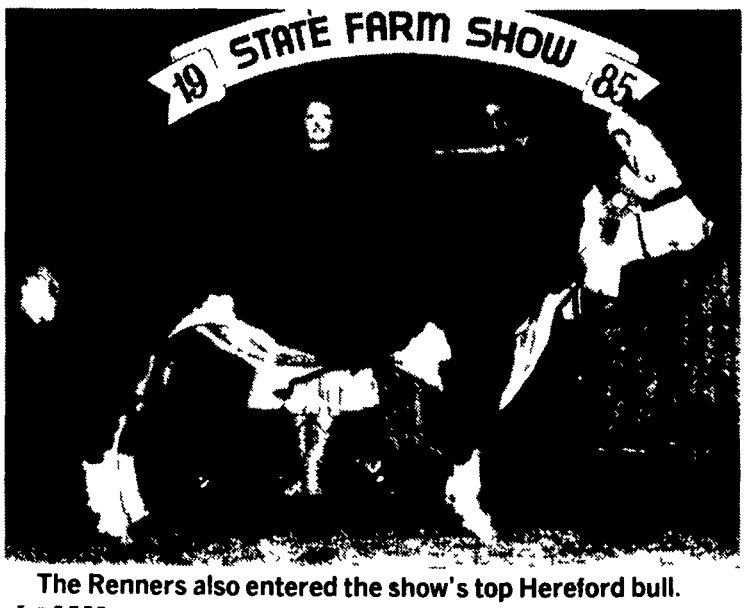
Owned by William E. Shoemaker of Buffalo Mills, Bedford County, this embryo transfer calf was sired by Super Charger, out of one of Shoemaker's own cows, Achilles Princess 1H.

Along with his champion bull win, Shoemaker also took home the premier breeder and premier exhibitor awards, duplicating his performance at last year's Farm Show.

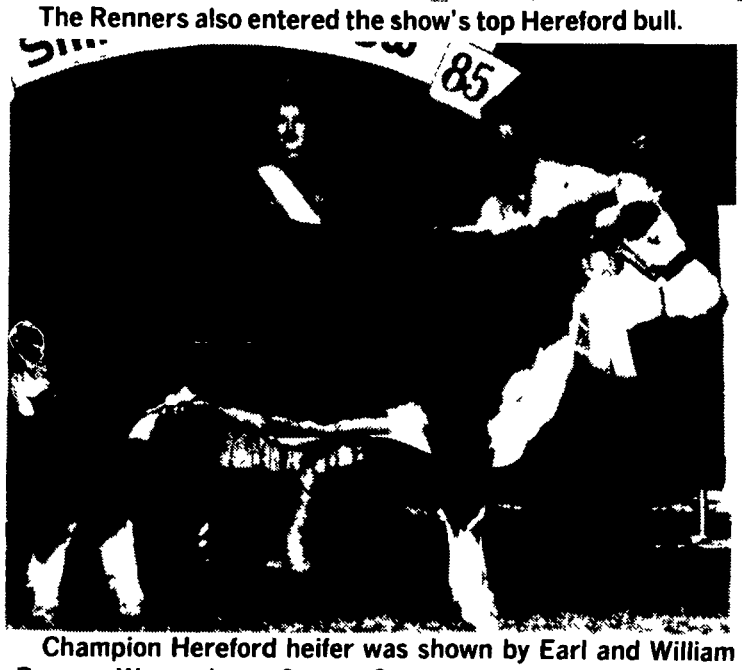
The champion Simmental heifer was owned by Harold Schneider of Rolling Ridge Farm, Butler County. Sired by the Select Sires bull, Formula Ten, RRF Jenna R10 was last year's reserve calf champion.

Reserve champion bull honors also went to Rolling Ridge Farm with RRF Franco. Sired by RRF Superstar Sam, both Fanco's sire and dam were raised at Rolling Ridge.

The reserve champion Simmental heifer was last year's calf champion, owned by Joseph Druck of York. She was also named grand champion at the 1984 Keystone International.

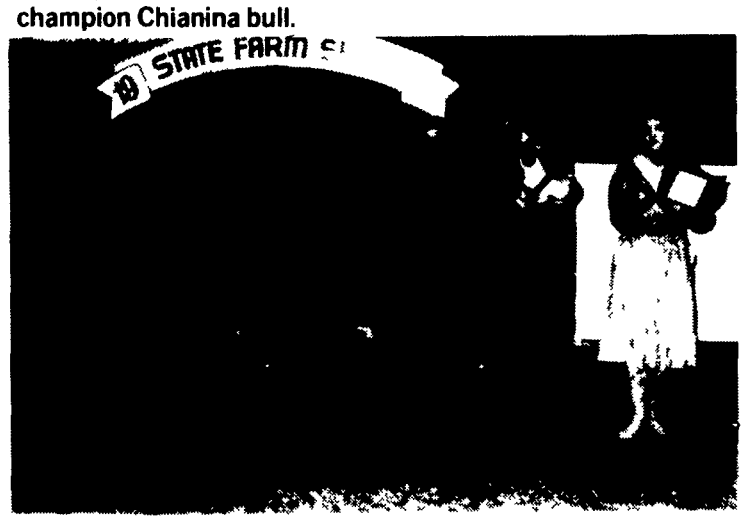


The Renners also entered the show's top Hereford bull.



Champion Hereford heifer was shown by Earl and William Renner, Waynesburg, Greene County.

Patty Messick, Messick Farms, was the owner of the champion Chianina bull.



Champion Chianina honors went to Messick Farms of Middletown, Dauphin County.

'Farm Family of Year'

exhibition at the show and other agriculture-related events at the complex.

Daniel Brubaker, who is 72, showed his first sample of sure crop corn at the 1931 Farm Show, before the Farm Show complex was even built. Since then he has expanded over the years to other classifications, including tobacco, fruit, honey and nuts. He took a blue ribbon in corn competition again this year.

Mrs. Brubaker hasn't exhibited for the past few years, but she put up some of the finest jams and canned goods in the state while exhibiting at the show every year from 1934 through 1974. Together, she and her husband have won more than 50,000 ribbons in county fairs and Farm Show competition.

The Brubakers' son Clyde, of Lancaster, began exhibiting at the Farm Show in 1947. He and his wife, Dorothy Stehman Brubaker, met through 4-H activities and now own Blue Acre Farm in Lancaster, where they raise sheep and beef cattle. The couple has won a total of nine champion and six reserve champion awards between them in livestock competition.

Clyde and Dorothy's son Ken and daughter Sarah make up the third generation in this farm family. Sarah is married to Timothy Fleener, a sheepman from Indiana. The couple live at Blue Acre Farm and added to the family's blue ribbon collection again this year with their Hampshire sheep. This year, Sarah and Tim took their six-month old son, Kyle Fleener (Daniel and Amy's great-grandson) to what they expect will be the first of many Farm Shows for him.

Four generations of Brubakers were on hand at Farm Show ceremonies when the Lancaster County family was presented the 1985 Farm Family of the Year award. Daniel and Amy Brubaker, R1 Ephrata, are in front. Behind them (left to right) are their son and daughter-in-law, Clyde and Dorothy Brubaker; their daughter and son-in-law, Gloria and Lee Schober; their grandson and his wife, Ken and Ginger Brubaker; and (at far right) their granddaughter and her husband, Sarah and Tim Fleener, with their infant son Kyle.

Sarah's brother Ken and his wife Ginger live in West Chester, where Ken goes to college and works in agribusiness. Ginger also grew up on a farm.

While Clyde Brubaker is the only one of Amy and Daniel's children actively engaged in farming, all their offspring grew up in 4-H and won ribbons at Farm Show. Their daughter Gloria and her husband, Lee Schober, are both school teachers in Lancaster County now and Gloria remains an avid gardener. Their youngest son, Daniel, is a pathologist at Oklahoma City University Hospital in Oklahoma.

"It's quite thrilling," Amy Brubaker said of the award her family won. It's the second big event that's happened to her and Daniel in less than 12 months, she said—the couple celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary last February.

"We have three generations in Farm Show," she added. "We're proud of our family."

Farm Show Winners

4-H ENTOMOLOGY

Melissa Slagle of Third Avenue, Duncansville, Blair County, captured first place in 4-H entomology classes for first-year members at the 69th Farm Show. Winner for second-year members was Edward Royer of RD 4, Lebanon, who also was a first place winner at last year's Farm Show.

Charles Carbaugh, III, of RD 2, McConnellsburg, Fulton County, won first place in competition for third year members, while Sylvia Royer of RD 4, Lebanon, took first place for fourth and fifth year members.

CARCASS LAMBS

Barbara Herr of RD 2, Narvon, Lancaster County, exhibited the grand champion carcass lamb at the 69th Farm Show. The reserve champion was exhibited by Joyce Witt of Altoona, Blair County.

Society 35 is newest addition to Lancaster Co. Farm Women

BY SALLY BAIR
Staff Correspondent

NEW PROVIDENCE — Members of Lancaster County's newest Farm Women Society, #35, have celebrated their first anniversary as a group. Members agree that the first year, while not without difficulties, was one of growing and learning together.

The impetus for forming the group came mainly from Joan Dean, a "die-hard farm girl," who wanted to get to know other women in her age group interested in farming. New to the Strasburg area since her marriage to Gary, she knew of Farm Women through Gary's mother, and felt it would be a good way to make new friends. She recalls, "I had always heard a lot of good things about Farm Women."

Joan searched out societies and had her name on a waiting list to join one for five years. She and eight others were on a list but couldn't join because the society had reached its self-imposed limit, made necessary because the groups meet in homes which cannot accommodate large groups.

Society #34 was formed in the Quarryville area by some of those on the waiting list, and Joan thought there was a need closer to home. She found others who wanted to join a group with young women who would share similar interests.

Getting commitments was not easy at first because of people's busy schedules, but Joan persevered. She says with a laugh, "I knew everyone in the group but no one knew each other." As the common denominator, it was natural that Joan became president when the group was formally organized. She said the phone calls began almost a year before the group actually formed.

Pat Ranck, Lancaster, now secretary of the group, recalls, "The original reason we thought about starting a society though there were already a lot of societies, is that we felt there weren't a lot in our own age group. Many of us are offspring of older members. My mother is a member so I heard a lot about it, and I think that was the biggest influence." Pat says one of the hardest things was telling women about it who were not at all familiar with the group.

Lory Hess, Strasburg R1, was also instrumental in starting the group and gives her reasons for wanting the group to organize. "I was new to the Strasburg area, and I wanted to get to know women my own age and to meet other people in farming." Lory and her husband, Rick, are in dairying.

Joann Herr, left, and Dot Frey are brushing with great concentration as they work on stencil projects. Both members of Farm Women Society, 35, they were trying the new technique at one of their regular monthly meetings.

About half of the members are actively involved in farming, and most are involved in agri-business in some way. "We all live in the same neck of the woods," one member explained.

Deb Welk, who lives on a dairy farm, near Quarryville, says she knew about Farm Women from her mother-in-law and pointed out, "It's a nice opportunity to meet new girls. I only knew one other person in the group."

Having begun with what Joan refers to as "unlucky 13," the group now numbers 16. Though they will eventually limit their membership, they are still encouraging visitors to their meetings in hope of getting more young women interested. Pat Ranck says, "One of our goals is to encourage new members."

It has been a year of rewarding experiences for the group and as they met recently they agreed that they enjoy the programs, but perhaps just as much, they enjoy the fellowship. Joan points out, "We've had a whole year of fellowship. It's amazing."

Rachel Thomas, New Providence, said, "I knew some of the girls before, and I thought it would be fun to get out and do different things. Being out with other women helps, and I probably wouldn't do some of these things on my own."

Joan Dean, left, president of Society 35, looks over the agenda with vice-president Lory Hess. The two Strasburg area women were instrumental in organizing Lancaster County's newest Farm Women society.

Another member, Kandy Rohrer, Ronks, says quite candidly, "I had just had a baby when they called me, and I needed to get out." Her feelings are echoed by Debbie Wimer, Quarryville R4, who said, "I joined to get out of the house, and to meet women in my own age group. Here everybody has the same interests. I saw that they had nice programs and it made me want to join."

Indeed, sharing interests is one of the delights of the group. Many have been married only a few years, and most are just starting their families, so they share the joys and concerns of that stage of life.

Linda Rudy, a visitor who plans to join, said, "It's nice to get away from the children." Another visitor, Judy Landis, adds "I think I'm going to join. I enjoy the fellowship and getting togeth with other women."

Phyllis Brubaker, Quarryvill R2, another one of the origin members says, "I knew Joan an she called and asked if I wanted t join. "It's nice to just get out f the evening."

Joan Hershey, county Far Women president, says tha membership is a priority both o the state level and on the county. She explained, "It is a priority t encourage younger members t become involved." She feels it i important not just to start ne societies but also to get younge members in existing societies. Sh said, "For any new or existin society it must be a time of suppor and we must keep helping on another."

Kandy Rohrer, left, Deb Welk, center, and Marilyn Walters make plans for the next meeting of Farm Women Society 35. With most members living near the Strasburg area, Society 35 is the newest of the county's Farm Women Societies, whose total membership is nearly 1,000.

countywide membership which is hovering near 1,000. But there are some societies whose futures are in jeopardy because of the increased ages of members who have sustained the groups through the years.

Former county president Fran Sauder worked with the new society members when they first discussed the possibility of forming a new group. She recalls, "Many of them had mothers or other relatives who were members. They took their time and thought it through and I appreciated that."

She added, "It is always rewarding to have a group continuing what has been started so many years ago. It is a nice tribute and it is exciting when you have them following in the steps of earlier members." Members of Society 35 expressed gratitude to Fran for the advice and encouragement she provided during the formative months.

After a year, Joan Dean looks at her term as president philosophically. "It was a new experience for me. I'm growing as a leader. It's been a lot of work, but I think it's a great thing and I've learned a lot from it."

Joan said she is looking forward to the time when the society can be supportive within the community.

For the members of Society 35, the first year has provided them not just with some enriching educational experiences through their programs, but also with a great deal of fellowship and expanded friendships.

It is clear that the group is upholding the stated purpose of Farm Women, which is "to contribute to the power and influence of Farm Women: and to develop leadership and to promote better farm homes of Pennsylvania." This along with the motto, "For Happiness," is being practiced in abundance within Society 35.

THE MICRO WAY

LANI BLOOMER

Cheesecake, the Micro Way

If you need a super dessert for a special occasion, make a cheesecake in your microwave. It is easy, fast, and delicious. It will not be browned, like one baked in the oven, but the pale filling looks pretty against the dark, spiced graham cracker crust. If you like to put a topping on your cheesecakes, no one can tell it isn't browned. Microwave cheesecakes have a lighter fluffier texture than oven baked ones, giving them a rich, yet light taste.

Cheesecakes are like custard-type pies, in that you may have a problem getting the center cooked before the outside edges get overcooked. To avoid this, you could use low power and cook these desserts a long time like you do in a range oven.

There is, however, an easy way to shorten the cooking time. Partially cook the filling in a glass bowl or 8 cup measure before pouring it into the crust. Use high power and stir frequently, until the filling is hot and starts to thicken. Then pour it in the crust to complete the cooking. When cooking the filling in the crust, use medium power (50,5) and cook until the center is almost set and jiggles like jello.

Any custard-type pie can be cooked this way in your microwave, but the times will vary slightly depending on the moisture content of each recipe. The recipe below will give you an idea of the time it takes for each step.

The Micro Way Cheesecake

Crust:
1 cup fine graham cracker crumbs
1/4 cup butter or margarine
2 tablespoons sugar
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
1/4 teaspoon cinnamon

1. Melt butter on high for 1 minute in a 9-inch glass pie plate. Stir in sugar, spices and crumbs. Press mixture evenly on bottom and sides of dish.

2. Microwave on high for 2 minutes to set crust. Set aside to cool.

Filling:
2 8-oounce package cream cheese
3/4 cup sugar
4 eggs
2 tablespoons lemon juice

1. Put cream cheese in a 2-quart glass bowl and microwave on medium (50) for 1-2 minutes to soften.

2. Add sugar to cream cheese and beat until light and fluffy. Add eggs and lemon juice and beat until smooth.

3. Heat filling for 4 minutes on high, stirring every minute, until it is hot and slightly thickened. Stir until smooth and pour into the cooled crust.

4. Cook cheesecake on medium (50) for 8-10 minutes until the center is almost firm. If your oven cooks unevenly, rotate the cheesecake every 3-4 minutes. The center will be soft, and should jiggle like Jello, when the cheesecake has cooked enough. The center becomes more firm when chilled.

5. If you are planning to put a topping on the cheesecake, cool completely before spreading the topping on. Chill several hours or overnight before serving. Serve plain, or with one of the following toppings.

Plain Topping: Mix 1 cup sour cream with 1-2 tablespoons sugar and 1/4 teaspoon vanilla. Spread over cooled cheesecake and refrigerate overnight.

Strawberry Topping
1 (10-ounce) package frozen strawberries
3 tablespoons cornstarch
1/3 cup sugar
1/4 cup water

1. Put frozen strawberries in a 2-cup measure and thaw on high for 2 minutes.

2. Stir in remaining ingredients and cook on high for 2-3 minutes until thickened.

3. Spread over cooled cheesecake and chill overnight before serving.

Note: The times given above are for microwave ovens with 600-700 watts of power. For 500-600 W add 10 seconds for each minute; for 400-500 W add 20 seconds for each minute.

Add rice to your menus

Demanding schedules which leave less time for meal preparation naturally rely on easy and fast foods. Rice is one of these "fast foods" that is nutritious, delicious and versatile.

Rice can be served plain or can be added to economical skillet and one-dish meals. It's also great as a salad ingredient.

Brown rice, an important source of valuable vitamins, minerals and fiber, is the choice of nutrition-conscious consumers, and can be incorporated into many tasty dishes.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Despite what I feel is an already busy schedule, I've again consented to being an active deacon in my church. Previously, I served for five continuous years and kept the office records of our large congregation.

There are 18 on the Board of Deacons but even so there are more than enough jobs for everyone. There were over 1,800 people at the two Christmas Eve services. And, preparing for 1,000 to take communion is no small task– plus cleaning up everything afterwards really shortens one's Sunday afternoon.

We have a "tape ministry" whereby the sermon is taped and then loaned or sold to members. Many times there will be a "coffee" between the two services and here again some of the deacons are in charge of setting up tables and serving the coffee or fruit juice.

Our "reach out" department covers several areas such as "one to one visitations," transporting people to church, serving meals to bereaved families and a prayer chain for those who are ill.

An old folks home is visited regularly and movies are shown. There is also a "blood bank" that is administered by a deacon who in addition has charge of a number of sickroom supplies. When my youngest daughter was an active deacon, she had charge of the pamphlet rack and ordered the religious books. Some are sold and some lent.

The person who handles the hundreds of Easter lilies given as memorials and the Christmas poinsettias has their hands full. Many of them are delivered to shut-ins after the services. Of course there are committees such as a nominating one and a financial one. Another person is responsible for a number of garden plots on the church property. And, I haven't even mentioned the special Youth Projects nor the Christian Social Ministry.

Me, I've volunteered to be photographer for the 100 or more new members that join our church in four different classes each year. Their pictures are posted so that the other members will connect a name with a face. We also honor them with white carnations which I will order.

Much U.S. soil belongs to foreign investors

WASHINGTON — Kiawah Island clings close to America's Atlantic shore along the South Carolina coast. But all 3,500 acres of it are owned by an oil-rich government 7,000 miles away.

Kuwait purchased the sub-tropical barrier island 10 years ago for $17 million and has developed it into a luxurious resort.

In Pecos County, Texas, two French wine companies are growing grapes on a thousand acres of grazing land leased from the University of Texas.

Nearly 950 acres of Somerset County, N.J., belong to Morocco's King Hassan II.

A Saudi Arabian prince recently purchased more than 7,000 acres of agricultural land in northwestern Georgia.

Mostly Forest Land

Whether the investors are giant paper, oil, and coal companies or wealthy individuals, more U.S. soil is in foreign hands today than ever before in this century.

Foreign ownership of U.S. agricultural lands, which include all lands that are not public, urban, or transportation-related, has almost doubled in the last five years (the first years for which the federal government has kept records of foreign ownership). Individuals and corporations from at least 100 political divisions own pieces of U.S. terrain. More than half of them are forest lands.

Foreign investment in U.S. real estate–notably downtown office complexes, shopping malls, and manufacturing plants–also has jumped. It rose from $588 million a decade ago to more than $5.9 billion at the end of 1982, the Commerce Department reports.

Despite the increases and the fact that foreign holdings are considered greater than statistics disclose, U.S. land is still far from being sold away.

The 13.7 million acres of agricultural land–farm, range, pasture, and forest–reported in foreign ownership at the end of 1983, represent slightly more than one percent of all U.S. agricultural land, according to the Agriculture Department.

Sixty-three percent of the land listed as foreign-owned is actually controlled by U.S. corporations with at least five percent foreign ownership. The Agricultural Foreign Investment Disclosure Act of 1978 requires such corporations to report their holdings.

Alarm Spurred Law

"The law casts a wide net. Land with one tree on it, for example, is classified as forest or timber land," explains J. Peter DeBraal, an Agriculture Department attorney responsible for annual foreign ownership reports.

The disclosure law was passed at a time when some Americans had become alarmed that too much of their native soil was passing into foreign control. The big buy-up of U.S. land had started in the early 1970s–spurred by the declining value of the dollar, fear of instability in Europe, and the belief that real estate in one of the world's most stable societies was a safer investment. Advertisements offering acres of the United States for sale appeared in European newspapers.

Land sales apparently peaked in 1981 and have increased at a slower rate since, says DeBraal. Investments in land are generally long-term. Foreign investment in U.S. real estate, while still growing, also has been "less fast-paced over the last two years," says Joel Goldfrank, an executive vice president of Eastdil Realty in New York, which handles many such transactions.

Most foreign-owned agricultural land belongs to individuals and corporations from five countries or dependencies: Canada, the United Kingdom, Hong Kong, West Germany, and the Netherlands Antilles. Other leading investors are from Mexico, Japan, Switzerland, Panama, the Netherlands, and Liechtenstein.,

People in Liechtenstein own more land in the United States than there is land in Liechtenstein itself. Places like Liechtenstein, the Netherlands Antilles, and Switzerland often do not reflect true ownership of land. People wanting to keep their investments secret like to work through these "identity havens."

All but Rhode Island

Some foreign-owned agricultural land has been reported in every state except the smallest, Rhode Island, according to the latest Agriculture Department statistics.

Maine has more foreign-owned land–2.7 million acres–than any other state. Nearly all of it is forest land owned by three large timber companies.

Otherwise, foreign holdings are concentrated in the South and West. Georgia, Texas, California, Alabama, Florida, and South Carolina have the most. Although its land area is small, Hawaii has a high percentage of foreign ownership.

States vary greatly in how much agricultural land they will allow foreigners to own. Some, such as Maine and Texas, have an open-door policy with no restrictions.

Thirty states put some legal limits on foreign ownership. Some prohibit only "enemy aliens" from buying land. Others set acreage or time limits, some of them highly restrictive.

One of the strictest, Iowa, generally prohibits foreigners from owning agricultural land, but exempts smaller parcels that will be used for non-farming purposes within five years. "If Toyota wants to put a factory in a cornfield, that would be permissible," DeBraal notes.

In 1975, Iowa became the first state to require foreign owners to report their holdings.

In Mississippi, where non-resident aliens are generally not permitted to acquire land, there are a few exceptions. One exempts citizens of Syria and Lebanon who inherit Mississippi land. The laws of no other states directly address the people of these two countries. "We have significant Syrian and Lebanese communities," explains a state official.

Make a Flake!

You can have "snow" any time of the year. All you have to do is cut two circles the size of a nickel from some heavy paper. Cover one of the circles with glue. Then lay some toothpicks on the circle (see drawings). Glue another circle on top when the design is complete. Cut some more toothpicks into small pieces and glue them across the others. Use thread to hang the flake from a tree or in a window. You can make enough snowflakes for a flurry or a blizzard! Created by Peter Hamilton Kent

Ladies Have You Heard?

Prevent Static Electricity

You walk briskly across the room, reach for the door knob and ZAP! Static electricity is annoying and it's particularly common during the winter months.

One way to control static electricity is to install a humidifier or place pans of water on radiators. Another is to spray the carpet with an anti-static agent. This will not be a permanent solution as it is slowly removed by the soles of shoes, but should last during the heating season.

If static electricity becomes noticeable before spring, apply more anti-static agent. You may notice a build-up of more dirt, as some agents are sticky and cause soil to adhere to the carpet.

A carpet retailer should be able to supply an anti-static agent that will not increase soiling.

One final note: If you are in the market for new carpeting, ask about the anti-static finishes. These are becoming more common on all grades of carpeting.

Homemade Soup Nutritious And Low Cost

One of the good things about the "good old days" was homemade soup. Soup can be an easy way to make sure your family gets a nutritious meal at little cost.

Serve broth from cooked beans, meat bones, bits of cabbage, celery and even lettuce instead of throwing out the few vegetables left in the serving dish, toss them into the soup pot. Fill out the soup with the extras from [illegible] barley, noodles or spaghetti. If fresh vegetables are in short supply, add frozen vegetables.

That "fine kettle of soup" can also be good for calorie-counters. There are several ways to remove the fat that collects during cooking. The easiest ways to chill the soup and remove the solid layer of fat from the top.

If you can't wait to cool the soup put an ice cube in a cloth and move it around just under the surface of the soup to collect the rising fat. Another suggestion is to float a paper towel on top of the soup. Throw out the towel when it has absorbed as much fat as it will hold.

If you are cooking for one or two, prepare a kettle full of your favorite soup and store a serving or two in the refrigerator for tomorrow, but freeze the rest in quantities of one or two servings.

Never Store Fruit Juice In Open Cans

Fruit juice stored in tin cans may be hazardous to your health. The hazard is lead poisoning. It's a problem when you store juice in its original tin can. Three South Carolina children were recently treated for lead poisoning and investigators believe the opened can of orange juice they found in the refrigerator was to blame. Tin cans are perfectly safe before they are opened. It is afterwards that the lead residue can increase to possibly dangerous levels. Transfer fruit juice and other acidic food, from tin to glass or plastic containers after opening.

Delaware public speaking winners named

NEWARK, Del. — Winners have been named in the Delaware 4-H public speaking contest. The statewide event was held recently in Dover in conjunction with State Grange Youth Night.

The top junior and senior participants from each county were evaluated on subject, supporting information, organization, use of language, delivery and mechanics.

Thirteen-year-old Nancy Walsh of Greenville took top honors in the junior division with "The Three Bs," a talk highlighting the lives of classical musicians Bach, Brahms and Beethoven. Second place winner in this division was Jason Powell, Dover, with "The Great Houdini." Bridgeville 4-H'er Jennifer Messick placed third with "My Dream Come True," her account of how she became a cheerleader.

In the senior division 16-year-old Bambi Biggs, Viola, won the first place trophy with "Alcohol and Teens." Russell Carlisle's presentation, "Gun Control," placed second, and a talk about a rock group, "The Police," by Andrew Durbin placed third.

Awards for the event were provided by the New Castle and Sussex 4-H Links, the 4-H honorary organization.

Take care of Christmas plants

STATE COLLEGE — People who were lucky enough to find indoor plants under the Christmask tree must know a thing or two about caring for their gifts, Penn State horticulturist J. Robert Nuss says. No matter how attractive these plants are during the holidays, their flowers are short-lived when brought into the home.

Nuss offers the following advice in caring for Christmas plants:

• For azaleas, make sure the plants are exposed to bright light or full sunlight. Keep them watered well all the time. Avoid direct heat or drafts on the open flowers, because this speeds the loss of moisture. Azaleas can be saved for use outdoors.

• Christmas begonias should be kept in full sunlight during the daytime, but they should be given cool temperatures at night. These plants are difficult to grow indoors, and should be discarded after the season.

• Christmas cactus plants need full sunlight and cool temperatures between 50 and 65 to preserve the open flowers and prevent the drop of formed buds. The flowers fail to open if the plants remain in temperatures above 70 for very long. This plant is not a true cactus, so it does need uniform levels of moisture. Christmas cactus plants can be a part of a permanent indoor collection.

• Christmas pepper plants are annual plants grown for their colorful fruit. Bright light and cool temperatures will slow the fruit drop indoors. When the plant's quality goes, so should the plant.

• Cineraria is another breed of plant to discard after flowering. It will hold for quite some time if given full sunlight, cool night temperatures and lots of water. The lower leaves will quickly yellow and wilt in low light and dry soils.

• Cyclamen plants like cooler temperatures to retain the flowers and forming buds in the crown of the plant. Full sunlight and uniformly moist soils are needed to keep the plant alive. Cyclamen plants can be saved for another season by gradually reducing the moisture after flowering. Keep them on the dry side until June, when they can be repotted and grown again.

• Jerusalem cherry plants are used during the holiday season for their colorful fruit that naturally drops after it ripens. The fruit will ripen slower in cooler temperatures and full sunlight. Once the fruit drops, discard the plant.

• Kalanchoe plants will hold their flowers in full sunlight. The soil must be uniformly moist or the flowers will drop early. These plants will make ideal permanent house plants for their foliage, but flowers in their second season are generally not as good as flowers in the first year.

• Poinsettias will hold most of their leaves and colorful red bracts for many weeks if given full light and cool night temperatures. For best results, keep the soil damp but not too wet. Poinsettias are bothered most often by extreme conditions — too low a light level, too hot or cold a temperature, too low or dry a humidity around the foliage.

Poinsettias can be kept from one season to the next. They make interesting foliage plants in the garden during the summer months. After the flowers and foliage decline in late winter, cut the top back to three or four buds to allow the plant to dry off slightly. As the weather warms, resume watering to grow new foliage for the summer. Flowering is induced in the fall by altering the amount of light the plant receives.

PSU wins food, ag fellowships

UNIVERSITY PARK — Penn State's departments of food science and agricultural engineering successfully competed in the 1984 USDA Food and Agricultural Sciences National Needs Graduate Fellowship program. Both departments are funded for three fellowships each to support new masters degree students in 1985.

The fellowships are part of the $5 million set aside in the 1984 Federal budget to support post-graduate education in agricultural science. They are awarded by the higher education programs of the Agricultural Research Service of the USDA.

Of the 147 proposals submitted for graduate fellowships, only 67 were funded and only eight other universities received awards for masters degree work in food science and agricultural engineering. Penn State received $64,000 under this program.

BIG CLOVER YIELDS?

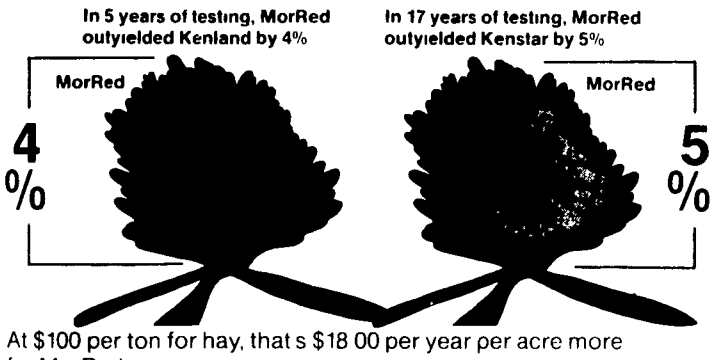
Plant MorRed.

MorRed Red Clover possesses the qualities that lead toward a top yielding, short rotation hay and grazing legume.

Combined resistance to both Northern and Southern Anthracnose
Northern and southern anthracnose can kill or greatly reduce the stand life of red clover

High resistance to powdery mildew
Contributes to early fade-out and reduces feed quality

Higher yield potential than Kenland or Kenstar



In 5 years of testing, MorRed outyielded Kenland by 4%
In 17 years of testing, MorRed outyielded Kenstar by 5%
MorRed
MorRed
4%
5%

At $100 per ton for hay, that s $18 00 per year per acre more for MorRed

Improved winterhardiness
The tougher a variety, the better chance the crop has to produce throughout its expected rotation

Vigorous growth and quick recovery
The higher the disease resistance, the better the chance for the crop to fully express its potential

Seeding versatility
MorRed Red Clover is ideal for No-till pasture and meadow seedings in old grass stands Alone for hay and pasture, MorRed can also be seeded in standing small grain or on an early prepared seed bed alone MorRed can be mixed seeded with grasses and small grains as part of a rotation or seeded in combination with other legumes—especially white clover along with grasses for hay and pasture Farmers find that when used as part of a rotation, red clover is helpful in building the nitrogen level for the grain fraction of the rotation

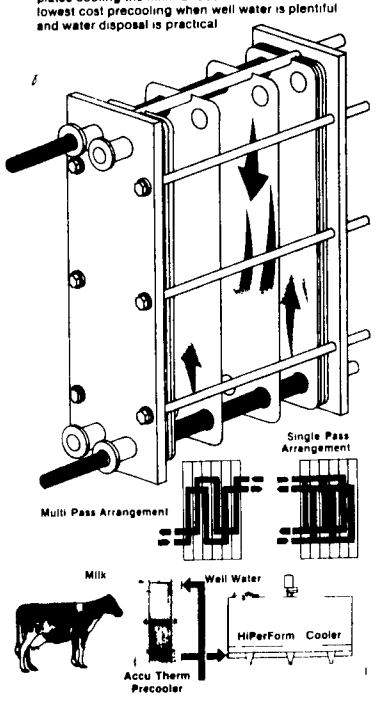
Mr. Dairyman If You Are Interested In Saving Energy Or If You Are Having A Cooling Problem, Please Call us For A No Obligation Demonstration

The Mueller Accu-Therm™ Precooler

... uses well water to precool your warm milk before it goes into your milk cooler!

In seconds 100 degree milk is cooled to within 15 to 20 degrees of well water temperature Milk flows between every other stainless steel heat exchanger plate while well water flows in the opposite direction on the other side of these plates cooling the milk Choose Accu Therm for lowest cost precooling when well water is plentiful and water disposal is practical



FOUR REASONS WHY YOU SHOULD HAVE A MUELLER ACCU-THERM PRECOOLER ON YOUR FARM!

1 Reduces Energy Cost
Milk from the cow is about 100 degrees F Precooling milk by 20 degrees shortens the time the milk cooler refrigeration system must operate by one third Precooling warm milk by 30 degrees will cut your milk refrigeration system operation in half A Mueller Accu Therm lowers your energy costs and reduces your operation expenses

2 Flexibility
The Accu Therm is available in wall mounted or floor models to fit any milking operation or space restriction As your dairy operation grows Accu Therm can be easily adapted to increased volume by adding heat exchanger plates This is a simple job requiring only a hand wrench and a few minutes and does not require moving the Accu Therm

3 Low Maintenance
The Accu Therm Plate Heat Exchanger is a closed system and can be quickly and efficiently cleaned in place with the rest of the milking system

4 Pays For Itself
The money you save in reduced energy costs will soon repay your investment in a Mueller Accu Therm milk precooler For example with 60 degree F well water for cooling milk temperature is lowered by 20 degrees and energy requirements are reduced one third The typical 5 HP milk cooler condensing unit uses approximately 5 kilowatts per hour of electricity

No Farm Show is complete without lots of food!

BY SALLY BAIR
Staff Correspondent

HARRISBURG — The Farm Show was a success! I write this without knowing if the traditional blizzard came, or who had the supreme champion, or how many thousands of people attended. I know it was a success for one reason - all that delicious, delightful, scrumptious food was there!

I must confess that for me the highlight of any Farm Show is the food, and that includes not only the famous baked potatoes, french fries and real milk shakes, but in recent years, the wonderful fried mushrooms and vegetable soup. It is indeed possible to eat your way through the Farm Show, and I look forward to that every year.

My children have quickly caught on that I care little for the imposing displays of advanced techonology, nor the intricate hand work, nor the beautifully-groomed animals. My interest in them lasts a decent, but short, interval and then I discreetly begin edging my way to the food stands.

As we deftly thread our way through the throngs of eager eaters, I pause only briefly when I realize that the dollar bills are going out at an alarming rate! It dawns on me that this greatest, most diverse, most educational of all "free" shows, is not free at all - it costs a small fortune for food. But it doesn't really matter because the taste of all those freshly prepared, real foods, make it worth every penny.

The really great thing about Farm Show is that you don't need to stop eating just because you run out of money. There is enough free food to keep your stamina up to wait in lines to buy more. On Sunday every conceivable commodity group is there offering sample of their particular specialty, from hard cooked eggs to tender morsels of veal.

Lena Stoltzfus displays a giant dill pickle on a stick. The pickles were available to Farm Show visitors at the Country Deli booth in the Food Marketplace. Lena said they will sell about 3,000 pickles throughout the week.

From that array of tasty samples, it is a short walk to the Pennsylvania Marketplace where there are more samples of cheeses, bolognas, cookies, maple cream, and every kind of snack food imaginable. After tasting highly seasoned potato and corn chips, my small group was really wishing to locate the closest cold drink vendor. It turned out, of course, that the closest cold drinks were being dispensed by Weis Markets, which offered fresh, cold, delicious milk. Milk never tasted so good and it was a fitting way to conclude our food orgy.

There is no doubt about it. Pennsylvania produces some of the best food anywhere, and a visit to the Farm Show is not complete without sampling all there is. And you don't need to stop with sampling - there's plenty to purchase to eat on the way home.

A tired and thirsty visitor enjoys a cup of free milk from Weis Markets, while Weis Market employee Marge Landon straightens some pamphlets that were also free to visitors. Marge and her co-workers pour about 220 to 240 gallons of milk a day in an effort to let people know that Weis Markets supports the farmer.

Families "Growing Better"

Many groups and organizations have tried to bring families together for a family event. But there is one big event that does it all and seemingly with the greatest of ease... the Farm Show!

The Farm Show is made up of literally hundreds of families working together to carry out this traditional event and many more families who visit the show together, spending a day climbing on the latest pieces of farm equipment, watching a livestock contest, touring exhibits, and of course, eating!

Farm Show was always a tradition in my family. The day would start with a quick breakfast and Dad conjuring up yet another way to get to the Farm Show building without getting stuck in all the traffic. However, we usually ended up waiting what seemed like hours in the traffic, with everyone's patience wearing thin and then traipsing through several inches of snow to get to the building.

We toured the main exhibition building first so that Dad could keep up on the latest farm trends, Mom could visit with the other farmer's wives who were waiting on their husbands, and my brother, sisters and I could climb on the biggest tractors and pick up all the free "stuff." Lunch was always a hoagie and cider, which was enjoyed in the comfort of the large arena. That's some of my memories of Farm Show. It was a fun day to be together.

The past several years as I have worked at the Farm Show I have seen this event from a little big different perspective. There are a lot of people working together to make the events happen, and many of these people are families working together. Not just farm families, but the "Extension Family" is in full force, too. This year a big change was entering the Family Living exhibits on the computer. This was an exciting accomplishment.

Seeing the families at Farm Show has reminded me of the strengths of our families in Pennsylvania. We've studied, researched and proven that a real strength of families is in doing things together. We have even developed programs and family time ideas to draw families together. But this one event, Farm Show, goes a long way in doing just that. After all, it's a family affair to carry in the show box, to shear the lamb, to get the dairy cow "dressed up" for the show, and to enter all the exhibits by the deadline.

There are many things to remember about Farm Show — the kinds of things that keep us coming back year after year. I like to remember the excitement of the children getting close to the cattle, ducks and big Percheron horses. And there are the fun times with co-workers who have gone the extra mile to get the radio shows out, the exhibits set-up, and the computer entries perfected. But most of all, I remember the families — the families who have spend time together... working together, winning and losing together, and building family strengths. And the result is not just agriculture-"growing better" but families "growing better" too!

Don't rush solid foods for your baby

NEWARK, DEL. - It used to be that babides were fed solid foods almost from birth. The trend is now changing.

Feeding solids early does not improve a baby's physical development, nor does it help a child sleep through the night, says Wendy Weckesser, a dietetics student working with Marguerite Krackhardt, Delaware Cooperative Extension Service home economist. In fact, the practice can be harmful.

Breast milk or formula with the recommended supplements meets a child's needs for the first six months of life. For the first three months, swallowing ability is poor, and infants rely solely on sucking for taking in milk. Most infants can handle only liquids during this period.

Before the age of six months, a baby's stomach can digest only breast milk or formula, and the kidneys are too immature to handle proteins and minerals found in solid foods. Feeding solids too early can result in food allergies, as well as obesity in later life.

Early introduction of solids leads also to frustration for parent and baby. Tiny infants tend to reject solid food, pushing it out of the mouth. And since the infants don't need the food, both the struggle and the expense are unnecessary. A pediatrician is the best judge of a baby's readiness for solid foods. Weckesser encourages parents to talk regularly to a baby's doctor about nutrition and menu planning.

In general, a baby's first solid food should be iron-fortified rice cereal mixed with breast milk or formula. Slowly, from the age of six to twelve months, a baby's diet will progress from strained fruits and vegetables, to pureed fruits and vegetables, strained meats, and finally chopped and pureed meats. At around twelve months of age, the baby should be eating bite-sized pieces of fruits, vegetables and meats that can be picked up with the fingers.

Introducing solid foods is not an easy task. Here are Weckesser's suggestions for helping feedings proceed more smoothly during the first year:

1. Hold the baby upright to aid swallowing and to enhance feelings of security.
2. Give very small amounts of any new food--a teaspoonful or even less at the beginning.
3. Introduce only one new food at a time. Allow the baby to bcome familiar with it before trying another. Watch for allergic reactions.
4. Offer foods of smooth, thin consistency first, then progress gradually to more solid foods as the baby learns to use the tongue to propel food to the back of the mouth. To make the process easier for the baby, use a small spoon and place the food on the middle of the tongue.
5. Never force an infant to eat more than he or she take willingly.
6. If, after several trials, it becomes apparent the baby dislikes a particular food, omit that food for a week or two and then try again. If the dislike continues, it's better to discontinue that food for awhile and try another.

Good news for candle makers

As the cost of everything, including electricity, goes up, people continue to look for new ways to save, conserve and recycle.

If you have been saving a collection of caning wax or old candles with the thought that someday you will melt it all down and make "something" here is good news. A detailed, four-page set of instructions plus a yard of wicking is being offered free by Pourette Manufacturing Co.

You will be able to save two ways – through recycling and on electric bills. And the romantic mood of candlelight is wonderful for these long winter nights.

The step-by-step instructions show you how to use equipment found in your own kitchen to create a variety of candles in different shapes and sizes.

Recycling wax does have some safety hazards so I would not recommend that you just give it a try without reading the warnings contained in this booklet. By reading and following the directions, however, you can be assured of a safe and satisfying candle-making project.

Also included in the booklet are suggestions for molds as well as techniques for marbleizing, using ice cubes, sand and container retained candles. There are tips, too, for decorating store-bought and homemade candles with recycled wax.

To receive your free booklet, Introductory Instructions to Candle Making, and a yard of sicking, send a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Pourette Manufacturing Co., P.O. Box 15220, Seattle, WA 98155.

Also good news for candle makers is Quick Dry Glaze, new from Barker Enterprises. This glaze is used on candles to impart a bright, shiny finish. What makes this such a wonderful product is that it takes only 15 to 30 minutes to dry and is applied simply by dunking the candle into the glaze. Ask for it at your local craft store or write for more information to: Barker Enterprises, 15106 10th Ave., Seattle, WA 98166.

Solid foods

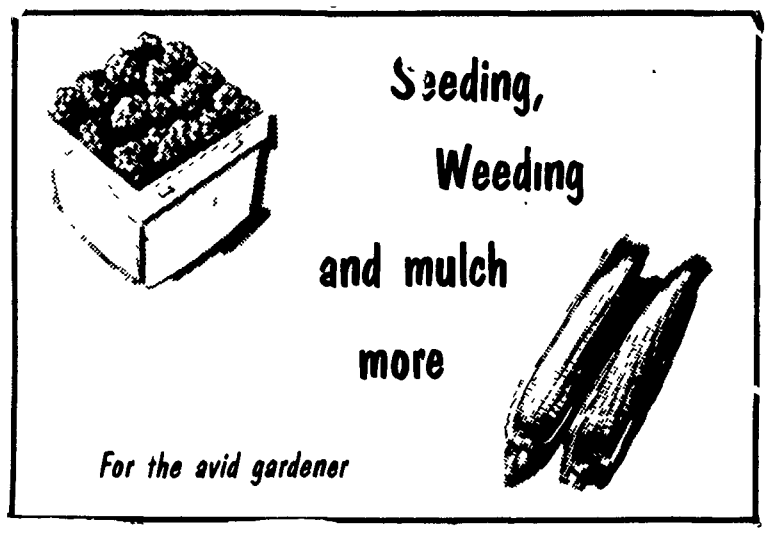
7. Gradually introduce a variety of foods from each food group. Babies, like ourselves, tire of a repetitious diet.

8. When the baby can chew, gradually substitute finely chopped foods for strained foods. Offer zwieback or dry toast for teething.

9. Avoid showing dislike for a food you are giving the baby. Remember, each feeding is a learning experience, so try to make mealtime as relaxed and pleasant as possible.

10. Offer a variety of foods so the child will be more responsive to new foods in later life.

Patience and the right feeding procedure will go a long way toward making mealtimes more pleasant for baby and parents.



As gardeners receive 1985 seed catalogs with their colorful pictures and glowing descriptions of new vegetable varieties, they may find it puzzling to know which are most likely to perform well. There are two vegetables that have been named 1985 All-America Selection Winners and both are worthy of trial in New Jersey gardens.

"Red Sails" lettuce is a truly red lettuce which has already been tested by Cooperative Extension specialists at Rutgers University's Cook College, and they report that it makes other "red" lettuce varieties look green. Red Sails can be sown and eaten in about 45 days. The plant is so decorative and attractive it can be grown as a border in a flower or herb garden.

Although Red Sails is a loose-leaf lettuce, it also forms a full center, which appears somewhat like a head. According to the breeder, the leaves contain more nutritional value than other types: six times the vitamin A as crispheads and three times the vitamin C. So, Red Sails provides not only color in a salad but higher nutrition as well.

As is the case with all lettuces, Red Sails should be sown early to grow under cool temperatures, but in the 1984 plantings in New Jersey it tolerated heat very well and was much later in producing a seed-stalk. It also remained deep maroon red during hot humit growing conditions and the flavor was excellent.

"Sunburst" F-1 Hybrid Scalloped Squash is the other 1985 AAS winner. The squash is as yellow as its flower. Sunburst is the first yellow hybrid squash to be introduced. The scalloped squash is as yellow as its flower. Sunburst is the first yellow hybrid squash to be introduced. The scalloped squash is soft-skinned with a firm center that tastes buttery even before butter is added.

Seed sown in the garden will produce squash in approximately 50 days. Space the seeds two and a half feet apart. A minimum of four to six plants are required to ensure adequate pollination and good fruit set. Harvest when squash fruits are about three and a half inches wide.

Gardeners who grow Sunburst can create a striking squash dish, combining green and yellow squash. Since this is a hybrid, do not have seeds for later planting because the second generation will not breed true.

In a recent poll of gardeners, the favorite AAS winner of all time is Sugar Snap Pea. The runner-up was Green Comet broccoli. Another AAS winner to try is Celebrity F-1 Hybrid tomato, the winner in 1984.

Farm Women elect new officers

BY SUZANNE KEENE

HARRISBURG — While the hustle and bustle of the Farm Show was in full swing on the lower levels of the Farm Show complex Tuesday, things were a bit quieter in one of the upstairs rooms where the Pennsylvania Farm Women met for a serious business session.

Election of three new officers and four directors was the highlight of the business meeting, which was part of the Pennsylvania Farm Women's 66th Annual Convention. State first vice-president Naomi Bupp formally assumed the presidency, taking over for Marie Baughman. Naomi is a past president of York County Farm Women and served as a 4-H leader for over 20 years.

Edith Diehl of Cumberland County was elected to fill the first vice president position left vacant with Naomi's promotion to president. Edith makes and teaches all types of crafts, is involved in community events and owns an insurance agency.

The Farm Women elected Arlene Whitman to be their new second vice president. Arlene, a member of Lancaster Society 8, lives on a 70-acre farm in Mount Joy and has one son, Jeffrey.

The women also elected four new state directors. They are Eleanor Rothenberger, Clara Cutman, Louise Stouffer and Beatrice Sechrist.

Eleanor is a recenty retired school teacher from Chester County. A member of Farm Women for 12 years, she lives on a 200-acre dairy farm in Chester county.

Clara hails from Dauphin County, where she lives on an 80-acre farm. She caters private parties and banquets and enjoys making quilts.

Louise has been a Farm Women member since 1971. She lives in Franklin County where she is a member of Society 5

Beatrice is a retired elementary school teacher from Fulton County and is a member of Fulton County Society 1.

In other busines the state secretary, treasurer and state committees gave their reports Mrs. Jane Rode, speaking for the membership committe, reported that although two new societies were formed in the state last year, membership in most counties dropped. She stressed that soliciting new members should be a priority for the coming year.

Martee Mentzer reported that over 1,000 Farm Women entered crafts in the state project which was a craft of any kind.

It was announced that the Spring Rally will be on May 22 at the Ramada Inn in Hagerstown, Md Tickets will be $9.25 a person.

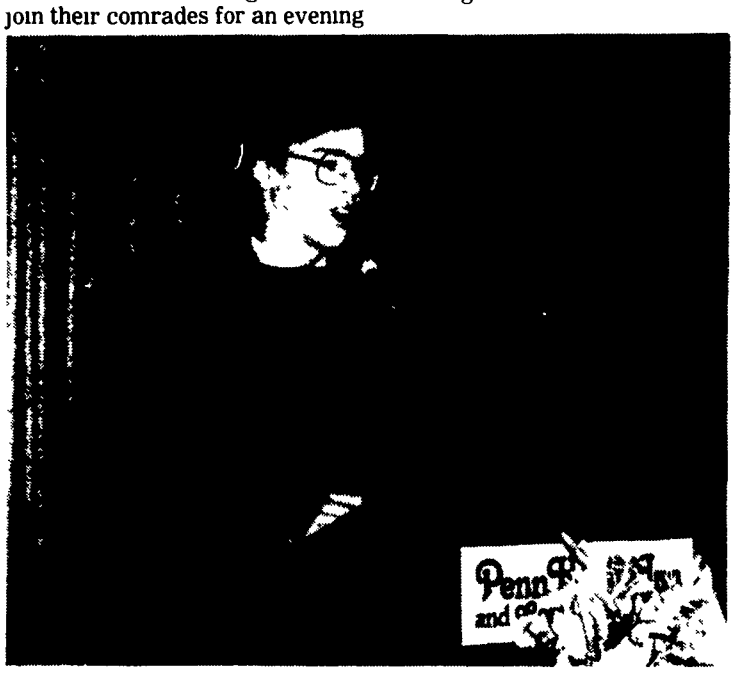
The meeting closed with all members singing "Brighten the Corner," the Farm Women s theme song

Pa. Farm Women elected three new officers at their annual convention this week. From left are Arlene Whitman, second vice-president; Naomi Bupp, president; and Edith Diehl, first vice-president.

Joyce Bupp is featured speaker at Farm Women banquet

BY SUZANNE KEENE

CAMP HILL — Nearly 600 Farm Women braved chilling winds to join their comrades for an evening of fun, fellowship and good food at the Penn Harris Motor Inn Monday evening.



Gregg Musser presented his award-winning speech on farmland preservation to the Farm Women.

Peggy and Steve Spiese entertained the Farm Women with a selection of songs.

The annual Farm Women Banquet wrapped up a full day of activities for the women attending the 66th annual Pennsylvania Farm Women Convention. The evening began with a delicious dinner of salad, fruit cup, turkey and stuffing, whipped potatoes, carrots, rolls and coconut cream pie.

Later, the farm women sang some of their favorite songs, then viewed slides of the officers and their families

Gregg Musser, the son of Harold and Judy Musser, Elizabethtown, presented his award-winning speech "Where's The Farmland" to the farm women Gregg's speech focused on the importance of farmland and the action that must be taken now to preserve it for future generations.

Every nine seconds, one acre of farmland is destroyed," Gregg informed And, he continued, "We must realize that the status of the future lies with what we do today "

He suggested that a combination of programs is necessary to preserve the best farmland. These programs include zoning at a local level, establishment of ag preserves, and a deed restriction program But for such programs to work, Gregg stressed, they must have the strong support of farmers

Peggy and Steve Spiese followed Gregg's speech with a selection of musical arrangments that delighted the audience. The Spieses are both involved in Gallimaufry Productions Inc., a theater company that does children's theater

The featured speaker for the evening was Joyce Bupp, a dairy farm wife and correspondent for Lancaster Farming" and "The York Dispatch " In her entertaining speech, Mother Never Told Me About This," Joyce related some of the humerous events in her life as a farm wife, many of which other ladies present had experienced themselves.

"Mother never told me that by marrying a farmer I was starting a whole new life," Joyce confided.

Joyce Bupp, a dairy farm wife and columnist for Lancaster Farming and The York Dispatch, was the featured speaker at the 66th annual Farm Women Banquet at the Penn Harris Motor Inn on Monday evening.

When Joyce's mother was ordering flowers for her daughter's wedding, Joyce said the florist asked her if she wanted to rent a white runner.

No, I don't think so, her mother replied "She'll be walking on manure the rest of her life "

After marriage came the children, who Joyce said, "bring a new dimension to farm life " Reminiscing about her children's early years and some of the blunders they made with farm lingo, Joyce shared this anecdote

She had just finished putting her young son's shoes on to go out. When she turned around several seconds later, she found that the shoes and socks had already been discarded "Where are your shoes?" she asked him "Mommy," he answered, " my feet were in heat "

On a more serious note, Joyce said she has seen farm women evolve from homebodies to active promoters, a change she is pleased to see. It is important, she stressed, that Farm Women work to promote Pennsylvania food products

And the Farm Women were doing just that when they presented their featured speaker with a basket full of farm goodies at the close of her enjoyable speech

'Gene banks' help preserve plant varieties

FLEMINGTON, N.J. – The annual deluge of seed catalogs is underway. New vegetable varieties are offered every year. As improved varieties are developed and marketed they replace older ones.

The disappearance of past favorites may be disconcerting to gardeners. Plant breeders have seen the loss of plant varieties as alarming because plant diversity (that is, genetic diversity) is the "raw material" of plant improvement, a never ending challenge. Concern for preserving plant diversity resulted in establishment of a world wide network of gene banks which serve as repositories and sources of "raw material" for plant breeders.

Similar concerns among gardeners interested in preserving heirloom and special quality varieties have prompted the development of organizations dedicated to this purpose. The largest is Seed Savers Exchange, which publishes a yearbook containing vegetable varieties available from or wanted by members. They also inventory non-hybrid seeds still being offered by seed companies. A fondly remembered old favorite might be found through them; there may be a long lost variety here in Hunterdon County to be shared. For more information about Seed Savers send a stamped, self-addressed, legal size envelope to 203 Rural Avenue, Decorah, Iowa 52101.

Saving home grown seed may be essential to preserving an old variety. Many gardeners save their own seed as an economy measure or just for fun, too. Any seed saved from past years (whether home grown or purchased) should be checked to be sure its still viable before depending on it for this year's planting.

Roll several seeds of each type in damp paper towel, put the roll in a plastic bag and check every couple of days for sprouting. Remember, also, that seed from hybrid plants should not be saved - the second generation will not be like the parent. And home grown seed from melons, cucumbers, squash, and corn will produce unfortunate surprises unless the plants were specially handled for seed production.

Luzerne Co. Extension offers learn-at-home finance program

WILKES-BARRE — Managing money seems like an impossible task for many people. Monthly paychecks often don't cover the rising cost of food, clothing, utilities and medical care. The future looks dim for young families hoping to buy a new home or save for a child's college education.

How can families establish a firm plan for managing their money, one that will help to balance the checkbook at the end of the month and adapt to the family's changing needs?

The Luzerne County Cooperative Extension Service can help through "Families Managing Money in the 80's," a series of five learn-at-home packets that includes a system for organizing important papers; your family's net worth, financial priorities; a plan for saving and spending; and credit management.

If you complete the five-lesson program you get a copy of "Getting Organized," a 48-page book of information and forms to help you keep tabs on family finances.

To receive the free learn-at-home materials, call the Luzerne County Extension Office at 825-1701 or 459-0736, ext. 701, or write the Luzerne County Extension Office at 5 Water St., Courthouse Annex, Wilkes-Barre, PA 18711.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

Write it down.

Is the blizzard of paperwork, intensifying with the turn of the new year, burying you in despair? I mean, what with income tax estimates, social security year-end payments, W-2 forms, interest and principal payment documentations, patronage refund slips, inventory sheets, and cash flow projections, plowing furrows through acres of paper is becoming a larger part of farm tillage each year.

And now, as if we needed one more thing to write down, comes a new paperwork challenge.

This hails from the friendly folks at the Internal Revenue Service and comes under the handle of "adequate contemporaneous record." That, friends, translates to: write it down.

What you must write is dependent on whether or not you take a tax deduction on use of your family automobile for farm-business use. No longer will the friendly folks at IRS take our word that half, or a quarter, or a third of the miles put on our cars in a year's time went for farm business.

No way. We've got to write it down.

What we must write are dates, odometer readings at the beginning and end of trips, total mileage logged, percentage of the trip for personal use and reason for the excursion.

Okay, so your farmer sends you to town to pick up parts for a broken baler. Write it down. Suppose you make a two mile detour along the way to pick up food for your starving after-school crowd. That's personal business - and doesn't count.

Write it down.

Or suppose you have to run meals to the men in the fields five miles away. Is that a deductible trip? Write it down.

We could go on and on with examples, but you surely get the picture. Thus, if you deserve and want this deduction, get yourself a nice little log book and attach it to some strategic spot in the car where it hits you on the head each time you crawl in, as a reminder to write it down.

Personally, I view this further demand on my time to document something so petty for IRS a big, fat pain in the pencil. And I wonder: how much more will it cost to administer this latest demand?

Still after keeping a couple of days record on our automobile use, there could be a bright side to this bureaucratic baloney. Out of 460 miles put on our family car, 420 of them were distinctly business related. That computes out on my calculator to a far greater percentage than the 50 percent business use or so we've been claiming.

Write it down.

Wouldn't it be fun to prove to the IRS they'd have been smarter to accept our estimates?

Managing money is important lesson for children

MEDIA — Buy, buy, buy! That's the message children get while watching television. Children are being targeted as super consumers. Advertisers are well aware that many children not only have their own spending money but often channel a good bit of their parents' spending as well.

The best way you can protect your children from developing haphazard, impulsive buying habits is to begin teaching them money management. Your efforts now will help them set reasonable spending priorities as adults.

According to Extension home economist Greta C. Vairo, your children will learn far more about managing money from your example than they will from what you say. So your first step in teaching sound money practices is to examine your own. If you have a financial plan, meet your financial obligations and talk about money matters in an open and rational manner; your children are apt to have rational, realistic attitudes toward money too. Here are some other things you can do:

• Set limits and make rules. Children value consistency and accept authority when it is fair and firm.

• Be honest. If you don't want to buy something, say so, and say why. If you'd like to buy something but can't afford it, say so. Children need to understand that there are definite limits to spending.

• Avoid comparisons. Play down comparisons with other children and avoid references to your own experiences with money as a child. This is now, and every family has its own spending priorities.

• Be patient. When the allowance or other spending money is gone, talk about where it went and why. Direct experience is a powerful teacher – use it! Money lessons can be hard to learn and few children learn them overnight. Your patience, consistency, honesty, and rules will help your children establish life-long patterns of realistic money management.

Winter survival for home gardeners

NEWARK, Del. – Once the holidays are over, winter can seem long and dreary--especially for active gardeners as they sit shut up indoors, waiting for spring. Glenn Layton, extension county agent for Delaware State College, has some suggestions which can make winter more enjoyable for these restless plant lovers.

"Start planning your garden now for fun and profit," he advises. Most seed companies have published their 1985 spring catalogs by now. Some offer discounts for early orders.

This is also a good time of year to gather information which will lead to a more successful gardening season. "Contact your county extension office for gardening fact sheets," Layton advises. "Learn about succession planting, liming and fertilizing, plus facts about individual vegetables."

Consider starting some of this year's vegetable plants indoors. Tomatoes, peppers, eggplants, cabbages, broccoli and cauliflower are all traditionally started in greenhouses, rather than directly in the garden. To be successful in this venture, you need sufficient light, warmth (75 degrees F) for germination, and a good soil mix. Again, Layton advises contacting your local extension office for details on soil requirements and planting dates for individual crops.

Once seed catalogs arrive, take time to compare varieties. There are big differences among hybrids in growth habit, fruiting characteristics and disease resistance. Look for varieties which are relatively pest-free and well-adapted to local growing conditions.

"If gardening has become routine for you, consider growing a wider range of plants," the county agent suggests. "For example, include some herbs in the vegetable plot, or use them in your landscape scheme. Ornamental gourds are easy to grow from seed and can be planted after peas, beans, broccoli and other early crops."

Half the fun of gardening can be in the planning, so take time this winter to look ahead to spring, try some new ideas, then reap the benefits this summer.

SUPER BOWL E-80
Built To Last

- Reinforced Precast Concrete
- No More Rust
- No More Corrosion

A full 1" of high density styrofoam insulation coated with a reflective foil gives you the most efficient use of energy needed. A high capacity ¾" valve gives quick recovery. This plastic valve resists corrosion and is very easily serviced without the use of tools. The adjustable thermostat and element are located beneath the bowl. This effectively reduces the possibility of "stray voltage." This method of "heating through the bowl" is especially well adapted to precast concrete. Concrete itself is a good conductor of heat and at the same time is a poor conductor of electricity. Our concrete bowl, because of its mass will retain heat for a longer period of time. This effectively reduces the frequency of use of the heating element and thermostat, and maintains a very uniform water temperature.

Uni-Loader... for power-in-hand command

Uni-Loader design eliminates pedal controls. Helps dairymen get their scraping, lifting, dumping and other backbreaking chores done faster and easier, without unnecessary "steps" to coordinate foot and hand movements. Two hand levers control everything — power, speed, direction, loader and bucket functions.

Other productive advantages include hydrostatic 4-wheel drive for smooth going with infinitely variable control. 360° turn capability for getting in and out of pens, out-buildings and other tight spots with ease. Quick parts and service — with dealer access to the Case nationwide network of computer-linked parts depots.

The Milk Check

TOM JURCHAK
County Agent

As every dairy farmer knows, there are many different ways to view milk prices and current marketing situations in relating to what they may indicate. By nature, I guess, I usually tell more of the good news and feel more optimistic about the future. From my view at the county level, I'm sure I see things differently than those higher up with a better perspective, but I hope I contribute something to your understanding of milk marketing and an appreciation of what you and every producer, processor, legislator and consumer contribute to the system.

With that in mind, there's good news for Order 2 producers as they end the year with the highest increase for the month over last year. You don't like to remember, but in April, 1984 the uniform price in Order 2 was 49 cents less than the year before. Prices improved largely through increasing commercial demand, particularly for butter, and some decreasing production helped by the Milk Diversion Program. Prices edged up all summer until September when they pulled even with the year before. Since then they've gone up nine cents in October; 28 cents in November; and now 31 cents in December.

That puts the December price at $13.38 for 3.5 milk at the 201-210 mile zone of Order 2. So, with a four percent drop in the amount of milk you've shipped, you've been able to sustain the momentum of higher prices started ten months ago and it looks like the trend will carry into the new year. The lower production has brought a better Class I utilization to help the farm price, but the prices that handlers pay for Class I and Class II milk was increased by the Minnesota-Wisconsin Price Series that went from a 40 month low of $12.05 in January to an all-time high of $12.72 in November. So, you can see how far you dropped in early 1984 and how high you bounced in only eleven months. That's amazing in an industry that, in the past, has taken pride in its stability and predictable prices.

That seemingly insignificant four percent drop in producer marketings has brought an almost unheard of "call order" from the Market Administrator to free up some Class I milk in December and the too seldom heard of "over order pricing" from the ten-year-old Regional Common Marketing Agency made up largely of northeastern milk marketing cooperatives. Federal milk marketing orders establish the minimum prices that handlers must pay into the "pool" for the milk they use. How they use it determines what they pay for it at Class I or Class II prices. The idea of over order pricing is to get the handlers to pay more the Class I milk than the minimum required by the federal order for that market. This happens in most federal order markets at some time depending on the supply of milk and the opportunity of getting milk from other markets. It requires the participation of most of the producers in the market and is most effective where the supply is largely controlled by marketing cooperatives. For this reason it has seldom succeeded in the northeast, but I hope that producers who are not co-op members can find a way to participate in the effort now that the opportunity is here. We haven't had such a chance for ten years and no one knows how long this one will last.

Not all of the marketing news is good but then that's about normal considering the seasonal variation in production. Last year, however, we had to contend with more than seasonal changes that helped to provide the highs and lows in prices. After three years and three or four different price support programs we picked one that we said we would keep for nearly two years from December 1, 1983 to September 30, 1985. For the first time in many years handlers and producers knew what to expect. Producers adjusted production and handlers began to move dairy products through commercial sales, knowing what prices would be so they could plan ahead. The pipelines began to fill up and inventories were replaced in anticipation of increased demand for the holiday season.

Now that's behind us and the seasonal increases in production are being felt. The M-W dropped from that record high of $12.72 in November to $12.52 in December. Still not too shabby and 41 cents better than last December. The butterfat differential that peaked at 18.2 cents from September to November when butter prices were over $1.58 a pound has followed the butter price down to $1.45 and is now 16.7 cents for December. Cheese prices have dropped nearly seven cents from a high of $1.44 in September to $1.37 in December. But these were expected and future prices will depend on how much milk you supply; how much demand you can generate through promotion; and what changes you ask for in the price support program. Even if you don't get any changes between now and September it makes dealers cautious about buying when the future seems uncertain. They are expecting a 50 cent drop in the support price on April 1st, but how that translates into a market price will depend more on how much milk you market than the support price drop. At the same time, of course, the Milk Diversion Program will end and along with it the 50 cent assessment on all producers that has been part of it.

As it appears now, you can expect higher market prices during the first half of 1985 compared to 1984, but you'll still feel strapped financially during the first quarter because of that 50 cent assessment. You will get some relief from lower feed prices. The milk price-feed price ratio is now the highest in two years. I expect some increase in marketing when the diversion program ends but I don't believe it will be so great as to spoil all the gains you've made during the past year. However, it's just a beginning that should be a dramatic lesson in what can be accomplished when producers assume more control over the supply.

Welder's flu can result from toxic fumes

NEWARK, Del. – Farmers are spending a lot of time in their shops now, repairing, modifying and sometimes even making equipment. Much of this work involves welding – and the risk of poisoning from the fumes.

"Welder's flu" is a common complaint among workers who cut or weld coated bolts and metal. According to University of Delaware extension safety specialist Ron Jester, the symptoms may include high fever and upset stomach, which usually disappear after a day or so. Other effects are more serious and may involve permanent damage to vital organs.

The problem occurs when the heat from cutting or welding burns off zinc or cadmium surface coatings. Cadmium fumes can also cause a delayed reaction, as the lungs fill with fluid over a period of four to 10 hours after exposure. Long-term exposure to cadmium fumes can also cause kidney damage, Jester says.

Burning off old lead paint or welding lead-painted steel releases fumes that can cause lead poisoning. Symptoms include loss of appetite, fatigue, and stomach upset. Long-term exposure to lead can cause blood, kidney, and nerve disorders.

Epoxy coatings can also cause problems during welding and cutting. Irritation of the eyes, nose, and chest are common complaints.

Because of the hazards posed by toxic fumes, Jester advises farmers and others who do shopwork to follow certain basic precautions when welding or flame-cutting coated metals.

* Cut or weld coated metals outdoors or in well ventilated areas.

* Where ventilation is inadequate to draw away fumes, use exhaust fans and ducts. Or wear a properly fitted, NIOSH-approved high-efficiency fume respirator. Such equipment is available from most safety equipment distributors.

* In confined areas, it may be necessary to use supplied air respirators.

* Secondary exposures from smoking materials or food contaminated with lead or cadmium pose an additional hazard for people who weld. Do not eat or smoke in work areas, and wash hands before eating or smoking.

If respiratory problems develop as a result of exposure to toxic fumes from cutting or welding coated metal, consult a doctor. Be sure to describe the exposure conditions. Jester says workers with diagnostic respiratory or kidney disorders should ask their doctors about the effects of welding fumes before doing any welding.

For more information on toxic fumes and other respiratory health hazards on the farm, plan to attend one of the Respiratory Health Hazard Workshops which will be offered by the Delaware Cooperative Extension Service during January.

STOPS ROOTWORMS ALL SEASON LONG

When you switch to BROOT™ the unique brand of corn soil insecticide—you put an end to destructive rootworm larvae for the entire season. It's as simple as that.

Because when you put BROOT trimethacarb in the soil, it releases its active ingredient gradually. So, that means BROOT works for you throughout the whole season—to protect your valuable corn from rootworms until you harvest it. And don't worry if you plant early either, because you can depend on BROOT to stand up to those heavy rains and still provide you with long-lasting control.

BROOT is built tough. Tough enough to protect your corn from rootworms all season. Ask us about it and find out why it's the corn soil insecticide you should switch to.

KNIGHT "AUGGIE" Mixer/Blender/Feeders

Mix, Blend and Feed Your Total Mixed Ration

The Proven Management and Production Tool

Total Mixed Ration (TMR) Feeding Program

Benefits Your Operation With

Increased Milk Production
Faster Weight Gains
Healthier Cattle
More Profit

- Unpalatable feeds are blended so thoroughly they are unnoticed and totally consumed by cattle
- Healthy balance of nutrients—less "off feed" problems
- Boss cows cannot overeat grains, cutting others short
- Beef gains are maximized by blending rations—also allowing use of lower cost feeds and retaining maximum gains

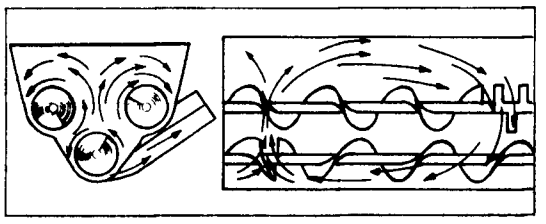
Lower Feed Costs

- Expensive feeds are not wasted
- Allows you to buy supplements in bulk
- Allows use of least cost feeds

Better Feed Management + Controlled Feed Program

- Precision control over rations and ration changes
- Accurate records

Rapid and Thorough Blending and Mixing



A rapid mix with thorough blending of all materials

The three large heavy augers are capable of evenly blending dry feed, urea supplements, grains, etc with moist silages, haylage, etc.

Molasses and other liquids blend and blend thoroughly without lumps or caking

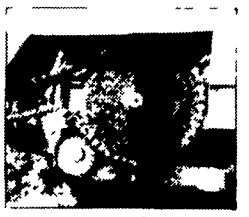
These AUGGIES will mix, blend and feed rations for cattle, hogs, sheep, turkeys and chickens

The Proven Performer With Features Like:

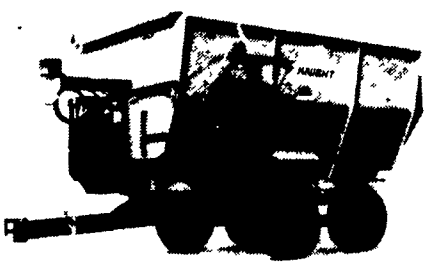
The triple auger chute is hydraulically driven—no gearbox or clutch—and features a magnet to help limit hardware disease

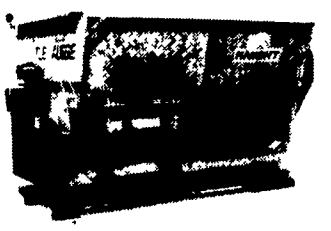
Notched augers (standard on Knight Auggies) assure thorough blending of haylage type ruffages without bridging

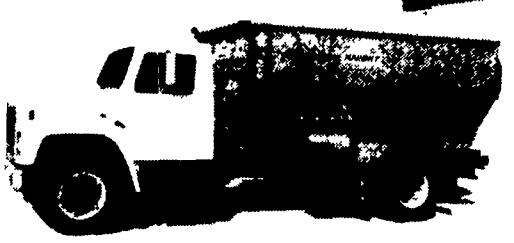
Simple Durable Drives



Heavy shafts, steel sprockets, massive roller chains and self-aligning bearings add up to a durable easy-to-maintain Auggie drive line designed to give you years of trouble-free service Low RPM main drives eliminate need for oil bath enclosure (Protective shields have been removed for illustration.)





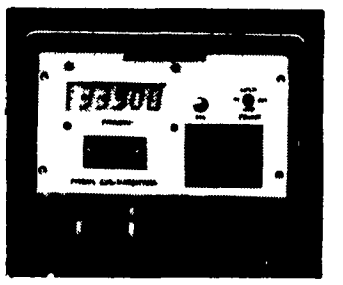


DIGITAL SCALE

The precision of digital electronics in Knight's weighing system gives you unheard-of control and accuracy in your mixed rations program.

Push-button control with direct automatic readout and built-in test system provide you with quick settings and simple operation.

The rugged, yet sensitive scale weight bars, solid state performance, and water sealed construction afford you incredible reliability and accuracy of 1%.



Knight's Digital Scale option gives you total control over your Total Mixed Ration Program... and Knight's Auggie gives you the positive blend of all ingredients that you must have.

TRICKLE IRRIGATION EARLY ORDER SPECIALS

Introducing New Twin Wall IV trickle irrigation. Twin Wall IV will not clog like drip or Bi-Wall irrigation. You can lay Twin Wall IV on top of ground along rows.

Why Twin Wall IV? Because it has 3 holes whereas Drip or Bi-Wall has only one. Twin Wall IV has offered flow rate with same hole spacing.

This year try Twin Wall IV. You will agree it makes all others obsolete.

10% Discount If Ordered By February 1

THE BETTER BEDDER

3 BLADED KNIFES
Again WIC gives you more for your money. Purchasing a WIC chopper with a cord-proof rotor of 3 bladed knifes, you obtain the value of 3 sets of knifes for the price of one.

- GONE FOR GOOD, THE EXHAUSTING JOB OF CHANGING THE KNIVES, AS THE 144 BOLTS AND NUTS HAVE BEEN REPLACED BY 8 RODS INSERTED THROUGH THE KNIVES WHICH ARE COLLECTIVELY TIGHTENED, FORMING A ONE-PIECE ROTOR.

- THE CONCEPTION OF THIS NEW ROTOR GREATLY DIMINISHES THE RISK OF SNAGGING BEING FREE OF BOLTS AND NUTS.

"Sure enough, when everyone finds out how I can wean early and still get 20 percent faster gains, it won't be so special.

"It's my pride, you know. I like feeding rations that are special...and this one is. It's Potency Formulated, and made just for early-weaning pigs.

"It's not like others...not adapted from an ordinary starter feed that baby pigs aren't even interested in. No sir, this stuff has baby pigs scrambling after it.

"So they're on dry feed and ready to wean earlier.

"And, oh boy, do they take off and grow!

"When they get to 20 pounds I switch them from Premawean to Premapig—oops, I just let out the secret.

"Oh well, you'd find out sooner or later...'cause good ideas travel fast in the hog business."

The secret to early weaning.

NJ Extension offers winter horse care tips

FLEMINGTON, N.J. — We are apt to relax our routine in caring for our horse or pony during the "off-months" of winter. Our outside activity with our equine friend slows down to a crawl during the period of December through March. We attend to the basic essentials of feed, water, stall clean-out, fresh bedding, but that's about it.

Actually, our time and efforts should increase during winter. There is really much more we should be doing in providing care for the horse in the stabling season. It's important to consider daily grooming, exercise, providing a balanced diet, deworming, hoof trimming, suitable shelter, ventilation.

Daily Grooming

Daily grooming is a must in winter. Longer hair coat encourages "mud" rot and "grease heels." Muddy and wet conditions contribute to these problems. Deep currying is essential to remove mud and dead skin, and to stimulate circulation.

External parasites, such as, lice, are prevalent during the stabling period. A good preventive measure is daily grooming. If lice do appear, treatment is essential. Lice can be very irritating and can cause hair loss.

Lice are species specific, that is, they are not transmissable from species to species. They can, however, spread rapidly though a herd of horses.

The tools needed for grooming include a hoof pick for cleaning the feet, curry comb (rubber or metal), a body brush, a dandy brush (stiff fiber, about 2 inches in length), mane and tail comb, sweat scraper, and a grooming cloth (a piece of bath towel).

Grooming should be rapid and thorough, but not rough or severe, so as to cause irritation to the skin... and the disposition. Start with the hoof pick, clean out the hoof, working from the heel to the toe.

Then with curry comb in one hand, brush in the other, start on the left side, first the neck, then breast, withers, shoulder, and foreleg down to the knee, back, side, belly, and hind legs down to the hock. Then brush from knee and hock down.

Curry gently, but brush hard! Be careful with a metal curry over boney areas. Brush the head, comb the mane and tail. This should take no more than 10 minutes a day.

Feed and Water

Provide a balanced ration, grain and good quality hay. If horses are generally idle with limited exercise, grain feeding can be moderate. Water is, or can be, a problem. Horses must be encouraged to drink. One way is to offer water at a moderate temperature...42 to 47°F. is suggested. Salt, free-choice, will encourage horses to drink.

Shelter need only be a three-sided structure, deep enough to get in out of the elements. It is important to keep the bedding dry. Frequent manure and wet bedding removal should be routine.

If you "button up" the stable, provide for some ventilation. We can cause more problems by sealing up a building than closing the barn to a point where there is inadequate air movement.

Deworming and hoof trimming should not be over-looked. Remember, you want a healthy, happy horse come spring.

Programs planned for Chester Co. beef producers

WEST CHESTER — Chester County cattlemen will have a chance to update their knowledge of beef cattle production at two evening meetings. Sponsored by the Penn State Cooperative Extension Service, the meetings are held each year and are open to all residents of Chester and neighboring counties.

Dr. Tom Drake, Penn State Extension veterinarian, will talk on the new pre-conditioning program for feeder calves on Thursday, Jan. 24 at 7:30 p.m. at the Central Chester County Vo-Tech School, Coatesville. Dr. Drake has attended a number of conferences on this subject in the Midwest and is promoting the program in Pennsylvania.

On the same evening Dr. Les Burdette, Penn State beef specialist, will speak on nutritional allowances for brood cows, and Cheryl Fairbairn, county agricultural agent, will give a short presentation on the Warm Season Grass Project being conducted in Chester County.

On Tuesday, Feb. 5, Dr. Drake will present a program on "health management from feeder to finish" at the Owen J. Roberts High School, Pottstown. Dr. Bill Henning, Penn State red meats specialist, will also present a slide presentation entitled "The economics of beef gain — what is a finished steer?" This program will help producers see the difference between finished and fat steers, and help producers relate the types of steers they are feeding to the finished product.

The doors will open at 7 p.m. for both meetings with coffee and donuts to be served courtesy of the Southeast Farm Credit Service. For more information, contact the Chester Co. Cooperative Extension Service, phone 215-696-3500.

To a lot of people the word vitamin conjures up the image of a magical nutrient that provides vitality and good health. In a pig's diet vitamins are not magical, but they're necessary and when added at the wrong levels things can go downhill fast.

What do vitamins really do? You'll recall that just about everything going on in the body is a result of a biochemical reaction. To make these reactions happen, there are enzymes. And to help many of the enzymes function, there are vitamins.

For example, riboflavin, and niacin help enzymes that regulate energy metabolism. Create a deficiency of these two vitamins and the pig stops growing. Vitamin E helps to maintain cell membranes and prevent edema. Take this one out of the diet and the pig will quickly die.

But do vitamins provide for vitality and good health? In a sense they do since deficiencies will cause a host of problems. But as long as you're meeting the pig's daily requirements, extra vitamins do nothing but contribute to expensive urine. The trouble is, it's tough to define vitamin requirements for the pig–for several reasons:

- Vitamin levels in feed grains vary. So does their availability.
- Vitamin requirements change with the level of performance.
- Factors that reduce nutrient absorption (such as disease) will also impair vitamin absorption.
- And some vitamins are synthesized in the pig's gut. That changes the dietary requirements. But you never know how much, since the level of synthesis in the gut can vary–especially when you feed antibiotics. It's complicated even further since many pigs practice coprophagy–which is a fancy word for eating manure.

So what do we go by for the pig's vitamin requirements? As a guide we use the levels set forth by the National Research Council (NRC). Most nutritionists will agree these recommendations are only a start, since they don't provide a margin of safety.

This point is reinforced by a recent study from Ohio State University which examined different levels of vitamin supplementation for three- to four-week-old weaning pigs. The pigs were on the experiment for four weeks.

Their control diet contained, roughly, 100 percent of NRC recommendations. To test the effect of added vitamins, other pigs were given one of the following:

1) A treatment diet containing three times the vitamin concentration of the control diet.

2) The control diet plus injections of Vitamin B complex–2 cc every other day the first week, and 1 cc on Monday, Wednesday and Friday during weeks 2, 3 and 4.

3) The treatment diet plus B complex injections.

What did they learn? Vitamin injections improved growth rate during the first two weeks of the trial.

The higher levels of dietary vitamins provided only a small improvement in weight gains during the first two weeks. But during the latter two-week period the effect on growth rate was more positive–a seven percent improvement.

They also found that higher levels of dietary vitamins increased feed efficiency by six percent. Pigs getting both injections and the treatment diet had the highest growth rate.

What would these added vitamins cost? According to local prices, the injections would cost about 25 cents per pig and the extra vitamins in the feed would add about 8 cents per pig. Pigs in the Ohio study getting both treatments were 2.2 pounds heavier after four weeks. So if you put a value for the pig at $1 per pound, the extra vitamins would net $1.87 per head.

Does this mean you should be adding more vitamins to your starter pig diets? You'd first have to check the level you're at now. Chances are, the vitamin concentrations in your current diets are already in excess of NRC recommendations. In some cases they may even be close to three times NRC–similar to the treatment diet used in the Ohio study.

What about these injections? The obvious drawback is the labor. And even though the data looks promising, a repeat of the study would be helpful. The researchers suggested that the positive response to the injections implies that the body tissues did not have an adequate supply of vitamins even though the diet provided an excess.

In summary, there's little question that the NRC recommendations for vitamins are inadequate for on-farm conditions. But we still have a lot to learn before we know exactly how much over the current NRC levels we should use–especially with the B vitamins.

Check your feed tag or vitamin pack. It should definitely contain the following vitamins:

- Vitamin, A, D, E and K.
- Riboflavin, Niacin, Pantothenic acid, B-12, choline and probably biotin.

The ones in question are Thiamin, B-6, and Folacin.

HARRISBURG — Although Farm Show '85 did not officially open until Sunday, there was plenty of activity in the hog barn last Saturday, as Pennsylvania swine breeders paraded their best across the tanbark during the Bred Gilt Shows.

Judge Hank Freter of Oklahoma had the task of sorting more than 250 head of purebred hogs. This "western" judge found the high quality hogs that are doing an excellent job putting eastern hog breeders on the swine industry "map" difficult to sort.

Winners in pairs seemed to be the prominent pattern of the day. In four out of eight breeds one exhibitor claimed both champion and reserve champion honors.

John Strawbridge of York county took home champion and reserve champion honors in both Yorkshire and Hampshire competition. His outstanding pair of Yorkshire January gilts sired by Avalanche took the champion and reserve champion awards.

In the Hampshire show a January gilt sired by CB 11-5 was named champion. The reserve champion's dam is a half sister to the champion, and both gilts carried the service of CB Superman, the grand champion Hampshire boar at the 1984 KILE.

The Duroc competition boasted the largest number of entries per breed for the 1985 show. Clyde McConaughey and Family of Indiana county took top honors in this breed. The McConaughey's pair of February gilts claimed the champion and reserve champion prizes. These gilts were both out of BD Foreshock and bred to CM Meat Man. This championship represented the McConaughey's twenty-fifth champion since they first entered swine at the Farm Show in 1941.

The Poland China breed was the fourth show to see one exhibitor claim both champion and reserve champion ribbons. Keith McConnell of Volant showed a pair of March gilts which caught the judges eye. McConnell is also a long-time exhibitor at Farm Show and has won many championships in swine competition.

Jim Parlett of Airville, York county, won the championship in the Chester White breed. Jim and his son Gus are well known for their outstanding Chester Whites, having won top awards throughout the east coast.

The reserve champion Chester White was shown by Charles Griest. The Griest family resides at Abbottstown and maintain a small Chester White herd. This winner was one of two February gilts Griest had entered in the show.

The Parlett Family came back again to win the championship in the Spotted Swine show. A January gilt sired by WBSF Waylon, this eye-catching gilt was due to farrow in February to the service of RA Deacon.

The reserve champion Spotted Swine was exhibited by Joseph Gardner Jr. of Youngwood, Pa.

The Landrace champion was exhibited by Tunnel Hill Farm of Seven Valleys. The Mummert family has shown many Landrace champions at the Farm Show.

The reserve champion Landrace was shown by the Jay Blatt family of Annville, Lebanon county. This February gilt was sired by Shueys Mr. Chief and bred to LDL Burly.

In Berkshire competition two long-time exhibitors claimed top awards. Russell and Arlie Cornbower of New Freedom have shown Berkshires at the Farm Show since it reopened after World War II. This championship was their second.

(Turn to Page D4)

Champion spotted swine honors went to Jim Parlett, who also showed the reserve. Parlett also had the show's top Chester White.

John Strawbridge of Stewartstown with his champion Yorkshire. Strawbridge took grand and reserve honors in both the Yorkshire and Hampshire shows.

Bred Gilt Shows

The reserve champion was shown by Clayton Winebark of Indiana county. The dam of this February gilt has raised three Farm Show top winners for Winebark thus far.

Bred Gilt exhibitors enjoyed a day of "rest" on Sunday and prepared for a busy schedule of sales on Monday and Tuesday when all of their entries go across the auction block.

County Tobacco Show award winners listed

BY GLENN B. KNIGHT
Special Correspondent

LANCASTER — "I'd like to give them all blue ribbons," was the one comment from the judges that summed up the Lancaster County Tobacco Show at the Farm and Home Center on Jan. 10. The quality of the entries was so great that the judges concluded the event with a round of applause for the entrants.

Lois Burkholder, of R1 Washington Boro, won the grand champion ribbon for her Pennsyvlania-type tobacco. The hand of Improved Hill Island was designated wrapper tobacco for the judging. Both Mrs. Burkholder and her husband, Robert Burkholder, went on to win the champion wrapper and champion filler awards at the state Farm Show at Harrisburg this week.

Roger Rohrer, of Ronks, took the grand champion award in the smoking tobacco classes with his hand of middle one-third.

The wrapper-class entry of Manheim Central student Mike Cassel was named grand champion among the vocational entries.

This year's 181 entries were the largest number in competition since 1981, according to Arnold Lueck, organizer of the show. There were 60 "vocational" entries spread among five types of tobacco (no entries were posted in the binder class of Pennsylvania tobacco.) The adult division bosted 83 entries in the three Pennsylvania-divisions (wrapper, filler and binder) and 38 participants in the three levels of smoking tobacco (top, middle and bottom thirds).

Judge Geoffrey H. Ranck, from Domestic Tobacco Company, continued his comments by telling the growers, "If you didn't get a prize, you should have." The other judges were: Melvin Brenner, General Cigar Block Brothers, and Les Whitmore, American Cigar of American Brands.

All entries were taken to the Farm Show in Harrisburg for state-wide compeition. The winners in county competition were:

Great Plains Software, Fargo, N.D., is adding a Crop and Livestock Accounting package to their line of computer software.

Great Plains offers new ag computer software

FARGO, N.D. — Great Plains Software, maker of the Hardisk Accounting Series software for small business, has begun shipment of Crop and Livestock Accounting, a software product for farmers and ranchers.

According to Douglas J. Burgum, Great Plains Software president, "Crop and Livestock Accounting software will provide farmers and ranchers with the accounting functions they need most, including financial reporting, check writing and inventory management. The software also generates valuable analysis reports on production costs, giving farmers the information they need to make sound business decisions."

Features of the software include the ability to track all transactions and produce reports for specific enterprises within a farmer or rancher's total operation, such as beef cattle or wheat production.

Revenue loss can be divided to reflect percentage ownership within partner-owned operations. The software can also record data separately for a number of farms or ranches.

Crop and Livestock Accounting also provides a Schedule F worksheet that assists farmers and their accountants in completing required federal income tax forms.

Gerald Forgit, a farmer near Fertile, Minn., who has tested the software, commented, "With Crop and Livestock Accounting, we've gained control of our financial position. It's knowing where you stand financially each month, plus the timeliness of reports, that make the software most valuable."

Crop and Livestock Accounting is available for the IBM PC, Tandy 2000 and any 100 percent IBM-compatible microcomputer. Retail price is $995.

Great Plains Software also offers the Hardisk Accounting Series financial management and accounting software for small business. Modules in the series include General Ledger, Accounts Receivable, Accounts Payable, Payroll, Inventory Management with Point of Sale Invoicing, and Job Cost. The Hardisk Accounting Series is available in both single- and multi-user editions.

For additional information on Great Plains products, contact the sales department at 1-800-437-4190.

Pennfield managers, sales reps attend conference in Syracuse

LANCASTER — Dr. Brian Perkins, manager of dairy and livestock nutrition, and Donald Mahlandt, manager of dairy and livestock feed sales, travelled with the Pennfield Corporation dairy feed sales representatives to the 14th Biennial Ruminant Health and Nutrition Conference on Jan. 14 in Syracuse, N.Y. The Pennfield representatives attended the conference, which was sponsored by the New York State Veterinary Medical Society and the Eastern Federation of Feed Merchants in order to receive updated information on current research in nutritional and reproductive management.

The morning session, which concentrated primarily on dairy nutrition, included presentations by Dr. Donald Horvath, Dr. Charles Macgregor, Dr. Charles Sniffen, Dr. Kendall Dolge and Clinton Young.

Dr. Horvath stressed the importance of good quality water and warned that minerals and toxins in water can affect production and health and that stray voltage in the water lines can decrease water consumption. Dr. Macgregor discussed the relationship between the type of carbohydrate found in a particular feedstuff and the energy that an animal derives from it. He indicated that the dairy farmer should not rely too heavily on a single carbohydrate source for energy, particularly if that source is corn.

The subject of protein availability and degradation in the dairy cow was addressed by Dr. Charles Sniffen. He recommended that a dairyman should feed several different protein sources to provide the proper blend of protein types and amino acids.

Dr. Dolge reviewed the impact that new developments such as Monensin, Isoacids and growth hormone will have on the dairy industry through their ability to increase growth rate in heifers and increase milk production in cows. A word of caution was provided by Young in relation to the use of Near Infra-red (NIR) forage analysis. He indicated that NIR labs should still use standard wet chemistry as a backup for NIR analyses and that NIR mineral analyses are not always accurate.

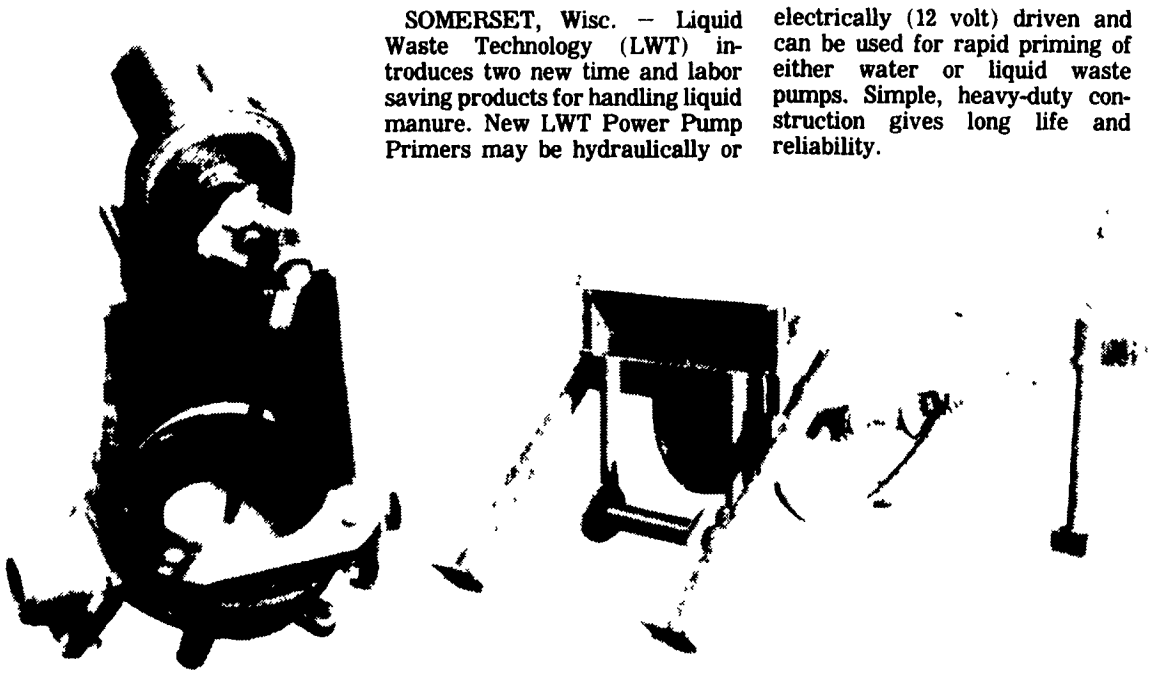
The afternoon session focused mainly on reproductive management and featured Dr. Stephen Roberts, Dr. David Smith, Dr. Richard Warner and Betsy Farr.

Dr. Roberts addressed the subject of reproductive problems and stressed the "back to basics" approach. He concluded that most reproductive problems can be solved by paying more attention to heat detection and the energy balance of fresh cows. He also recommended vaccinating for brucellosis, leptospiroses, IBR, BVD and PI_3.

The team approach to farm management was presented by Dr. Smith, who recommended that a dairyman with production or breeding problems contact his veterinarian, feed representative, extension agent and AI technician to initiate a discussion of the overall farm management program.

Dr. Warner and Ms. Farr reviewed several options for raising heifers. They stressed the importance of freshening heifers at 24 months of age, avoiding overcrowding in heifer pens and keeping accurate health and breeding records.

LWT debuts new liquid manure handling equipment



Two new liquid manure handling products from Liquid Waste Technology of Wisconsin, are (left) power pump primer and a cable winch for fertigation applications.

SOMERSET, Wisc. — Liquid Waste Technology (LWT) introduces two new time and labor saving products for handling liquid manure. New LWT Power Pump Primers may be hydraulically or electrically (12 volt) driven and can be used for rapid priming of either water or liquid waste pumps. Simple, heavy-duty construction gives long life and reliability.

Also new from Liquid Waste Technology is the LWT Cable Winch for use with fertigation equipment for agricultural or municipal liquid waste. Designed to stay out of the corrosive spray, it features variable gear ratios so the operator can fine tune application to ground and crop conditions. Quick change gear sprockets simplify use.

The Cable Winch handles 1400 feet of 3/8-inch galvanized aircraft cable on its heavy duty cable drum and rollers. The Cable Winch is designed for use with a three point hitch. Combined with an LWT Gun Cart for fully automated operation, it reels in the Gun Cart at speeds of 1.5 to 25 feet per minute when powered by a 30 HP (540 rpm) tractor. Kuhn rake protects hay quality

VERNON, N.Y. – A medium size rake – the GA-300 – has been added to the Kuhn line of new concept production hay rakes.

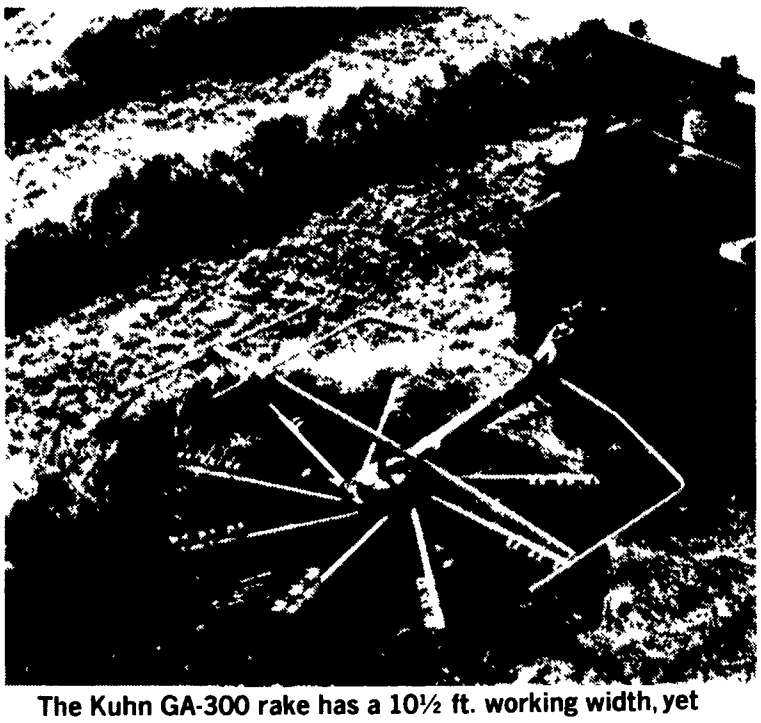
Offering a 10½ ft. working width, the GA-300 can rake up to eight miles per hour, depending on working conditions, and requires only 20 h.p. for operation.

Like the other Kuhn rake models, ranging from 7½ ft. to 13 ft. working width, the GA-300 has a gentle side delivery action. Its long flexible tines guard against leaf loss, roping, or stone collecting. It produces a flat, fluffy windrow for even and easy handling by balers, forage harvestors, or self-loading wagons.

The GA-300's articulated frame permits raking in tightest corners, and the wheels are adjustable to select the desired tine height. The sealed gearbox keeps out rain, dust and dirt while pre-lubricated ball bearings require no maintenance. Balloon tires are an available option.

Kuhn features major warehousing for parts and service in all parts of the country and also provides airlift facilities for fast parts service when required.

Further information on the GA-300 or other rakes in the line may be obtained by contacting Kuhn Farm Machinery, Inc., P.O. Box 224-P, Vernon, New York 13476.



The Kuhn GA-300 rake has a 10½ ft. working width, yet requires only 20 H.P. at the tractor PTO for pulling.

Steaks offered in seed promotion

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. – Caps and jackets aren't the only promotional items being used by representatives of PAG Seeds this winter. They've added choice steaks.

"We want farmers to win a prize that supports what they produce," said Jerry Dohrman, PAG Seeds marketing manager. "And since cattle feeders use a lot of corn in their rations, we're hopeful that giving steaks as part of our promotional programs will be well-received."

A total of 7,000 steaks will be distributed to 175 farmers. Each winner in the sweepstakes drawing will receive 40 steaks.

Drawings will be held March 25 throughout most areas of the country. Farmers can get further information on how to enter the contest by contracting their local PAG dealer. Entry deadline is March 15.

New Holland combine innovation means more crop-per-hour

NEW HOLLAND — Student pilots learn very early when to pull a light plane out of a steep climb to avoid an engine stall: They can hear the engine labor, and feel the plane vibrate. Barnstorming stunt men of the 1920's and '30's called it "flying by the seat of your pants".

Operating some large machinery "by feel" –even fairly sophisticated modern farm equipment –is still common: When a farmer who is harvesting a grain field runs through a weedy patch, he may hear the innards of his combine rumble –or feel some added vibration –as the tougher, moisture laden weed stems mixed among the drier, more brittle grain straw put added stress on the combine's threshing mechanism.

The change in noise or vibration inside the combine cab nearly always has a predictable effect on the operator: He instinctively reacts by slowing down. If that happens often enough while he harvests a large expanse of crop, the farmer will lose valuable time. And he won't harvest as many bushels per hour of machine operation as he could if the machine did not "tell" him to slow down momentarily as it encounters tougher material in the field.

Sperry New Holland TR combine has twin rotors (inset) fitted with patented rasp bars designed for maximum grain harvesting capacity with minimum noise and vibration, even in tough, green, or moisture laden crop conditions.

Combine experts at Sperry New Holland have long pondered how to design the momentary "weed patch rumble" out of their already high-capacity harvesting machines. Now, in what they call a piece of "human engineering", they have attained a new level of combine operation quietness and smoothness that can increase productivity, even when the big machines are mowing down tough or weedy crops.

Human engineering gives first priority to how humans are likely to react to the equipment they operate, a concept that enhances efficiency and safety.

In the case of the New Holland Twin Rotor combine, the challenge was to refine the design of the rotors within the threshing part of the grain harvesting machine – without any reduction in already high harvesting capacity and gentle grain handling – to get rid of normal occasional noise that causes operators to slow down and lose time.

Using computer-aided design techniques –and years of actual field testing –Sperry New Holland engineers developed and perfected "Spiral, Staggered, Segmented" rasp bars on each rotor. The design doesn't let the combine "talk back" to the operator when it is under increased stress as it gobbles up tough or tangled material. The new "S-S-S" rasp bar rotor is so efficient in high moisture crop conditions that they built a rice harvesting combine around it.

Reactions from grain farmers, some of them rice growers, who assisted in the new rotor test program, ranged from enthusiastic to mildly ecstatic about the smoothness and unexpected added productivity. Says William M. Bissett, Sperry New Holland Combine Product Manager: "They all noticed the quietness in the cab, and remarked on the absence of vibration that you expect from any combine in the course of harvesting under difficult conditions."

"We have really broken a psychological barrier to productivity", says Bissett. "By eliminating noise created by tough crops, we've done away with a cause of occasional ground speed slow-down. That puts an end to the 'time thievery' that has been going on right under many an unsuspecting grain farmer's nose. And our new rotor design, if anything, has given our machine more durability under stress than our original rotors."

Chemgro holds annual meeting

BY GLENN B. KNIGHT
Special Correspondent

LEXINGTON, Pa. — Nearly 250 Lancaster and Lebanon County farmers joined Chemgro Fertilizer for their 8th Annual Meeting recently at the Mennonite Reception Center, in this Lancaster County community.

Chemgro President Woody Funk played host and master of ceremonies as representatives of FMC and Ciba-Geigy provided current weed and pest control information.

"We hold this annual meeting to keep our customers aware of the latest developments which can enhance their corn and alfalfa yields," noted President Funk. In introducing the AGRIGOLD line of hybrid corn he reported that testing over the last six years has shown a 5 to 10 bushel increase in test plots throughout the Chemgro market area.

The company presented a plaque to Earl Huber of Conestoga as winner of the 1984 "Club 200" championship. The winning yield, using only Chemgro fertilizers, was 259.9 Bushels per acre.

Presentations also were made by Funk, Chemgro Sales Manager James Bowersox, and representatives of FMC and Ciba-Geigey. Neal Orr presented information of Ciba-Geigey's Duocep and Bicep while Furadan products were discussed by FMC's Steve Fisher

A highlight of the meeting was the appearance of Chemgro's newly refurbished, lighter-weight fertilizer spreader. The 1975 International is equipped with a spinner-spreader and 48-inch rear tires for higher flotation. The revised setup enables Chemgro to get into fields earlier and offers lower soil compaction for no-till fields.

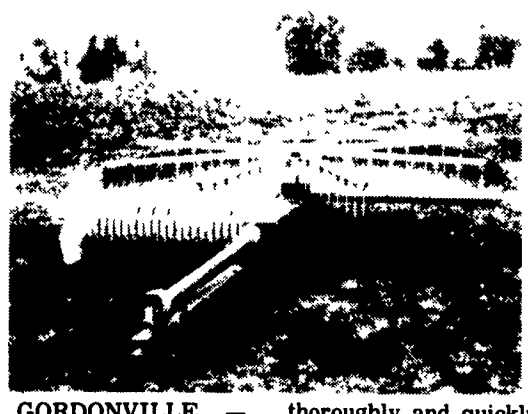
New Haymaker improves quality, cuts drying time



GORDONVILLE — The new Haymaker from Pequea Machine Co. cuts hay drying time by nearly 50 percent or more to virtually eliminate moisture problems that decrease hay quality.

Haymaker's unique design gently picks up a swath of hay, rotates the hay 180°, and deposits the hay — upside down — in new windrows on dry ground. By exposing the damp underside to the sun, Haymaker helps hay dry thoroughly and quickly — without raking — to preserve leaves, minimize bleaching and increase hay nutrient value.

All-steel construction ensures years of dependable service. Clean, trim design utilizes fewer moving parts for reduced maintenance and easy operation.

For more information contact Pequea Machine Co., 3230 E. Gordonville Rd., Gordonville, PA 17529.

Arch ramps and clearance platforms for the transportation of mobile equipment by pickup truck are being introduced by Worksaver, Inc. The ramps and platforms are designed to reduce loading and unloading time.

Ramps, platforms simplify loading, unloading

LITCHFIELD, Ill. — Arch ramps and clearance platforms for the transportation of mobile equipment by pickup truck are being introduced by Worksaver, Inc., Litchfield, Ill. The ramps and platforms are designed to safely reduce the time needed for loading and unloading small equipment.

The arch ramps, available in four models, provide extra clearance between machinery and truck bed during loading and will accomodate small tractors, mowers, snowmobiles, ATV's and other light and medium weight equipment.

Worksaver clearance platforms, suitable for use with any standard size pickup, position equipment above the truck's fender wells, allowing tractors with wide underslung mowers to be transported easily.

Both the arch ramps and clearance platforms feature expanded metal tread for positive traction, and the ramps are cleated at both ends to provide safe, efficient loading and unloading. When not in use, the Ramps can be stored under the platforms, allowing the truck tail gate to be closed during hauling. Optional brackets are available to hang the ramps from stake-pockets posts.

For more information, contact Worksaver, Inc., P.O. Box 1000, Litchfield, Illinois 62056.

Power and grace mark draft horse show

BY JACK HUBLEY

HARRISBURG — Though most visitors to the Farm Show find it difficult to thread their way through the human traffic jam, the show's massive draft horses seem to have little difficulty. Hearing the approach of giant hooves, the sea of Farm Show spectators parted quickly as the tremendous Belgians, Percherons and Clydesdales made their way to the large arena for Monday's show.

Judging this year's Clydesdale Show was Ron Bast, of Richfield, Wisconsin, who bestowed grand champion stallion and mare honors on horses owned by James and Dail Corl of State College, Centre County. The show's grand champion stallion was Bardrill Ambassador, a giant of his breed, standing 18.3h high. The Corls purchased their top stallion from the Budweiser breeding farm in 1983.

The family first saw Ambassador at the Royal Winter Fair in Toronto in 1979, home of North America's biggest Clydesdale show.

"That's where he made his impression on me," noted Mrs. Corl, adding, "Boy, are they (Budweiser) ever sorry they sold him now."

Making her debut on the Clydesdale show circuit was Bratlach Blossom, the Farm Show's grand champion mare. Both Ambassador and Blossom were originally imported from Scotland.

The Corls also exhibited the reserve champion stallion, Olde Pine Tree Donegal, giving up the reserve champion mare position to Double A Contessa, owned by Abraham and Mary Allebach of Spring Mills, also in Centre County.

The nine-year-old Contessa had been named champion mare at the Keystone in November. "Most horses don't look that good at nine," noted Mrs. Allebach proudly, "but she's really carrying herself well."

In the Percheron Show the tables were turned, as horses owned by the Allebachs were named grand and reserve champion mares, and grand champion stallion.

Champion stallion was Saskvalley Chief, a two-year-old bought as a foul in Canada.

"He was the one we were counting on," said the Allebach's son, Gerald. Chief had also been named champion at Keystone, as well as reserve champion at the New York State Fair.

The Allebach's champion Percheron mare, a dapple-gray named Beth Mill, is a five-year-old that Mrs. Allebach had picked from a pasture of horses in Ohio owned by Jim Westbrook.

"At first he said, 'No, you can't have her,'" said Mrs. Allebach, recalling the family's transaction with Westbrook. "But later he called back and traded her for some of our Holstein heifers." Mrs. Allebach declined to reveal how many heifers it takes to equal a single Percheron champion.

Judge Ron Bast also chose an Allebach Percheron as his reserve mare, naming Windermere's Roxanne, a yearling that had taken grand champion honors at the New York State Fair, and first in her class at the prestigious Canadian Royal.

Reserve champion stallion honors went to Circle C Magnum, owned by Gilbert Corl of State College.

Judging the large Belgian Show was Paul Loyer of Kreidersville, Ohio, who found his champion stallion mare among the entries fielded by Lewis and Gail Biddle and family of Boalesburg in Centre County. The seven-year-old, named Mountain Echo Molly, was the reserve champion at both the 1983 and 84 Farm Shows, and took the same title at last year's Keystone.

"She's been the mare that we've done most of our farm work with," noted Mrs. Biddle, adding that Molly keeps getting better with age.

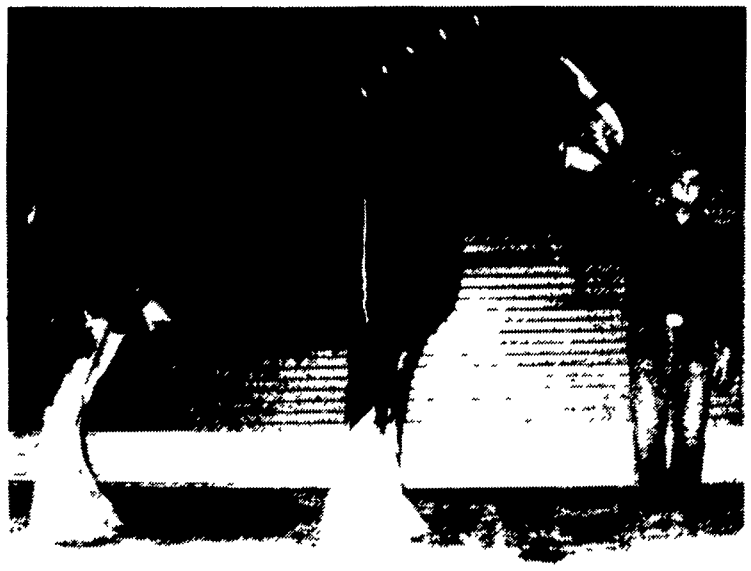
"She was the first horse that we bought, and she's really part of the family," Mrs. Biddle concluded.

The reserve champion mare was Bloom's Conquerors Jan, shown by Herbert J. Frantz of Waynesboro.

In the stallion competition, C&C Lemley Orndorff, of Waynesburg, took top honors with their grand champion, Orndorff's Congolaise Supreme, also named the senior champion.

Reserve champion stallion honors went to Orndorff's Highland Premier, owned by Alfred G Reist of Lancaster

Mountain Echo Molly, owned by Lewis and Gail Biddle, Boalesburg, was grand champion Belgian mare.



Jim and Dail Corl also exhibited the grand champion Clydesdale stallion, an ex-Budweiser giant named Bardrill Ambassador.

Grand champion Belgian stallion was Orndorff's Congolaise Supreme, owned by C. & C. Lemley Orndorff of Waynesburg, and exhibited by Corbly Orndorff.

Butler DHIA bestows production honors

BY BARBARA RADER
Staff Correspondent

UNIONVILLE — When the Butler County DHIA members met January 3, several awards were presented to them for their outstanding achievements. Robert Rugaber, county agent, and Norman Graham, president, made the presentations.

Heading up the list of high herds for both milk and butterfat was Joe Lange, Slippery Rock. For the second year in a row his 51 Holsteins outproduced the other herds in the county. Lange's herd recorded a 1984 average of 22,497 lbs. milk and 816 lbs. fat, the only herd in the county to produce more than 800 lbs. fat.

In 1983 Lange's record was 21,499 lbs. milk and 759 lbs. fat. Both the 1983 and 1984 Lange averages were county record-breakers.

Second in fat with 731 lbs. was the herd of Ralph Thower, Saxonburg. He also placed third in milk production with 19,984 lbs. milk on 62 Holsteins.

Third in fat and second in milk was a herd of 46 Holsteins owned by Albert Hogg and Sons, Slippery Rock. Their average production was 20,846 lbs. of milk with 724 lbs. of butterfat.

Other county herds with over 700 lbs. of fat or 19,000 lbs. milk were: Roy Simpson, Butler; Wade and Bradley Cooper, Slippery Rock; Hartzell Farm, Slippery Rock; Wendell Smith, Butler; and George Spinneweber, Butler.

Several herds in the county were well over the 600 pound mark of butterfat or 18,000 pounds of milk. Fifty-six herds were enrolled in the Butler County DHIA during the 1984 testing year.

Wrapping up its sixtieth year, the county DHIA program finished ninth for milk and 15th for butterfat in the Keystone State, averaging 16,104 lbs. milk, and 588 lbs. fat on 2,575 cows. Butler County also ranked high in protein among the 67 counties, securing eighth place with 526 pounds.

Others honors bestowed during the annual meeting were for high lifetime milk and fat production. The leading cow was "Peachie," an 11-year-old from the Cooper herd. Her total performance was 180,040 lbs. milk and 6,755 lbs. butterfat.

lifetime records over 170,000 milk were. Richard M. Beahm, Evans City; Ralph Thrower; Dovers Inn, Harmony, and Hartzell Farm.

Five breeds of dairy cattle are represented on the Butler County DHIA. Dairy families with top-producing cattle in the colored breeds were: Ayrshire - C.C. and Harold Rader; Jersey - Kenneth Brennan and Roy Simpson; Brown Swiss - J.L. and H.F. Kennedy; Guernsey - Gladys Succop, and Lawrence and George Marburger.

Butler countians Joe Lange (left), high herd owner, and Wade Cooper, owner of the high lifetime producing cow, are both from Slippery Rock.

Farmers with top individual producers in the Holstein breed included: Ralph Thrower, Dale and Jay Wack, C.C. and Harold Rader, W.K. Scheidemantle, Joe Lange, and Albert Hogg and Sons.

A new superior quality award for low somatic cell count was also given this year. George and Aileen Cudoc, Valencia, maintained an SCC of 76,000, ranking fifth in the state. Nine other breeders in the county were recognized for their average of under 200,000 SCC during the year.

Lester Louis "Lou" Vance, Butler, was honored with a plaque to mark his retirement this year after 18 years of service as a DHIA supervisor. He expressed his thanks and said he hoped that he had helped the farmers build up their cow herds, since that was one of his main goals in first taking the milk testing position.

In other business, Norman Graham and Vance Burtner were retained as directors for another 3-year term.

Reigning Butler County Dairy Princess Janet Jones spoke to the group on the need of calcium in the daily diet, reminding everyone about the problems of osteoporosis. She also announced that the promotion committee is in search of girls to compete in the next dairy princess contest.

Guest speaker Harold Campbell, the Extension area marketing agent, addressed the topic "What should be the course of the future." He outlined various ideas for coping with the dairy situation in the coming year. He distributed handouts with tables and charts that compared dairy statistics from previous years. He also handed out a questionnaire on milk support prices which he requested the farmers to return for evaluation.

NEDCO urges support for over-order pricing

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Following a Board of Directors meeting January 7 and 8 in Syracuse, NEDCO Chief Executive Officer Robert Forsythe stated that the cooperative is very interested in improving the economic position of all dairy farmers in the region by working together to achieve over-order price premiums through the existing Regional Common Marketing Agency (RCMA).

Dairy farmer net income has been steadily decreasing in the Northeast since 1980 under the M-W related federal pricing program, said Forsythe. An over-the-blend price would help stabilize farmer income in a time when many are selling out because of serious cash flow problems.

He explained that RCMA, formed in the mid-1970's by Northeastern cooperatives, including NEDCO, was quite effective in stabilizing incomes to New England and western New York dairymen, where membership was greatest. It increased incomes to participating New England dairy farmers about $22 million at that time, he said.

RCMA is simply dairymen and their cooperatives working together through a single agency to market their Class 1 fluid milk in common at fair and reasonable prices, he said.

Forsythe added that the milk price premiums above the federal order minimum Class 1 prices are now effective in 34 of the 45 federal order markets in the country... with price premiums and/or service charges averaging over 80 cents per hundredweight, as reported by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The concept of over-order pricing on Class 1 milk deliveries has not been fully accepted in the New York-New Jersey market because of insufficient support from the large numbers of independent producers in this area, he said.

Since RCMA was originally set up for cooperative members, revisions to the bylaws are now being considered by NEDCO, which would extend the opportunity for membership to independents as well.

According to Forsythe, it is hoped that RCMA can become the effective marketing tool for northeast dairymen it was intended to be. Furthermore, there appears to be growing interest in stabilized milk pricing by all sectors of the industry, particularly now that the government has indicated it intends to take a less active role, and, in fact, appears ready to sharply reduce dairy price supports.

"We see more and more, the need for dairymen everywhere to coordinate their marketing efforts for mutual benefit," he said. "We can no longer depend solely upon the government.

"Beginning with a common agency to market the great majority of the milk in the northeast, is a more effective way for dairymen to better determine their own future," said Forsythe.

Sheep breeders compete in open breed shows

BY SUZANNE KEENE

HARRISBURG — Sheep breeders from across the state gathered in the small arena at the Farm Show on Sunday to compete for top honors in the Open Sheep Show.

In the Cheviot division, Kenneth T. Moore Jr. of Bradford County swept the show, taking top honors in all but one class and walking away with all championships. Moore's champion ram was a March lamb making its show debut. The ram's success didn't really surprise Moore. "I kind of figured he'd do alright," Moore said.

Although Moore's champion ram was a newcomer to the showring, his champion ewe, a yearling, was making its second trip to Farm Show, having taken champion ewe last year as a lamb. During last year's round of shows, the ewe was also named champion at the New York State Fair and at the Eastern States Exposition in Springfield, Mass.

In the Dorset competition, show judge Judy Moore of Eagle, Mich. selected a spring ram lamb owned by Pete Levan, Bellefonte, for her champion ram. In choosing her winner, Moore pointed to the ram's neck extension and overall length and height. For her reserve champion Dorset ram, Moore selected a yearling lamb owned by Lancaster Countian Margaret Herr.

Herr also took Dorset champion ewe honors with her homebred spring lamb, attributing her animal's good type characteristics for the Farm Show win. Herr was also named Pa. Dorset Youth of the Year and received a fleece as part of that recognition.

Windswept Farm, Centre County, received the reserve champion Dorset ewe award.

Thomas Nickeson walked away with the champion Hampshire ram plaque for his spring ram lamb. Nickeson raises all purebred Hampshires on his Cambria County farm and has 45 ewes. Wey Farms of Kutztown took the reserve champion ram with a spring lamb that placed second in its class.

Champion Hampshire ewe went to Mark and Francie Olver for a spring lamb with lots of body and size. Newcomers to the Farm Show, the Olvers have about 70 ewes on their Wayne County Farm. Tim and Sarah Fleener of Lancaster County earned reserve champion ram and premier exhibitor honors.

For the second year in a row, Wey Shropshires of Kutztown walked away with the champion Shropshire ram. Greg Snyder, who showed the homebred ram, said he was a little surprised that the lamb, which was making its show debut, did so well. Wey Shropshires also earned the premier exhibitor award.

The reserve champion ram was owned by Kenneth Moore.

Moore, who has been showing at Farm Show since 1938, also showed the champion Shropshire ewe. Moore's ewe came to the small arena with a distinguished show record. The spring lamb was named champion at the New York State Fair and reserve champion at KILE.

Tom and Donna Nickeson and their son, Jack, pose with their champion Hampshire ram.

Seventeen-year-old Suzan Falvey of Bedford took champion ram in the Southdown breed. Although her spring lamb had made a good showing at county fairs this summer, Suzan was surprised at her win. "I was surprised because competition is really tough," she said with an excited smile.

Reserve champion Southdown ram went to David Harpster of Boalsburg for his spring lamb that placed second in its class.

Steve Kwisnek of Indiana County earned both champion and reserve champion Southdown ewe. The Kwisneks raise only Southdowns and have about 30 ewes.

In her first year of open competition, Rachael Hixenbaugh of Beaver County had a successful day as she took home both the champion ewe and ram in the Suffolk division. Hixenbaugh's champion ram had done well on the summer show circuit and its good breed characteristics brought it still another win.

Hixenbaugh said her spring ewe that took the championship has yet to be beaten and will certainly continue to make show appearances.

Reserve champion Suffolk ram went to Richard Eberts fo Newville, and reserve champion ewe went to Paul Leader of Leader Heights, York County.

Adams County's Platts sweep Merino Sheep Show

HARRISBURG — The spotlight was on Charles and Barbara Platt during Monday night's Merino Sheep Show, as the couple took champion and reserve honors in both the ram and ewe shows, then went on to be named premier exhibitors.

"This is the most successful show we've had, and it's a real treat," said Mrs. Platt, recounting some of the wins that the couple's Belmont Ridge Farm has earned during six years of Farm Show competition. Though the Platts had shown last year's champion ewe, as well as champion rams in 1983 and '82, this was the first year that they were able to put it all together.

"When we got started (in 1977) people told us that it would take six to 10 years to get a competitive flock," noted Mrs. Platt. "So I guess we're right on schedule." All of the couple's show stock has been bred on their own farm.

A retired Gettysburg college professor, Charles and Barbara currently raise nearly 60 Merino and Shropshire ewes.

"I don't know whether this keeps us young or wears us out," Mrs. Platt smiled at the conclusion of the show.

In Rambouillet competition, Kenneth Moore of Rome, Bradford County, nearly duplicated the Platt's feat, taking champion and reserve honors in the ram show, and also exhibiting the champion ewe. The reserve champion ewe ribbon went to Tammy Styer of Bedford.

A veteran of 58 years in the show ring, Kenneth Moore has entered sheep at the Farm Show every year since 1938.

The Moore family raises Dorset, Hampshire, Shropshire and Rambouillet sheep on their 300-acre, Bradford County farm, and participates in more than a dozen sheep shows during the year, along with half as many sales.

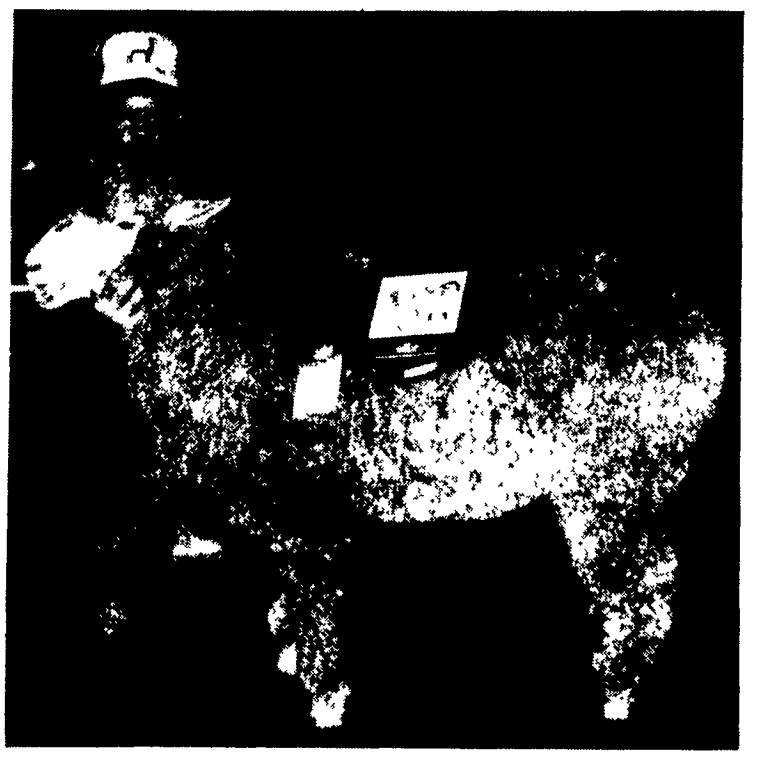
Both Moore's champion ram and ewe were homebred, with the ewe registering a grand champion win at the 1984 New York State Fair.

Moore notes that sheep competition has changed surprisingly little in the past half-century. "But all sheep are longer-legged than they were in 1938," he points out.

Though Dale Crouse of

(Turn to Page D18)

Charles and Barbara Platt of Gettysburg, took home champion ram and ewe honors, and were named premier exhibitors in the Merino Show.



The Farm Show's top Corriedale ewe was shown by Ken Scott of Pulaski.

Prosperity, Washington County, has been coming to Farm Show for nine years, this was his first year of sheep competition. And for a first-time competitor, Crouse made a strong showing, winning grand champion honors with his Corriedale spring ram lamb.

"I thought he had a good chance, but I wasn't sure," said Crouse, adding that his winning entry had been named champion ram at four county fairs earlier in the show season.

This year's champion Corriedale ewe had compiled an even longer list of wins before taking top honors at Farm Show. Owned by Ken Scott of Pulaski, Mercer County, the yearling compiled 14 championship wins at fairs during the summer and fall of last year. Scott also exhibited the reserve champion Corriedale ewe.

Judging the three sheep shows was Judy Moore of Eagle, Michigan.

Brockett's Ag Advice

By John E. Brockett
Farm Management Agent
Lewistown Extension Office

Take A Look At Social Security

As income tax rates decline (they will again in 1985), social security taxes continue to increase (they will again in 1985). Social security taxes have become a major tax on people with earned income (wages, fees, commissions, self-employed income) between $10,000 and $50,000. People with incomes below $10,000 have the earned income credit to offset part or all of the social security tax if they have dependent children. People with incomes over $50,000 are in income tax brackets where this tax does overshadow social security.

The Future

Although the social security system is constantly flirting with insolvency, it will probably never become insolvent. The political repercussions would be too great. Congress and the incumbent President will probably continue to bail it out. They will also continue to play games with it. Unfortunately it will probably continue to be used to correct perceived if not actual social problems. To protect the system, the government may shift some of the burden to general tax revenues (this is actually what has been done with the "earned income credit" for people with earned incomes below $10,000).

The long-range forecast will probably mean (1) social security rates will continue to climb but probably not as fast as in the past 10 years; (2) social security maximum taxable income will continue to climb possibly at a faster rate than in the past; (3) some workers not now under social security will be forced to pay (similar to recent action on Amish hiring Amish); (4) some of the fringe benefits collected by social security recipients will be reduced; (5) social security will be treated the same way as any other retirement or pension program; i.e., everything in excess of the recipient's actual payment will be taxed regardless of income; (6) the amount of social security payments made to recipients will be more in line with the contributions made by those recipients with a minimum payment only to those with total income below a certain level; (7) continual use of social security as a political and social weapon by politicans as well as activist groups representing various facets of the population.

Some Ideas

There may be some action that you could take to lessen the future impact of some of the above possibilities on your own family.

1. First, find out if your social security records are correct. Are you credited with the earnings record you believe you have? Check on this by filing form SSA-700+PC (available from any local social security doffice) with the Social Security Administration.

2. Look at your situation: a. Reduction of self employment social security by paying your own children under age 21. b. Possible reduction of self employment social security by paying spouse. There has been one court case concerning this situation where the court found that a husband paying a wife was subject' to self-employment social security tax on those wages.

3. Are you both employed and have a business? You may want to turn your business over to your spouse, especially if you feel that your social security benefits may be reduced due to your other income.

4. Don't try to play games by including the sale of capital assets or unearned income (rent, interest) in a business or farm income on Schedule C or F. The social security people will pick it up and disallow it anyway. Meanwhile you have paid extra taxes on that money. You may be able to get some of this back by filing amended returns, but that is a big pain in the neck.

5. Anyone who is self employed and over 45 should probably take out an IRA.

Benefits

Let's not talk about eliminating social security. The potential basic benefits are still quite good. Retirement income, protection in the case of an early death by the major income producer, and disability protection could be mighty important to you and your family if the need should arrise.

'Good bugs' to fight bad ones in developing countries

ITHACA, N.Y. – Safe, cost-effective alternatives to chemical pesticides can now be home-grown by subsistence farmers in developing countries, according to microbial control specialists at the Boyce Thompson Institute for Plant Research.

By lending a human hand to naturally occurring diseases that affect insect pests, farmers in cash-poor areas of Africa, Latin America, and Asia can save their crops by encouraging good "bugs" to fight the bad ones.

Microbial diseases – including those from bacteria, viruses, and fungi – control insects without harming plants or humans. The Boyce Thompson Institute advocates of biological control maintain that the effectiveness of such control comes without a disturbing after-effect of many synthetic chemical pesticides. BTI scientists claim that there is virtually no evidence of microbial pest control producing a hardier generation of insects from those that survive the treatments.

"This approach is particularly important in nations with balance-of-payment problems," says Donald W. Roberts, a BTI insect pathologist. "Unlike most chemical pesticides, the fungi can be produced with local materials and labor and with a minimum of capital equipment."

Roberts is the principal investigator in a collaborative research project between the U.S. Agency for International Development (AID) and the Brazilian National Rice and Bean Research Center. Concentrating on insects that affect cowpeas – a legume that is a major subsistence crop in poverty-stricken north and northeast Brazil – the program's researchers have discovered and tested more than 100 types of fungi that produce disease in the cowpea insect pests. One fungus that shows great promise is Erynia radicans, and the BTI researchers are demonstrating that the fungal preparation can be easily mass-produced for use in cowpea and bean farms in Brazil.

The BTI project is one of 18 in 10 institutions funded through the federal "Famine Prevention and Freedom from Hunger Act." The goal of the Bean-Cowpea Collaborative Research Support Program is to reduce hunger and malnutrition by production and utilization of two crops that can be grown in many areas of Africa and Latin America, beans and cowpeas.

Fraud charged in dairy cow leasing case

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Department of Agriculture has charged Corporate Capital Co., Inc., of Los Angeles, Calif., and its owner-president, John F. McNeely, with fraud in connecting with a dairy cow leasing business they operated during 1980-81.

A USDA official said McNeely dealt with investors, dairymen, and livestock dealers in Alabama, California, Delaware, Florida, Indiana, Pennsylvania, Tennessee and Wisconsin.

B.H. (Bill) Jones, head of USDA's Packers and Stockyards Administration, said McNeely bought dairy cows and sold them to investors who then leased the cattle back to him. McNeely then subleased the cows to dairy farmers and assumed responsibility for managing the program.

McNeely was charged specifically with:

— Fraudulently subleasing the cows to dairymen on terms that were in direct conflict with the ownership rights of the investors and their contracts with McNeely;

— Writing more than $212,625 worth of bad checks for dairy cows, failing to pay promptly for another $336,800 worth of cows, and still owing more than $12,000 for these purchases;

— Collecting at least $63,077 in deposits from dairymen and failing to either deliver the dairy cows or return the deposits; and

— Collecting a state sales tax from one investor when no tax was due or remitted to the state;

McNeely and the firm have a right to a hearing on the administrative charges filed by USDA under authority of the Packers and Stockyards Act.

If the charges are proven, they will be placed under a cease and desist order, similar to a permanent injunction. They could also be ordered to pay a civil penalty.

The P&S Act is an antitrust, fair trade practice and payment protection law. It is designed to maintain integrity in the marketing of livestock, poultry and meat, and in the marketplace.

Put manure in its place.

Manure belongs in your fields Not on your driveway Which means for efficient management you need to match your manure with your equipment.

If you're handling more and more semi-solid manure these days with inefficient machinery designed for the kinds of solids produced ten years ago, maybe it's time to re-examine your present means of spreading.

Chances are you need a different kind of spreader. One specifically designed to handle high volumes of semi-solid manure. A spreader easy to load—even quicker to unload. The kind of reliable machine that churns out even, thorough spread patterns And most important, one that doesn't cost you an arm and a leg

The simple solution—Vanguard

The Hedlund/Martin Vanguard is designed specifically to spread semi-solid manure. Vanguard's exclusive heavy-duty, chopper-type auger and oversized fan make short work of unloading. You can spread up to 1500 gallons in 2.5 minutes with uniform patterns of up to 50 feet. And because of Vanguard's rugged, simplified design, there are fewer moving parts—less maintenance for you

The economical solution

The best thing about Vanguard is its cost. For a little more than half the price of a comparably-sized conventional spreader with hydraulic endgate, you can own a Vanguard—the durable machine that increases the efficiency of your entire manure handling operation

See Vanguard on display today!

You'll find the Vanguard on display at your local Hedlund/Martin dealer. He's got the model that's sized and priced just right for your operation. For the name of your local dealer write Dept H-3, Hedlund/Martin, Inc., 841 Kutztown Road, Myerstown, PA 17067

HAVING SOIL PROBLEMS?
Here's A Timely Tip...

Apply lime on frozen ground

Lime can be applied almost anytime, however winter months are ideal, because the ground is firm and the freezing and thawing action helps to disseminate the lime in the soil

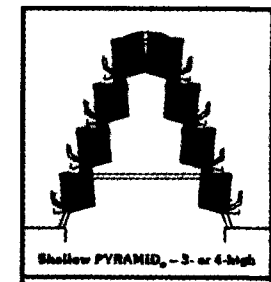
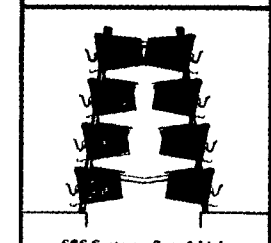
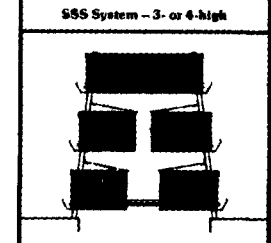
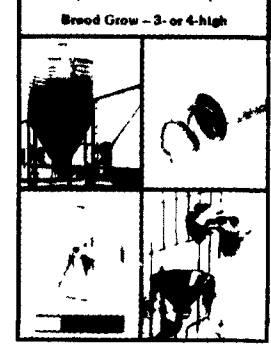
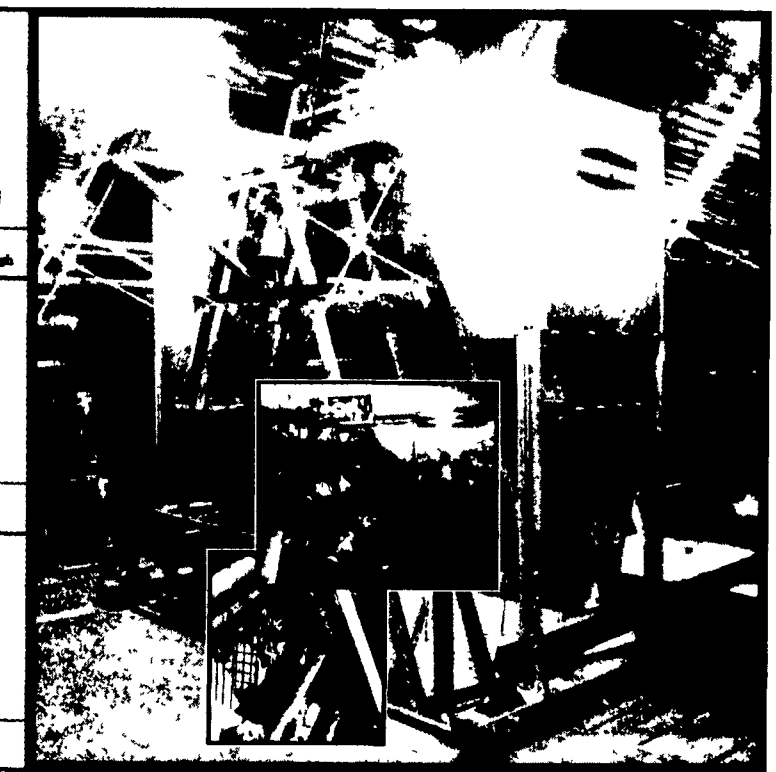
Fast track to egg cost reduction











Chore-Time's MEALMASTER FeedKar traveling feeder can help you get your egg costs on track Here's how

1 The typical chain feeder uses 1½ hp to feed each cage tier – 6 hp for a 4 high Our hopper system, traveling on tracks is pulled by a cable using only ¼ hp – a 95% energy reduction!

2 Cuts feeder maintenance and labor costs to virtually "zero" You know what a chain feeder costs to maintain!

3 Evens out egg production from one end of the row to the other – birds at the front can't "highgrade" the feed

We'd like to talk to you about the other ways the nearly 200 feeders we've sold are helping owners Our FeedKar is now standard on all Chore-Time brood-grow and layer cages our famous shallow PYRAMID and new deep PYRAMID our 3- and 4-high SSS

Farm Talk

by

Jerry Webb

The family farmer has been at the heart of America's food producing mechanism for many generations, but some feel he's an endangered species. He's defined as a farmer, who with the labor of his own family operates a complete production unit. These units have continued to decline in number and increase in acreage and income. Today, no more than two percent of the population farms the land and many of those must be defined as larger-than-family farm units.

The old traditional family farm emerged from the horse era as a viable agricultural unit. A farmer and his wife along with several children could till the land, care for the livestock, produce most of their own needs, and survive with little or no hard money income. The necessities of life that could not be grown on the farm were bartered for with eggs, chickens, and canned goods. Those things that could only be purchased most generally were done without.

Some units survived depressions, recessions, world wars, stock market crashes and other phenomena, and when prosperity finally did come to agriculture in the post-World War II period, they were ready and willing to share in it. As horses were replaced with small tractors and then with bigger tractors, and as threshing machines yielded to combines, small family farms began to grow. Retiring farmers were bought out by their neighbors and farmers competed against each other for rental acres.

During the "hard times" period of American agriculture, when there was little or no money and plenty of backbreaking labor, most kids who grew up on a family farm very quickly moved on to something else. But then with mechanization and prosperity, the family farm became a more attractive alternative for farm-reared youngsters. And so family farms grew as more and more family members became part of the business. Through all that, the out-migration from agriculture continued. The masses of farm workers from the horse and hand labor agriculture of the turn of the century yielded a lot of people to urban employment as mechanization and other progress became accepted.

Believe it for now, farmers were slow to adopt much of the new fangled labor-saving ways. First of all because they had no money and the new machines were quite expensive, and secondly because they had plenty of family labor. Why buy a tractor when you had plenty of horses and plenty of kids to handle them? But eventually farmers did replace the horses and the tractors got bigger and better, and the family farmers who started farming on 80 acres back in the thirties now tilled several hundred acres, maybe even several thousand, with no more than one or two helpers.

So the family farm, as recalled from the 1930's is gone. Like many other institutions of that period, it adjusted or died. Today's family farm is larger, better equipped, and better financed even though it still operates mostly on family labor. But that may not be enough to keep it going in the years ahead, considering the tremendous economic pressure that is being exerted. What family farmer can pay a million dollars for a moderate sized farm, $100,000 for a combine, or $50,000 for a tractor? What family farmer can compete with stock brokers, insurance companies, private investors and others who all want land? And what family farmer can continue to bring his offspring into the business to assure continuity and continued growth?

There are many who consider the family farmer an endangered species and who are plotting ways to preserve his existence. Some of those ways are extreme, ill-conceived and probably unconstitutional, but they do point toward a very basic premise in American agriculture--the importance of the family farm and its preservation. Do we truly believe in this and if so, what can we do to assure its continuance? These are big questions that will be debated at great length as Congress prepares the required 1985 Farm Bill. This is a crucial time for legislators to stand and be counted on the issues of family farming. The kind of law they draft will make or break thousands of family farmers during the tough economic period that lies ahead.

Workshops on farm health hazards planned

NEWARK, Del. – Farmers are exposed to toxic fumes and other respiratory health hazards during the performance of many necessary chores. To alert producers to these dangers and provide information on how to minimize or prevent exposure, the Delaware Cooperative Extension Service is offering a series of respiratory health hazard workshops during January.

The meetings will identify respiratory hazards on the farm, describe the extent of the problem, give medical aspects of the hazards faced, and recommend proper safety equipment. There will be discussions on grain dust, gases associated with confinement housing, silo gases, mold spores, welding fumes and pesticides as potential respiratory hazards.

The workshops are scheduled as follows:

– Jan. 22--University of Delaware substation, Rt. 9, Georgetown.

– Jan. 24–Clayton Fire Hall, Railroad Ave., Clayton.

– Jan. 30–Felton Fire Hall, Main St., Felton.

All three workshops will start at 7 p.m. Free breathing tests will be given from 6-7 p.m. at each location.

Quality Fencing & Supply of New Holland Brings Plastic to Market

Who would of ever thought plastic could take the place of wood, tencing? PVC Plastic of Nebraska and John K. Lapp Jr. of New Holland, to name two.
two.

Lapp's successful Quality Fencing & Supply on Shirk Road eight years ago started out as a kennel, and manufacturer of chain link fencing, used for dog kennels. Then came the idea of plastic.

With an almost unheard of 20-year warranty, molded PVC railing, originally manufactured for race track sites, hit the western states about four years ago, according to Paul Nolt, accountant for Quality Fencing.

Although PVC is known as a fencing manufacturer, Quality Fencing has taken the product beyond its beginnings, and has devised functional and handsome box stalls, with custom molding and accessories, hog fencing and plastic dog pen inserts, Nolt said.

Lapp, a self-made businessman, said that the company, which employs two workers in the factory, got interested in PVC about two years ago. "We make our own hinges to go with the gates and hog fencing too," he said.

"The product is virtually maintenance-free," Nolt added. The cost, he said, is somewhat higher than regular wooden fencing, but, he noted, in the long run, with a 20-year warranty, you save.

"The color stays white (it's been chemically preserved); it stays clean and there are no chips or blisters" to worry about, Nolt noted.

Quality Fencing has nationwide accounts for their unique design. All of the engineering and assembly is done there at the business on Shirk Road. They do their own welding and use only stainless steel screws and bolts for the hinges and other necessary hardware, Nolt said.

"It's been a great success," Lapp said, and noted that he thinks plastic will really catch on in the County before long. "It looks just like wood and is every bit or more sturdy," he added.

The PVC is unique, Nolt said, because it's clean and it won't rust (like metal). It's because of those qualities, Nolt said, that they supply a Virginia-based animal science lab. "It's perfect for a sterile environment," he said.

Although the company started with security and commercial fencing, Nolt said that the idea of "plastic was the answer to all their questions."

"It's hollow and lightweight," and it's easy on the eye as well.

Quality Fencing stands solidly behind their products - take notice of the brilliant, white plastic fence around the property. No telling what they'll come up with next.

LPVC fencing, indistinguishable from ordinary wooden structures, resists chipping and fading, and is virtually maintenance free.

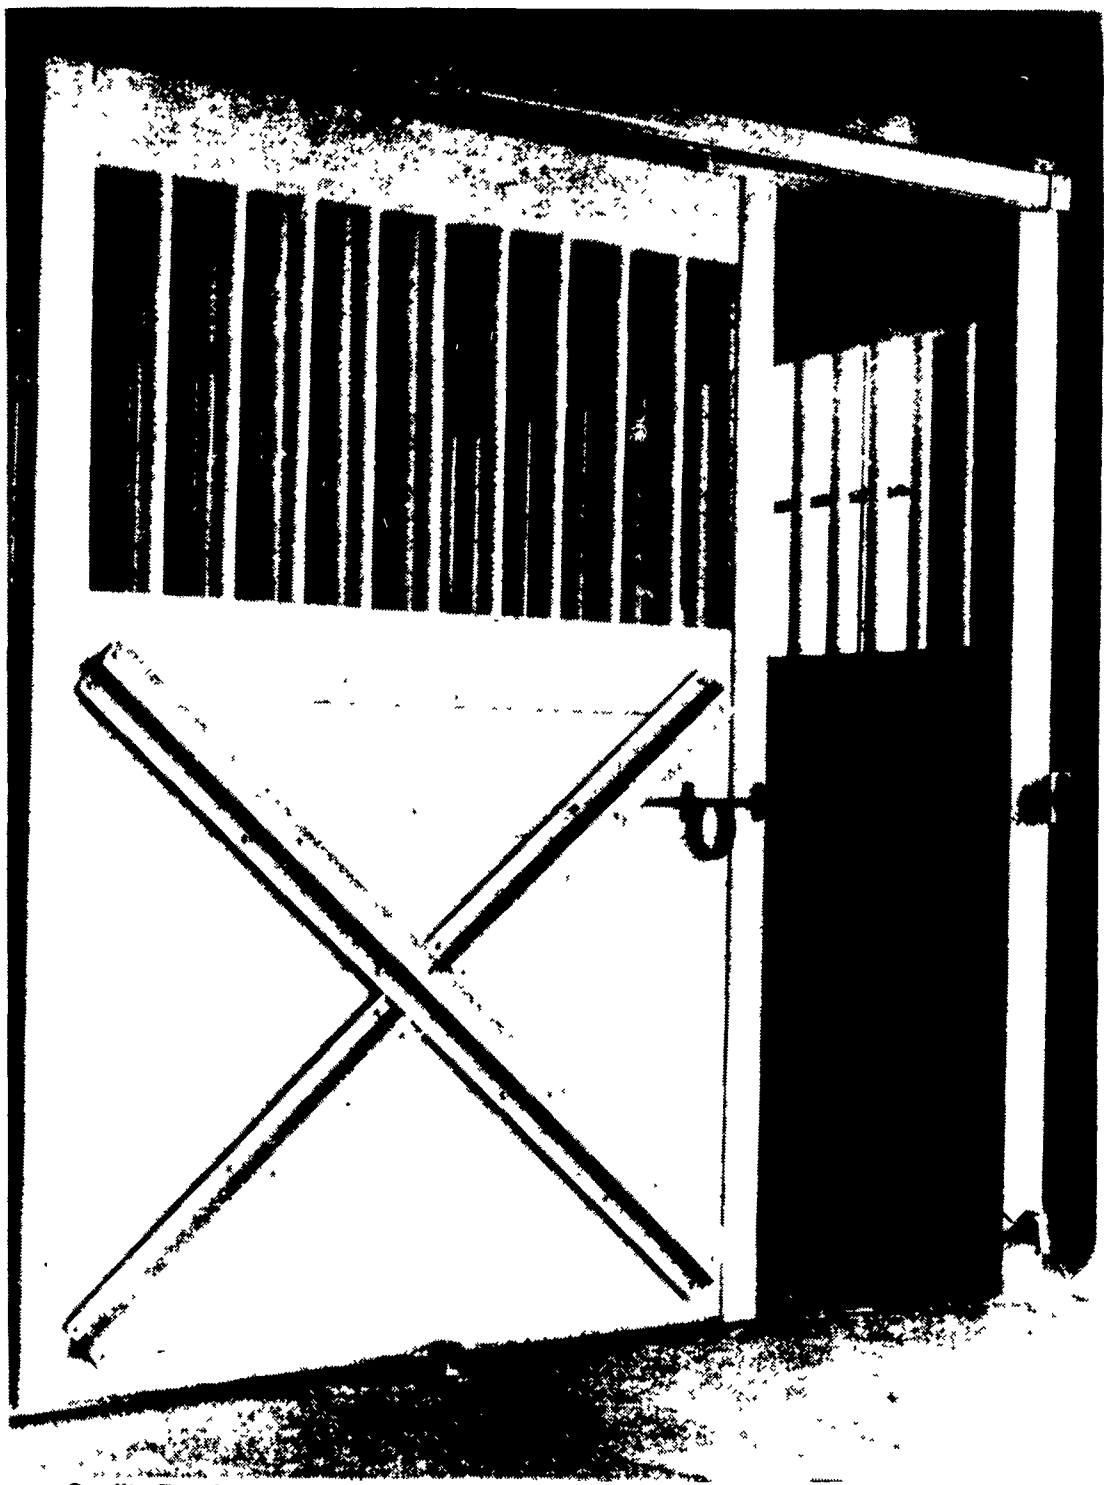
DEALERS INQUIRIES INVITED



Quality Fencing touts a sliding box stall door that's convenient to use and adds a nice touch to any barn for livestock.

Options:

NEWARK, Del. – Farmers must consider many risks when pricing a crop before it's harvested. Two main risks–price decline and yield change during the production period–have long played havoc with planned marketing strategies. This is partly because of factors like drought, foreign competition and government intervention which are beyond the grower's control.

Until now there's never been a marketing alternative which would let farmers deal with both price and yield risk during production. Commodity options are being billed as a way for them to do so, ensuring prices against possible declines while taking advantage of price increases.

According to University of Delaware Extension marketing specialist Carl German, use of options also allows farmers to advance the price on a higher percentage of their anticipated production. This point alone appeals to many. Previous forward pricing alternatives allowed growers to safely price only about half of their expected crop before harvest.

Commodity exchanges like the Chicago Board of Trade and the Kansas City Board of Trade now offer agricultural commodity options as a marketing alternative, largely because of the success of stock options trading which began in the seventies. Congress passed the Futures Trading Act of 1982 in order to mandate the Commodity Futures Trading Commission to initiate and monitor a pilot program on agricultural commodity options. For grain, options are currently being traded on wheat and soybeans.

"Using options involves certain user costs," the marketing specialist says. "As with insurance, buying an option requires payment of a premium. Premiums are determined by public bid on the trading floor of the respective exchanges."

The option which provides insurance against a declining price is known as the put option. When a put option is purchased, the holder has the right (but not the obligation) to sell the underlying commodity to the option writer at a specified price on or before the option's expiration date. Not the actual commodity, but a futures contract on it, underlies the option.

Buying put options allows a farmer to establish a minimum selling price while retaining the opportunity to benefit from higher cash prices, German explains. The maximum potential loss on the transaction is known by the option holder and is limited to the initial premium price. The put option holder does not receive margin calls.

Put options can be offset, allowed to expire, or exercised. "In most cases," says German, "farmers decide to offset or allow the option to expire. Very few choose to exercise an option."

Why? If a put option is exercised, the holder actually ends up with a hedged position in the futures market, complete with margin requirements. Generally, it's more profitable to offset or allow the option to expire.

Trading of options, or puts and calls, has a long and colorful history in the United States. The sale of options on domestic agricultural commodities was banned in the U.S. in 1936, after an attempt to manipulate the wheat futures market through the use of options. The ban was lifted with passage of the Commodity Trading Act of 1982.

Stock options began trading on the Chicago Board Exchange in April, 1973.

The Dairy Business

By Newton Bair

Byting The Apple

This year I have been involved in three computer seminars. I mention it only because it points to the fact that farmers are getting more and more interested in finding out about Apples, Zenith, IBMs and Trash-80s. More to the point is what one of these creatures can or cannot do for you.

There are a lot of good salesmen out there, ready to grab your dollars. Competition is keen, with nearly 200 manufacturers of hardware and probably 500 or more software vendors trying to outshout each other. It's sort of like the automobile industry back in the early part of this century. Everybody that was handy with a wrench thought they could manufacture a car, so there were hundreds of auto makers; nearly every town had one or more. But by the 1980's they were weeded down to GM, Ford, and Iacocca. The same will happen to computer makers within the next 10 years.

Do You Need A Computer?

Not all farmers should invest in a computer. A major stumbling block is the time it will take to get familiar with a new machine, particularly some farm accounting programs. If you are not presently using a good accounting system, a computer won't help you much here.

If you think you would use it for ration-balancing, you'd better be sure that you first master the basic skills needed to compose a balanced ration. Just because it came from a computer doesn't guarantee it to be right. Neither the cows nor the computer like to be fed garbage. A ration of sawdust and seaweed can be 'balanced' with a few additives from the store, but the cow might starve.

If you are not already at least trying to pin down the cost of producing an acre of corn or a hundred pounds of milk, the computer can't do it for you. It can only make your calculations easier once you have assembled the necessary facts. And they had better be accurate, because the dumb thing won't know the facts from guesses, but will spew out answers based on whatever you feed it.

sure that you are willing and able to use the mass of extra information it can generate. Just simply typing lots of data into the machine for storage is not of much use; it must be analyzed, digested, reported, and then acted upon. It will all take some time and effort. You have to be ready to make good decisions based on the computer's output. If you can't act on sound information, you are not ready for a computer.

What I have just said is that the farmers who will be making it over the next 10 years must prepare themselves for the "Age of Information." Not all farmers will own a personal computer, but they will have to know how to use an abundance of information that only a computer can assemble and generate.

Know What You Want To Do

You might be one of the ready and eager-to-get-started farmers. I certainly don't want to discourage you. You are one of the progressive operaters that will be around awhile, so get started. Start with some simple software that does something useful for you, and master it. Then start thinking about what else it can do. Don't let a simple, super machine like a Data Processor intimidate you. Let tomorrow's technology take care of itself.

Some very clever TV advertising is aimed at convincing you that you can't farm without the one that has a 'mouse' to make it easy, or a Charlie Chaplin to get all your ducks in a row. The most dangerous one though is the cheapie. There are all too many strictly fun-and-games machines being sold as working computers, when they are strictly toys. You can buy them for $200, but they are not farm machines. To be useful on the farm a computer must have large memory capacity, and good farm software that will actually run on it now. Don't accept a promise that it 'should work', or 'we are working on it', or 'you can add memory'. If it don't work now, it probably won't work later either.

Your best advisor is someone who has mastered his machine and has it working for him NOW. Avoid the fellow who just got one for Christmas to play Dragons and Pac-Man! It might be a while before he grows up.

Order 4 milk $14.01 for December

ALEXANDRIA, Va. — Middle Atlantic Order Market Administrator Joseph D. Shine announced a December 1984 base milk price of $14.01 per hundredweight and an excess milk price of $12.50. The December weighted average price was $13.99 and the butterfat differential for the month was 16.7 cents. The base milk price was down 22 cents from November but was 25 cents higher than a year agos. The excess milk price was down 20 cents from November and was 45 cents above last December.

Mr. Shine said that a total of 506.7 million pounds of producer milk was pooled in Decembler, a drop of 7.5 million pounds or 1.5 percent from a year earlier. Class I producer milk totaled 243.8 million pounds and was down 2.8 percent from last December. The Class I utilization percentage was 48.11 compared with 48.80 in December 1983. Base milk accounted for 92.03 percent of total December production compared with 90.94 percent last year. There were 6,763 producers supplying pool handlers in December, 76 more than in November but 218 fewer than a year ago. The average daily delivery per producer was 2,417 pounds for the month, and for the first time during the year was above the corresponding month in 1983. The average butterfat test of producer milk was 3.77 percent in December 1984 and 3.87 last year.

Middle Atlantic order pool handlers reported Class I in-area milk disposition of 207.2 million pounds during December, an increase of 0.4 percent from a year ago, after adjustment to eliminate variation due to calendar composition.

In 1984 a total of 5.85 billion pounds of producer milk was pooled under Order 4, 290 million pounds less than during the previous year. This was a drop of 5 percent, after adjustment for the extra day in 1984. The volume of Class I producer milk totaled 2.90 billion pounds in 1984 and was up 10.7 million pounds from a year earlier. The Class I utilization percentage averaged 49.49 during the past year, up sharply from the 46.98 average in 1983.

The Order 4 base milk price averaged $13.66 per hundredweight during 1984, 20 cents lower than a year earlier while the average excess milk price of $12.19 in 1984 was down 19 cents. The weighted average price in 1984 averaged $13.67 per hundredweight and was 18 cents below the previous year's average. The advertising and promotion deduction was 14 cents a hundredweight in 1983 and through May 1984, then dropped to 10 cents for the remainder of the year.

Class I milk disposition in the Middle Atlantic marketing area by Order 4 pool handlers totaled 2.42 billion pounds during the past year, 0.2 percent less than 1983 after adjustment to eliminate variation due to calendar composition.

Governor salutes Pa. agriculture at Farm Show

Pa. Lamb and Wool Queen Peggy McCrumb presented the Governor and Mrs. Thornburgh with a hand-crafted wool picture and an invitation to visit her family's sheep farm in Butler County. State Secretary of Agriculture Penrose Hallowell is at right.

Governor Thornburgh said it would be hard to "make him into a farm boy," but he looks quite comfortable between "Lemon" and "Lana," two Delaware Valley College entries in the Holstein competition.

The Thornburgh's "tried their luck" at this Penn State College of Agriculture exhibit.

BY WENDY WEHR

HARRISBURG — Governor Dick Thornburgh proclaimed the official opening of the 69th Annual Farm Show during the Grand Opening Ceremonies held Sunday at noon in the Large Arena. Arriving for the ceremonies in the traditional carriage drawn by a team of majestic Percherons were Governor Thornburgh and his wife Ginny, and Agriculture Secretary Penrose Hallowell and his wife Trish.

In brief remarks during the opening ceremony, the Governor praised the farm community and encouraged them to take pride in their family farms. Using the Pa. agriculture theme, he declared, "Pa. agriculture, you are growing better!"

Citing this year's figures, he said, "Our 59,000 family farms produced crops and livestock products valued at more than $4 billion for the first time in our history."

To conclude the opening ceremonies, more than 20 commodity queens and representatives presented Governor and Mrs. Thornburgh with gifts and samples of the agricultural products of the Commonwealth.

Before the opening ceremonies, Governor and Mrs. Thornburgh strolled through the Main Exhibition Hall and dairy barn, taking in Secretary Hallowell's explanations of new minimum tillage equipment, meeting with members of the agri-business community, and talking with some of this year's Holstein exhibitors.

During the afternoon on Sunday, record-breaking crowds streamed into the Farm Show Complex to enjoy the sights and sound of the Commonwealth's number one industry — agriculture.

Governor Thornburgh takes his place in the seat of this Ford 2100 tractor, while Secretary of Agriculture "Penny" Hallowell looks on.

Governor Thornburgh drinks a traditional "milk toast" to the Pa. dairy industry under the watchful eye of Pa. Dairy Princess Lynette Loper.

Bomberger's receives '85 Agribusiness Award

HARRISBURG – State Agriculture Secretary Penrose Hallowell presented Bomberger's, Inc. with the fifth annual Agribusiness Award at the 69th Pennsylvania Farm Show pre-show dinner on January 12.

"This Lebanon-based firm has demonstrated an impressive commitment to promoting Pennsylvania agricultural products, using the Agriculture Department's logo since the program's inception in 1980," Hallowell said.

"The Agribusiness Award recognizes a very important segment of the state's agricultural economy," Hallowell said. "Agriculture is the number one industry in Pennsylvania, generating $35 billion in sales annually. Our food and fiber system includes a wide range of agribusinesses employing 1,166,000 workers, or 22 percent of the state's total workforce."

Bomberger's uses retail, wholesale and farm market channels to distribute its meat products that bear either the "We're Growing Better" or "Keystone Pride" logos. Using pressure-sensitive labels, the firm quickly picked up the "We're Growing Better" logo after its introduction at the 1980 Farm Show.

The "Keystone Pride" logo originated with and is endorsed by the Pennsylvania Meat Packers Association. In 1982, Bomberger's added this logo in master cartons, packages and labels. Both logos are used in product advertising.

Carl Baum is president of the organization which was founded in 1920 by D.K. Bomberger. Baum noted that 100 percent of the company's meat used in processing is locally obtained. Bomberger's major products include both Lebanon and old-fashioned sweet bologna, sliced bacon, mincemeat and smoked beef

Hallowell noted that the award is based upon several criteria, including using one of the Department's two logos on packaging and in advertising. These logos are designed to identify Pennsylvania commodities and processed foods. Firms must produce a high quality product that meets all state and federal regulations and must use Pennsylvania raw products in their processing. Length of participation in the logo program and the degree of exposure generated also determine the award recipient.

Five other firms were nominated for the 1985 award: Jaindl's Turkey Farm of Orefield, Lehigh County; Kessler's, Inc. of Lemoyne, Cumberland County; Nibble With Gibbles of Chambersburg, Franklin County; Phillips Lancaster County Swiss Cheese of Gordonville, Lancaster County; and Spring Glen Farm Kitchen of Ephrata, Lancaster County.

The three-member selection committee included Sheila Miller of the Senate Agriculture and Rural Affairs Committee; Perry Stambaugh, associate editor for Pennsylvania Farmer; and Dick Anglestein, former editor of Lancaster Farming.

Agriculture Secretary Penrose Hallowell (left) presented the fifth annual Agribusiness Award to Bomberger's Inc., of Lebanon, at the Farm Show's pre-show dinner on Jan. 12. Accepting the award is Bomberger's president Carl Baum.
